

that he was sick and could not work. Chief Bolton told him he could go to the hospital. Blum said he did not want to go to the hospital; but when he felt better he would work again.

The captain came to see Blum. The latter was sitting with his elbow on the table, his head resting on his hand. The captain asked him the reason he did not want to go to the hospital.

Blum answered, "An idiot as I feel better I will go back to work again."

"Well," said Captain Barker, "you must go to the hospital."

Blum spoke up, "I won't go to the hospital, I will go to work as soon as I am better."

As soon as Blum finished his sentence, Captain Barker whipped out his revolver, and pointing it at Blum, said: "In the name of the king," and fired.

After the shot struck him, Blum cried, "Lord, God, you have hit me." The captain said: "You need not look so bad, it is only a flesh wound."

Chief Engineer Bolton and the doctor of the ship took Blum to the hospital. The shooting occurred about Sunday night in the forecastle.

Captain Barker subsequently refused to let the men see the body of their comrade, so that they might ascertain by personal inspection whether the man died of the pistol shot wound or apoplexy. The captain insists that apoplexy was the cause of death. They say that when the body was stripped by the surgeon of the steamship in the presence of the ship's boy, the former kept his hand containing a candle over the wound so that it could not be seen, and afterward stuffed some substance into the bullet hole so that no orifice could be discovered. Dyer, they claim, had no weapon in his possession at any time and made no demonstration of a hostile nature.

FARMERS' ALLIANCE.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 25.—The Farmers Alliance of Oklahoma just concluded a territorial convention. The Omaha platform was unanimously adopted. They favored building an interstate road from Duluth to Galveston, on the co-operative plan, and condemned the action of the Cincinnati convention.

STEAMSHIP DISABLED.
NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The Cunard line steamer Servia, reports that on the 21st inst., at 7:30 p. m., she spoke the steamship Suevia in a disabled condition. The Suevia left Hamburg August 9 and Harve August 12 for New York, and when seen by the Servia had lost three blades of her propeller.

NO RAIN FOR TWO YEARS.
SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 25.—A private letter from Albert Garcia, a prominent citizen of the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, tells of a most wide spread and pitiable famine in that state. There has been no rain in many sections of the state for nearly two years. The cattle are dying by thousands, and men, women and children by scores are dying from hunger. President Diaz has been appealed to and has suspended the customs duties in order that bread stuffs from the United States can be gotten to the starving people with the least cost.

A BARK'S VOYAGE.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25.—The British bark Palmyra, Capt Minotti, arrived from Sydney yesterday with a cargo of coal. The voyage occupied 92 days and the crew were at the pump for 78 days. The Palmyra encountered bad weather on June 5 when off the north end of New Zealand. There was a succession of south-southwest gales, which lasted six days, during which time continuous seas swept over the vessel, carrying everything movable from the decks and flooding the forecastle. The jibboom was carried away during the storm and the vessel commenced to leak. It was found impossible to keep the water from gaining with the crew at the pumps, and the donkey was started. When the vessel finally got in fine weather it was found that she was making water at the rate of nine inches per hour, and the pumps had to be kept working until she reached this port.

THE NEW YORK DISASTER.
NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—At 6 o'clock last evening thirty-five bodies had been recovered from the ruins of Saturday's disaster. The odor of decomposing flesh that rises from the ruins is becoming almost unbearable, and disinfestants seem to produce little effect.

City Chamberlain Train, whose mother was the owner of the wrecked building, said today regarding its condition: "It was built in 1872 and acquired by my mother in 1887. I have always understood it was well constructed and never condemned, nor was it considered unsafe. Regarding the claim that the stock of material and heavy presses on the upper floors caused it to collapse, there is nothing in it, for it has always been used for the same purpose it was used at the time of the fire. From what I have been able to learn, I think the cause of the accident was fire, followed by an explosion."

