Mr. Weems' Curious Receipt. An interesting character in American history is the Rev. Mason L. Weems, pastor of Pohiek church and biographer of George Washington. He was something of a romancer, and to his powers of invention we owe some very interesting stories of the childhood of the ebrated of these anecdotes is the one which tells how little George hacked his father's favorite cherry tree, and when taken to task about it nobly re-

"I can't tell a lie, pa; you know I ean't tell a lie. I did cut it with a hatchet." At one time Mr. Weems was engaged as a colporteur. An incident which occurred during this time shows that he had a good deal of human nature, and despite his cloth, exhibited occasionally something of the old Adam. It seems that one of his customers, to whom he had sold a Bible, demanded a receipt 10 to 12c, Petite and German, 10c per pound for the money paid for the copy of raisins, $2.25 per box; plummer dried holy writ. Mr. Weems construed this demand as an insult. He gave the receipt, but in so doing contrived to per pound, avenge his wounded feelings. The event occurred in the season of the summer solstice, and the receipt read as

Horses in the Time of Homer. The horses used in Homer's time were war horses. The warriors were drawn in chariots. The art of riding was known, but it is alluded to as something unusual. Ulysses at the time of his shipwreck "bestrode a plank, like a horseman on a big steed.' There are reasons for believing that the practice of riding was much later than that of driving, and the myth of the Centaur, where, according to Shakespeare, "man is incorpsed and deminatured with the beast," probably originated at an early period, when the appearance of a man on horseback was a novel sight. - Chicago Herald.

Men with Beards.

What a vast difference there is between one beard and another! There is the long, untrammeled beard, broad and thick, which the owner caresses as if it were an infant. Men with such beards may, I think, as a rule, be trusted rather more than other men. Can you imagine a Venetian doge or a member of the council of ten without a beard? I can not. If you have seen a man of mark fondle his long beard during the processes of reflection, you will be apt to wonder whether or not his mind would lose its equilibrium if he were in the night to be shaven clean. -All the Year Round,

The Present Owner of Mand S. Mr. Robert Bonner, the publisher, is the man who owns the fastest trotter. The prize is Maud S, who used to be the star of the late William H. Vanderbilt's private stable on Madison avenue. Mr. Bonner secured Maud S by purchase from Mr. Vanderbilt. Everybody who loves horses knows Maud S, and connoisseurs have never grown tired praising the intelligence, the grace, and the speed of the beautiful mare. She is the professional beauty of the wonderful Bonner stable. Mr. Bonner also owns Sunol, who surpassed Maud S's time for a quarter mile .-New York Sun.

Stings of Animals Are Similar. In the examination of the poisonous machinery of insects and reptiles it is apparent that the destructive principle is the same in all, and that the fang in all possesses a hollow through which the poison flows into the wound the moment the incision is made. The sting of the scorpion is precisely like the fang of the rattlesnake, and performs its deadly work on the same mechanical principles.—Boston Courier.

How It Affected Him. "Your wife's new gown is a perfect dream," said Mrs. Klekshaw to Mr.

"I think it must be," replied Dimmick. "I had a nightmare when I saw the bill for it." -New York Epoch.

JOK AT THE BECORD OF THE CAPITAL JOURNAL

During the recent session of the legislature it was the only paper in the state that attacked successfully the Pertiand detatorship in Oregon politics. It successfully opposed all disctoring the Australian balls aw in the interests of political bosses. It advocated the law (that passed) gives the Oregon railroad commission power to in instand reasonable rates of relaband power to enforce its decisions. It soces in thy advocated retention of the old calles of commission as best qualified to enforce the law. It inhored for all meaures to open rivers and thus secure to the poople the right to free and unrestrated
