NEW TIME CARD.—A new time card is out for the S. P. which takes effect tonight at 9 o'clock, although the time of no trains is changed, it is an important document to railroad men.

UNIFORMS.—Once more honor comes to Salem. The Thos. Kay Woollen Mills store has just received the order for 125 uniforms for the military class at Corvallis.

THE REWARD.—George E. Ives, of the Theil detective agency, of Portland, was in Eugene last night. He was here for the purpose of securing evidence against Albertson and Chandler.

ARRESTED.—Geo. W. Howard was arrested by Constable J. W. Majors Monday at Junction on complaint of Jas. P. Schooning, on the charge of threatening to kill.

RUNAWAYS CAPTURED.—Three Indian boys who had some grimey great or small, took an unceremonious departure from Harrison institute Saturday afternoon.

COMING ATTRACTION.—On the 10th of October the Griesmer-Davis company, a most successful and popular combination will appear at the opera house in an entirely new play which has proved exceedingly popular wherever presented.

DEPOT FLOODED.—It has been discovered that the plumbing about the passenger depot had given out in some manner, and that the water was rising under the building.

DRUNKS.—Harry Dunn and James Johnson were before recorder Goodell this morning for indulging in the flowing bowl. Harry is liable to be severely dealt with this time.

NEW ADDITION.—Mrs. Rhoda A. Edes has had a plot recorded of 12 lots lying between Court and State streets east of 14th street.

MARRIAGE.—Tom Farley, the Dallas-Salem stage man, will be married to Miss Jessie Travis, at Falls City today.

THEY ARE IN IT.

Successfully Domiciled in the New Bush Bank Block.

The Bush bank is in it to begin with. It is in it big with about sixteen hundred square feet floor room, two big vaults with time locks, a force of seven officers, tellers and clerks, mints of money and a cyclone of business.

JONES & BERNARDI confectionery palace and ice cream parlors next door are about complete. The manufacturing department occupies the rear, where three artists compound the delicacies of the art that lures young and old to this establishment.

The parlors next in front are nicely furnished and will comfortably seat forty to sixty people for cream, ices, or oysters served in any style. The shelving, show windows and counters in the sales room are finished in cherry and redwood oiled.

UPSTAIRS are found offices, and in room 14 are the quarters of Fear & Hamilton, negotiators of loans and insurance.

T. A. Carson, attorney, has rooms 3 and 4 and is well known. C. D. Young, the South Salem lawyer, has rooms 5 and 6.

Geo. H. Burnett, supreme court reporter, has rooms 1 and 2. At the head of the stairs in room 13 is the real estate office of Booth & Beeler.

Seth R. Hammer, attorney, will have an office in the southeast corner, No. 12. The front rooms are not yet rented, as the radiators have not been put in.

Go Ahead and Pave. The talk on the street about other kinds of pavement is not to the point. What has been done has been as well and carefully done as is likely to be the case with whatever else may be proposed to be done.

Complaints of citizens over oppression by reason of expense are not really objections, because they will never be avoided or obviated. No improvement at public expense can be projected that will not oppress some one in destitute circumstances, or catch some one short of funds that will suffer thereby.

It should be remembered that this plan of street improvement is the plan of the conservative element. It is the proposition of the men who are slow to favor unnecessary improvements. It is a plan of street improvement drawn up under their own direction and reluctantly consented to by more radical progressives.

Salem should now go ahead and pave. Salem is the only city on the coast to indulge such an expense. In spite of the shrinkage and contraction in values all over the northwest coast Salem values have held up and Salem has contrived to grow as has no other city of its size.

SOCIAL.—The entertainment and lunch at St. Pauls Episcopal church last night was quite successful $18 was netted towards painting the church.

CAR LOAD.—Farrar & Co. are handling car loads of fruits of all kinds if you want the best call on them.

Best equipped dressmaking establishment in the city will open in Cottle block Monday. First-class cutter and fitter from Portland. R. H. Matthews, prop.

GILT EDGE.—When you are looking for gilt edge butter or anything in the provision line, call on Clark & Eppley, 100 Court street. Quick free delivery.

A MILLION A YEAR.

Lottery and Prize Schemes Used to Sell Alum and Ammonia Baking Powders.

A New York, concern, manufacturers of an ammonia baking powder, boasts that its yearly profits are over a million dollars. While, perhaps, none of the makers of alum powders individually can show so large earnings, yet their profits are enormous.

A business so profitable will always attract to itself those whose greed will cause them to utterly disregard the effect their traffic may have upon the health or life of others.

Alum baking powders are introduced largely by gifts, prizes and lottery schemes. A piece of glassware or china, a child's wagon, sled, a pewter spoon or some other article of attractive appearance, but of small intrinsic value or cost, is given with each purchase, or a number is attached to the can which entitles the customer to a similarly numbered article or to a prize of some kind.

As this that the trade in alum and ammonia baking powders, which has now attained such giant proportions and their consumption by the public which has reached an extent which is truly alarming. The highest authorities of all countries condemn the use of alum in bread without reserve.