A man who had been engaged thirty-five years in placing printing machinery said today that the presses of Ellis & McDonald and Liebler & Maas were so placed that the vibrations ran with the beams and not the rafters, and that an eight-inch rest lug plate was insufficient to support enormous weight on it. On the third floor alone, he said, stood nearly 40 tons of machinery. Louis Rosefield, proprietor of the paint store at 70 Park place, has been missing since shortly after the disaster, and his relatives think the fearful scenes he witnessed after the crash came unsettled his mind and he strayed away.

Two more bodies recovered at 11 o'clock. But little progress was made in the excavation last night. The total number reported missing is 88.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—More bodies were recovered from the ruins of Park Place this morning. They were identified as William H. Ellis, of Ellis & McDonald, and Frederick W. Trippe, proprietor of the drug store in the ill-fated building. The Italian laborer caught robbing the bodies yesterday was sentenced to the penitentiary for six months today.

Five more bodies have been disclosed but they could not be reached because of a heavy load of machinery on top of them. The police think there were fifty corpses in the cellars, which would make a total of ninety killed.

TWO LEATHS FROM DROWNING.
GRANT'S PASS, Aug. 25.—Sunday two cases of drowning occurred in the Rogue river. Between 5 and 6 p. m. three young men were in bathing in the river north of town by the White rocks, viz: Bert W. Hammond, Kenneth Root and Blodgett. The three attempted to swim across the river and Bert Hammond went a little way out, called for help, and the others thought he was joking. But when they turned back they found he was drowned. They immediately went for a boat and got him out, but it was too late to bring him to life again. Funeral services took place this morning at the Methodist church. He came from Colorado about two years ago, and was 23 years of age. He owned a fine ranch, but had no relatives in this section of the country.

At Gold Hill Mr. Moore, the blacksmith, lost his son, aged 16, who was drowned in Rogue river.

MASSACRED IN ALASKA.
CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—A Washington special says: A catastrophe is reported by the treasury department from the Arctic regions. It is said that the crews of two small steam whalers, wintering near the mouth of the Mackenzie, about 500 miles east of Point Barrow, have been massacred by the natives of that region. The steamers are the property of the Pacific Whaling Company, and carried sixty men as the crews. They were well armed, equipped and provisioned.

TOOK HER OWN LIFE.
DAYTON, Wash., Aug. 25.—Sunday morning Miss Maude Lathrop, aged twenty-one, committed suicide at the house of her father, seventeen miles from here. Her father found a letter to her, which she demanded. On his refusing to give the same up, she took eight capsules, containing morphine. Dr. Van Patten thinks she took about two grains, a fatal dose. No inquest was held. A married man here is suspected as being the author of the fatal letter.

SHERIDAN CAL. BURNED.
WHEATLAND, Cal., Aug. 25.—The entire business portion of the town of Sheridan was destroyed by fire last night. About fifteen buildings were consumed. The fire originated in the Parrott hotel, owned by Mrs. Martin. One man was seriously injured. The flames jumped across the street and caught the range of business houses. A south wind was blowing, and, before the contents could be removed, the building was a mass of flames. Loss, $16,000; insurance $880.

A BRAVE OFFICER.
KINGFISHER, I. T., Aug. 25.—For several months the officers all over the territory have been on the lookout for the Dalton boys, who committed the robbery on the Santa Fe road last spring. The large reward, has made the deputies very watchful, and last Saturday when C. E. Bryant, a member of the gang, rode into Hennessy, a small town about eighteen miles from here to purchase supplies, Deputy United States Marshal Ed Short spotted his man and soon had him in limbo. During the day and evening numerous attempts were made by members of the gang to release the prisoner, but Short, who is a daring fellow, was too vigilant for them. Yesterday Short boarded the Rock Island passenger train, intending to land his prisoner in the United States jail at Wichita. The prisoner was unarmed. On arriving at Vascomis, some men who were at Hennessy, accompanying the prisoner, were at the depot. When the train stopped they boarded and secretly gave the prisoner a pistol. Although he was chained to his seat he managed to pull the trigger and shot Short. Short drew his revolver and shot the prisoner, killing him instantly. Short died a few minutes later.

