LIMA, Peru, Aug. 21.—A message dated Antofagasta, August 8th, states that the Junta's transports and warships, including the Huascar, Abato, Esmeralda, Amazones, Bieble, Almiranto, Cochrane and Magllanes, were to have left Caldera on or about August 15, with 10,000 well armed men. Their object is to either effect a landing at San Antonio and march by land upon the southern strongholds of Balmaceda or else to engage the forts of Valparaiso. Whatever course is taken by th Junta's fleet a fierse fight is expected within in a few days. The government forces in and around Santiago number 12,000. Great interest is manifested by the insurgents in the movements of Balmaceda's two new warships, the Pinto and Errawiz. It is rumored that attempts will be made to prevent their reaching Chilian waters.

TIRED OF LIFE

BELVIDERE, N. J., Aug. 21.—Miss Margaret Vaughn, an aged maiden, took her own life yesterday by hanging herself. She was a resident of the village of Marksboro, where she had spent nearly the whole of her life. She was in her 77th year. There is no reason to ascribe for her action, but it is thought her mind had become unbalanced by her retired and almost solitary life, nearly all her family having died years ago.

TROUBLE IN THE FAMILY.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug. 21.—The most sensational phase of the Niles case yet produced was enacted in front of the doctor's office on Market street yesterday, and attracted a vast crowd. Mrs Niles and the doctor spent a large portion of the forenoon in E. S. Wallace's office, where she begged for little Louis, who was with his father. Dr. Niles declined to give over the child, but reiterated his offer to put it where she could see it as often as she liked. They then went to Dr. Niles' office, where another long consultation was held. Mrs. Niles calmly left the office first, and later Dr. Niles and the child came downstairs to go to dinner. Mrs. Niles, who was partly concealed, stooped as if to kiss the child, but instead seized it and started away. Dr. Niles grabbed the other hand, and an angry struggle ensued. Mrs. Niles was roughly handled. The father took the child upstairs, and while a crowd gathered the woman sat on the steps and cried piteously. There were angry threats along the street against Dr. Niles. Later the two had an impassioned altercation in the hall, Mrs. Niles begging the doctor to kill her. He finally drove away with the child to dinner, leaving the woman sobbing in the building.

JUDGE ARRESTED FOR SMUGGLING.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 21.—Judge Roy Noan Lugley has been arrested for smuggling from Mexico. It is alleged he has been concerned in the running of horses from Mexico into the United States. He is one of the most celebrated characters on the frontier, and has been justice of the peace for many years. He stoutly protests his innocence.

H. G. Mulligan and John Lewton were killed, and J. E. Hickey fatally injured, Tuesday night at a Utica, N. Y., railroad crossing, their carriage having been run into by a train.

"German Syrup"

A Cough and Croup Medicine.

For children a medicine should be absolutely reliable. A mother must be able to pin her faith to it as to her Bible. It must contain nothing violent, uncertain, or dangerous. It must be standard in material and manufacture. It must be plain and simple to administer; easy and pleasant to take. The child must like it. It must be prompt in action, giving immediate relief, as childrens' troubles come quick, grow fast, and end fatally or otherwise in a very short time. It must not only relieve quick but bring them around quick, as children chafe and fret and spoil their constitutions under long confinement. It must do its work in moderate doses. A large quantity of medicine in a child is not desirable. It must not interfere with the child's spirits, appetite or general health. These things suit old as well as young folks, and make Boschee's German Syrup the favorite family medicine. ②

MAN BLEEDS TO DEATH.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The last day of the Platt Deutsche fest at Union Hill was marked by blood shed. A crowd of boys was dangerously near the targets, and John Shurer, one of the special policemen, was sent to drive them away. While he was clearing the ground he was struck by a stray bullet. The blood gushed forth with the spurt that always accompanies a severed artery. a crowd gathered around the wounded man, but no one seemed to know enough to staunch the flow of blood. The only concern was to get Shurer to the Hoboken hospital A brewery wagon was secured and Shurer was bundled into it and hastened toward the hospital. At Nineteenth street the ambulance from the city was met, and Shurer was transferred to it. He was hurried to St. Mary's hospital, but just as he was placed on a cot he died. The physicians say an artery was severed, and that Shurer bled to death. He was an ex-policeman of Union Hill and leaves a family. It was not known who fired the shot.

HIGH WATER IN MISSOURI.

MACON, Mo., Aug. 21.—The heavy rains for the past ten days has caused the Chariton river and Muscle Fork, running through the western portion of Macon county, to overflow. Hay, wheat, oats in stacks and shocks are being washed away. cornfield's and fences were destroyed, and a large amount of live stock drowned. It is feared the railroad andwagon bridgeswillbe washed out. It is impossible to estimate the loss caused by the high water, but it is tremendous.

GEORGIA STATE ALLIANCE.