A PLUCKY WOMAN.
CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Zoe Owens, was robbed of $6000 worth of jewelry at an early hour yesterday. She was aroused from sleep and saw a man by the bed. He had a knife and threatened to kill her unless she gave him her jewelry. She handed it out from under her pillow and he backed out of the room. She immediately jumped up, secured a revolver and fired three shots at him before he got out the front door but he managed to escape, leaving a blood on the steps. The woman thinks the burglar is a colored man, who formerly worked in her house.

A NUMEROUS FAMILY.
NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Among the arrivals at the barge office yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Rubenstein, from Odessa, Russia, and their twenty-four children, ranging from 1 to 25 years. They are well-to-do people. Mrs. Rubenstein is 45 years old.

BATTLE IMMINENT.
NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The Herald says that the battle at Vina del Mar beach was only stopped by darkness Sunday night and there was no decisive result reached. Both armies rested today to get themselves in the best possible condition for the final struggle, which must soon determine the mastery of Chili. Balnaceda's line of defense yesterday was strongly fortified and was under the range of Fort Gallano's guns. Many of his troops are raw recruits, but there are many veterans among the line. The rebels dashed against the lines of the government troops, only to be repulsed with great bloodshed, and repeated attacks were made with no decided advantage to either side.

Under cover of a flag of truce the ambulance and hospital corps were busy during the night caring for the wounded. When morning broke it was discovered that neither party was in a position to assume the offensive and a practical truce today with no fighting has been the result. Neither party has been idle during the day, and scouting parties from the insurgent army have been scouring the country for supplies. One of them cut the railroad to Santiago at Salto. The government forces are strengthening their lines and maneuvering to get into a position which will preclude any successful attempt on the part of the enemy to get in the rear of the Valparaiso.

It is generally believed that General Canto, commander of the rebels, will attempt a flank movement when he resumes operations, and this the Balnacedists are attempting to frustrate in the face of an army equal in valor, as well equipped and at least equal, if not superior in numbers. To force the line of their forts, with their heavy guns manned by expert and veteran gunners, de feating Valparaiso from the north east, consisting of Forts Callao, Podelto, Andes and Valparaiso, is a task to daunt the most confident general. If by any means Balnaceda's army can be flanked and the insurgents can make good a position in the rear of the city, they will, in the opinion of the foreign naval officers here, do it. General Canto is a veteran of the Peruvian war. He knows the country, and realizes that if he can get his heavy guns on the hills back of the city he will not only have a position which is practically impregnable from attack from any force which can be brought against him, but will enable him to batter down the city at his will.

Valparaiso was quiet yesterday, all the business houses, offices and stores being closed. Everybody who can do so has left the city and few people are seen on the streets. While the government torpedo cruiser A. Mirante Lynch, was assisting the artillery men in the forts in keeping the rebel cruisers at long range and thus preventing them from giving effective aid to the land forces, the beach ping of one of her fourteen pound Hotchkiss guns blew out, instantly killing the gunner in charge.

DESPERADO SHOT.
BARBOURVILLE, W. Va., Aug. 25.—John Phelps, a wealthy farmer near here, shot and killed William Hance, Sunday under remarkable circumstances. Hance was a notorious desperado, who took part in the Brumfield-Ruon feud and had the reputation of having killed five men. In some unaccountable manner he won Mrs. Phelps' affection, and on August 10 the two eloped. They went to Fronton, O., and lived there as man and wife. Finally Hance's money gave out, and he ordered her to return to her husband and steal money that she knew he possessed. The woman refused and Hance returned to Barboursville with her Sunday. The couple marched boldly up to Phelps' house and called him out and Hance demanded money he said belonged to Mrs. Phelps. The farmer declined and Hance made a motion to draw his revolver. Phelps was too quick for him, however, and drew a bead on him and shot Hance through the abdomen. The desperado tried to run, but fell dead from a second shot from Phelps' pistol. Mrs. Phelps, who had watched the affair, drove to the home of her father, a respectable farmer, and two hours later made a futile attempt to commit suicide. Hance had terrorized the community for months, and no one could be found to molest him. Phelps will not be arrested, as public opinion approves his action.

THE BOOMERS.
GUTHRIE, Oklahoma, Aug. 25.—The recent information concerning the opening of the Indian lands has caused an influx of people here that is surprising. The boomers are arriving with wagons of every description headed for the Iowa and Fox reservations. When the president's proclamation is issued throwing the lands open for settlement there will be a scramble almost equal to that which took place on the opening of Oklahoma. Every conceivable specimen of humanity has put in an appearance. The gambler and the missionary elbow each other equally anxious to be among the first when the order for the invasion is proclaimed. Some have gone so far as to build flat boats with which to cross the streams, others have houses on wheels stocked with provisions ready to move at a moment's notice. On a line which extends from the Cimarron to the South Canadian, a distance of sixty miles or more, are camped a thousand homeless persons, anxiously awaiting the president's proclamation. The Southern negro, the Northern white and the red Indian mix under the United States marshal's surveillance unconcernedly, but when the order to move is given, there will undoubtedly be trouble.

EFFECTUALLY STOPPED.
ARDMORE, I. T., Aug. 25.—The sale of beer here has been effectually stopped, the authorities having closed thirteen saloons.

PROCTOR SUCCEEDS EDMUNDS.
MONTPELLIER, Vt., Aug. 25.—Hon. Redfield Proctor has received a letter from Governor Page informing him he will be appointed to the vacancy in the United States Senate caused by the resignation of Edmunds.

PORTLAND UNIVERSITY.
PORTLAND, Aug. 25.—This is an eventful day in the history of the Portland university. The corner stone of West hall, the first of its group of buildings was laid yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Bishop Fitzgerald, at University Park.

Almost the entire conference, which has been in session at Salem, attended the exercises. They left Salem at 1:10 p. m., arrived here at 3:15 p. m. and took the boat from Ash-street wharf at 3:30 for University Park.

FIRE IN ROSEBURG.
ROSEBURG, Or., Aug. 25.—W. B. Singleton's residence burned here at 10 p. m. Sunday. Mrs. Singleton had left a lighted lamp in her son's room, and it is supposed it exploded, as the flames were first seen issuing from that room. The family, who were asleep, escaped with nothing but their night clothes. The loss is $8000 and there was no insurance.

BACKED OVER A CLIFF.
PENDLETON, Or., Aug. 25.—A fearful accident occurred at Wild Horse, four miles from Pendleton, Sunday evening, resulting in the sad death of a mother and her child. Peter Teckella, an Italian gardener, started out with his family for a ride. He wished to show them his ranch on the reservation, and the improvements he had made. He drove a single horse attached to a stoutly built cart, the vehicle being occupied by himself, wife and three children, two girls and a boy. Near his place is a steep hill, which he drove up. In attempting to turn his horse on the hillside the animal became unmanageable and began backing. It forced the entire rig over a perpendicular bluff twenty feet high, into a rocky creek below. Mrs. Teckella's neck was broken and shoulder dislocated by the fall, and was killed instantly. His 5-year-old daughter was fatally injured, her skull being crushed in by an awful wound just above her right eye. The other daughter suffered severe bruises on the forehead and the back of her head, but was not fatally hurt. The boy escaped without injury, and Teckella sustained but a few slight scratches. The shafts only of the cart were broken, and the horse which caused the trouble, was unhurt. The poor father and husband, deprived by one sudden blow of his wife and child, was nearly crazed with grief. He screamed to a man who lives near, and he came to his assistance, removing the bodies to Teckella's house. The wounded child was yet alive, and Dr. Smith was summoned who arrived at the house just as it breathed its last.