ATLANTA, Aug. 21. — Governor Northern went into the state Alliance, although he was not a member of that party, and attempted to overthrow President Livingstone. The first move was a motion by Rev. J. G. Gibson. The chair ruled him out of order, and Governor Northern took the floor. "Mr. President," said he, "I hold that the gentleman is not out of order. I know something of parliamentary law, and he is entitled to the floor." The answer came amid cheers: "I am satisfied that you are well versed in parliamentary law,and you know as well as I do that the gentleman is not in order until the convention is reorganized." The governor attempted to hold the floor, and President Livingstone said sharply: "Let me suggest to you, sir, that you are not entitled to a seat on the floor. You are not a delegate to the convention, and you have no right to interrupt the proceedings at this time." The governor remained standing, and the president said, "Mr. Northern, you must either take your seat or leave the convention." This raised an uproar, and many of the members stood up crying, "Put him out," "Throw him out of the window."

In the afternoon session Gibson and Northern were on hand again with a resolution that before the body should proceed on the election of president an investigation should be made of President Livingstone's character. With a mighty shout the resolution was laid on the table, and then a resolution declaring confidence in Colonel Livingstone's integrity and honor was carried through by every vote but one, that of Mr. Gibson. The result of this day's work has been to make Livingstone the undoubted political boss of Georgia, holding the key to the situation in both Alliance and Democratic organizations. He can do as he pleases for at least a year to come.

TRIED TO BURN THE JAIL.

SPOKANE, Aug. 21.—A hobo with incendiary proclivities set fire to the city jail about 7 o'clock yesterday. He was arrested about 6 o'clock for disorderly conduct and locked up in the city prison. He must immediately have prepared to burn the jail, for in less than an hour Officer Sheehan in charge discovered the jail to be on fire. He unlocked the jail, supplied the prisoners with water and compelled them to extinguish the flames.

LOST BOTH EYES.

SEATTLE, Aug. 21.—Edward Ormor, night watchman of the Columbia and Puget Sound company at Renton, while guarding a bridge there last night accidentally discharged a shotgun he was carrying. The charge of fine birdshot entered his forehead and face. Both of his eyes were put out.

OUTBREAK IN PENITENTIARY.

WALLA WALLA, Aug. 21.—A desperate attempt was made at the penitentiary yesterday by convicts to escape, and two prisoners were killed and one wounded. The break was frustrated only by the bravery of Warden McClees and the coolness of his guards. There were about one hundred and thirty-five in the brickyard when the train came in with material. A plot had been arranged among forty prisoners to make a break for liberty. Four men siezed Warden McClees and four more jumped into the locomotive. The engineer before he was thrown off, reversed his engine and put on a full head of steam. This sent the locomotive in the opposite direction and spoiled the original plan. The locomotive crashed through the gate and was stopped by ditched cars. In meantime Warden McClees, with sharp knives at his throat, was being carried forward to open the opposite gate. The men killed were, Wm. Gleason, sent up last year from Seattle, thirteen years, for robbery; and attempted murder, and John Morris, also sent up seven years from Seattle for robbery. They and Lattin the murderer were leaders of the crowd.

Before the coroner's jury last evening Warden McClees gave the following account of the riot.

This afternoon at 1 o'clock an engine came in with a load of wood and flour, and coupled on two of the empty cars. When done I told them to clear the track. I waited till the engine backed to me, and spoke to the foreman, when I was caught from behind by four men, two of whom I know. They told me to throw up or I was a dead man, I said "Hold on boys; no one is hurt." By this time the engine started back. Two men jumped on the engine from my side; the four of them started with me toward the east gates, which were closed after the engine came in. In going toward the gate, Gleason did most of the talking, and said I must have the guard throw his gun down or I was a dead man. I said to keep cool, as no one was scared or hurt. I said, "Come on, we will go up there," and marched along with them toward the gate. They held knives displayed in front of me.

The two men behind let go of me when we were half way to the gate, but I did not see those men at all. They marched up toward the gate, Gleason continued to threaten me if the guard did not throw down his gun. When we were within thirty feet of the fence I ordered Will Swass, the guard, to keep cool, as he had his gun so he would shoot all three. When within fifteen feet of Guard Berry, Gleason said, "Make him drop that gun, or down you go." His knife still at my throat. I said. "Keep cool," and he was then shot down by Phil. Berry. I then tried to escape with the other man, who escaped from me. He ran twenty or thirty-five feet, when he was shot. At the report he turned once around and started to run again. Philip Berry shot him down. He still held a knife in his hand.

The orders to the guards are, in case of trouble to shoot and prevent an escape at all hazards. I think about thirty men are involved in the demonstration. There were one hundred and thirty-five men in the yard. I don't go around in the yard, as I do not think it safe. Gleason said, "Make him throw his gun in here," meaning inside the stockade. I did not think that I had any chance to escape alive, and knew that when I led the men toward the gate, if the guard kept cool, both Gleason and Morris were the same as dead men.

ARM MANGLED.