FELL WHILE CHARGING.
Death of a Young Soldier Who Would Have Been Dishonored Had He Lived.
"Toward the close of the rebellion," said a grizzled veteran of the late war, who, strangely enough, never fights his battles over again unless he is pressed to do so by friends who were not there, "I saw a young man die dishonored, who, I believe, was the victim of wretchedly unfortunate circumstances. I don't know what his name was, and I should not mention it if I did, but he was not more than seventeen years old, and he was beside me as we charged some Confederate breastworks during the preliminary skirmishing that preceded the battle of Gettysburg. He was unmistakably very much frightened, for he had been sent to the front with a batch of raw recruits, and this was the first engagement he had participated in.

"His face was ashy pale, and more than once I saw him looking back over his shoulder. But he held his musket firmly, and he and I being about the same height, the point of his bayonet was in an almost unvarying line with mine. As I notice this I remember thinking, 'This young fellow will make a good soldier yet if the bullets spare him.'"

"The fire was very heavy as we drew up to the works, and our men went down by scores. Suddenly I saw the lad beside me roll over, and several others observed him falling. For he had attracted a good deal of attention by his youth and evident nervousness.

"That fellow's fear didn't deceive him," muttered the man who closed into his place. "His fighting days are over."

"We carried the breastworks with great loss, and there was no more skirmishing that day. In the evening, sitting at the campfire, watching the coffee boil with the rest of us, was the recruit whom we had seen, as we supposed, shot down in the morning. Beyond some scratches and bruises, caused by the soldiers in the rear trampling him, he was not hurt at all. He told us, in a shamefaced way, that he had tripped and fallen to the ground, and that he was unable to get up in time to join in the attack.

"Not one of us believed his story. We were convinced that he had purposely dropped to get out of the fire. The officers of the regiment held the same opinion when they heard of the matter, and the young man had a narrow escape of being tried by drumhead court martial and shot for rank cowardice that night. He pleaded his case so earnestly, however, that he got the benefit of the doubt and another chance.

"The other chance came the next day. We were advancing toward Gettysburg, and again we were ordered to charge on some outlying sandworks, from which the rebel marksmen were harassing us. For the second time the boy was at my side as we rushed on, and again I noticed his pale face and compressed lips, though I detected no other indication of terror about him.

"I had hardly spoken when he pitched forward on his face. He fell exactly as he had gone down the preceding day. 'I hope he has a bullet in him this time,' I said to the man who filled the gap he had made.

"If he hasn't he will have before sundown," was the grim rejoinder. "A couple of hours later the dead body of the boy was found on the cleared field. He had killed himself. The shoe and stocking were off one of his feet, and his bare toe was pressed upon the trigger of his empty musket. The muzzle of the piece was in his mouth, and the bullet had passed up-ward through his brain. Nearly all the regiment believed that, in a frenzy of terror, he had thrown himself down to escape the danger of the moment, and then, realizing the utter hopelessness of his position, had summoned sufficient resolution to take his own life. But I always fancied that he may have tripped twice, and despairing of explaining the cause of his falling the second time, blown out his brains. Under any circumstances, that was the wisest thing he could have done."—New York Recorder.

Woman's Influence Among the Bedouins.
How many people know that among the Bedouin Arabs respect for woman is so great that at her command the climeter uplifted to strike must fall harmless. A murderer or a thief cannot be touched if he is under the protection of a woman, and the right of their power to pardon is recognized so completely that in some tribes where the women never appear before the men and have their own separate tents the thief who is being pursued can save himself by getting under the tent and calling out, "I am under the protection of the harem!" As this is very loudly said the women hear it, and they call out together, "Fly from him!" And that man, even if he has been condemned to death by the prince himself, is pardoned at once and can go at large. And yet we think we are civilized!

Pollen in Profusion.
Darwin says that bucketsful of pollen have been swept off the decks of vessels near the North American shore. Kerner has seen a lake in the Tyrol so covered with pollen that the water no longer appeared blue. Mr. Blackley found numerous pollen grains, in one instance 1,200, adhering to sticky slides, which were sent up to a height of from 500 to 1,000 feet by means of a kite, and then uncovered by means of a special mechanism.