PORTLAND, Aug. 21.—Ah Chow, a Chinaman, working for McCloy's printing house at First and Stark streets, met with a painful accident Thursday. While cleaning up around one of the small presses he stuck his arm underneath to pick out some waste paper. The sleeve of his blouse caught in the cogs, and in an instant his arm was being mangled. He gave a yell and jerked the injured member out of its predictament. The hospital wagon was called and Chow put into it, but he jumped out and refused to go. He was then taken to his room on Second street to be subjected to the incantations of the Chinese doctors. His arm was very badly cut, and the flesh and tendons were torn clear from the bone.

A Wonder Worker.

Frank Huffman, a young man of Burlington, Ohio, states that he had been under the care of two prominent physicians, and used their treatment until he was not able to get around. They pronounced his case to be consumption and incurable. He was persuaded to try Dr. Kings New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds and at that time was not able to walk across the street without resting. He found, before he had used half of a dollar bottle, that he was much better; he continued to use it and is today enjoying good health. If you have any throat, lung or chest trouble try it. JUST THE PLACE FOR SNAKES.

Where They Lie Around as Thick as Prairie Dogs in a Colony.

"Talking about snakes," said J. A. Prickett, "you should have been with me the other day. I was in the range south of town looking after some mining property recently acquired in that region. I was camped about eighteen miles from the city, and near me was a peculiar mountain known to the old timers there as the Black Range. It is the form of a horseshoe, with the heels pointing south, and consequently the rocks within the arch are open to the rays of the sun on every day of the year.

"Not only that, but the men who know the place say that these rocks draw heat from beneath and are warm at all times, no matter how cold it is about them. However that may be, it is a fact that the nook is a cozy one, and so warm that snow always melts and runs off, no matter how great the fall.

"This you will readily see would make it a splendid resort for rattlesnakes, and they do congregate there in great numbers. The afternoon I was there it cleared off, and the sun shone so bright that my guide advised a visit to the Black Range in order to see the greatest curiosity of its kind in the west. It is needless to say we were not disappointed. When we stood upon the summit of one heel of the horseshoe and looked down into that little nook it presented a sight such as once seen is never forgotten.

"The sunshine had been just warm enough to arouse them from their torpor, and in every direction could be seen snakes sluggishly basking in the first hot rays of the season. It was for all the world like a prairie dog town, save that there were snakes for dogs and the twinkling activity of those little animals was wanting.

"In a few moments I was armed with a twig that would have created consternation at a Donnybrook fair, and was wreaking vengeance for all my family upon the torpid monsters before me. In almost every instance they had not crawled far from their holes under the rocks, and a great many took the alarm, escaping before I could secure an opportunity at their shining backs.

"Thus it was that I only bagged a few hundred, and was obliged to content myself with that. I dare not give the exact number, as you might think it stretched, but it was a pretty fair hour's sport considering the season. The great mistake made was in not taking a shotgun, when the carnage could have been truly frightful."—Butte Inter-Mountain.

Climate and Veracity.

It never occurs to us to expect veracity in Egypt nor in any part of Africa. We should never think of saying that an inhabitant of Malta was untruthful; we should simply say that he was a Maltese. The name Levantine carries with it the same idea. The Levantine, the African, the Oriental habit of indirection is sometimes explained by the amiability of the people, their desire to say that which will be agreeable. Whereas the Englishman prides himself on his blunt honesty and on speaking the truth, especially if it is disagreeable.

But plant the Englishman, or any man whose moral fiber is hardened by a frigid climate, in Egypt, and how long will he continue to speak the truth? How is it about the northern travelers in Africa, who never agree with each other about anything, and habitually accuse each other of misrepresentation? Is this due to climate or to the contagion of a bad moral example in an atmosphere of duplicity?—Charles Dudley Warner in Harper's.

A Restraining Consideration.

A precocious young member of the Loyal Temperance legion, of Kingfield, had learned some profane words, and his mother, on his joining the society, strove to impress upon his mind the necessity of keeping his pledge, which included one against profanity. He was very desirous of changing his kilted skirts for waists and trousers, and she finally told him that when he had left off all swearing and slang words the trousers should be forthcoming.

One day he was building a block house in her presence. He would get it nearly completed, when it would topple over. After several unsuccessful attempts, he jumped up, clasped his hands together and excitedly exclaimed, "If it wasn't for pants, I'd swear."—Farmington (Me.) Chronicle.

How the African Eats.

At eating, the African negro, having always first washed his hands and rinsed his mouth, sits upon the ground, holds the larger pieces between his teeth while he cuts off a bite with his knife, but does not use both hands to hold food, except in gnawing bones; with the usual dishes he lays his right arm over his knees, and reaching into the pot molds the thick mess into lumps about the size of a walnut, which he throws into his mouth with a jerk, without scattering any of the food. To take out vegetables or soup he presses a hollow into the lump and dips with it. Politeness is shown to the host or housewife after eating by smacking loudly enough to be heard.—Paul Reichard in Popular Science Monthly.