In America the most distinguished physicians, chemists and hygienists have declared that the traffic in alum baking powder should be suppressed by law. In England and France, where the subject of pure food and its effect upon the system has been more fully considered and made the subject of extended experiments by the scientists, so serious a matter is the use of alum in bread or other food considered to be that most stringent laws have been enacted to prevent it.

These laws are rigidly enforced, and the sale of alum baking powders would not be permitted for an hour. Any one who attempted to make them for use in food, or attempted to use them for raising bread, biscuit or cake, would suffer severe penalties.

The ill effects upon the system of food raised by alum baking powders are the more dangerous because of their insidious character. It would be less dangerous to the community were it fatal at once, for then such food would be avoided; but their deleterious action because imperceptible at first is no less certain.

The puckering effect which alum has when taken into the mouth is familiar to every one. Physicians say this same effect is produced by it upon the delicate coats of the stomach and intestines. What housewife would take home to her family a can of alum or ammonia baking powder if she knew it. Such powders not only underlie the system, but it is pointed out that ammonia taken into the system in even infinitesimal doses day after day imparts to the complexion a sallow and blotched appearance.

It is safe to discard all baking powders sold with a prize or gift. What a misnomer are the words "Absolutely Pure," as applied to baking powders two of the largest selling brands, one made from alum, the other containing ammonia, and both of these drugged baking powders have stamped upon their labels and circulate these words absolutely pure, as a matter of fact they are "Absolutely Pure," as shown by official examinations.

GIRLS WITHOUT SENSE.

A Girl Who Thinks Young Women Should Be Prepared for Emergencies.

"Propriety and modesty and reserve are all right in their proper places," said a sensible, outspoken man the other day. But there is such a thing as carrying even the cardinal virtues too far. I was out yachting with a party of invited guests and a little accident happened that night, but for the presence of mind of certain members of the company, have been a very serious affair.

As it was, no harm was done, beyond a few bruises and scratches; but there were some exhibitions of feminine peculiarities which were quite new to me, and which made no little impression on me, as well as on a number of the members of the party.

"Something happened to the steam apparatus, and a pipe got out of order. At once the steam came rushing into the saloon and toward the staterooms. Several of the men rushed through the almost blinding vapor to the rescue of the ladies. The first and second came out all right, although they were just taking their beauty sleep, as it was half past 11 in the evening. The third stateroom was occupied by a rather quiet young woman, and when we rapped and pounded at the door, she seemed to think that we came on some errand of evil.

In spite of all our explanations and entreaties that she open the door, she only screamed: "Go away! Go away!" Shouts of "Fire!" and "We will all be burned to death!" didn't seem to have the least effect on her, and at last the lost, angry and disgusted, put his shoulder against the door, forced the lock, rushed into the room, and, seizing a large cloak and blanket, carried the young woman, screaming and angry, to a place of safety.

"By this time the steam was something dreadful; our very lungs were almost scalded. I had more than half a mind to suggest leaving the girl to take her chances with life, but she was a relative of the host and I didn't like to say such a thing. Besides, it wouldn't be nice, you know, to leave the girl to be steam cooked in a stateroom. I finally concluded that she must be out of her senses and would be all right next day.

"But judge of my astonishment when, on meeting her the next morning, I spoke of the accident and expressed a hope that she had suffered no inconvenience, she deliberately turned her back to me and stood looking at a bit of bric-a-brac on a shelf. I had shown her some attention and really had admired her very much, but my admiration turned to absolute disgust at her conduct and I have since let her alone severely.

"This she evidently was not prepared for, and is, I understand, deeply grieved, and feels hurt that I do not renew my devotion to her. But really I cannot do it. It seems to me that a woman who can be so silly as that in such an emergency isn't safe to be trusted in the many perplexing and trying affairs of life. There is need of a great deal of practical good sense and reason in the complex details of domestic affairs, and it seems to me that every woman and girl should be taught something of the necessities of emergencies, and above all should have a little good common sense ingrained into her mind from her youth up."

Some French Fighters. The history of France is full of great fighters, all the way up to Napoleon, the gentleman who traveled over Europe, owning it as he went, and leaving relatives and friends on convenient thrones. If any one revives the theory that Napoleon was not French, but really an Italian, remind him that the men who followed Napoleon and did the fighting were French anyhow.

Every American would have loved Dugesselin. Think what a Frenchman he was. He could beat anybody at any kind of fighting and kept at it all the time. When the Spaniards held him prisoner he whiled away the time challenging and killing off young Spaniards. Spain let him go pretty soon. How can we help respecting the country that raised Dugesselin?

Or do you like quiet heroism, with nobody to cheer and no band playing? Then consider the case of the Chevalier d'Assas. With nobody near but half a hundred foes with spears at his breast, he shouted warning to his sleeping comrades until the accumulation of spear heads in his throat made it necessary for him to stop.—Kansas City Times.

Emeralds of Value. Emeralds of value have been numerous found in Alexander county, N. C. They are discovered in pockets in the rock and a company is regularly organized at Stony Point for working the mines there. Some beautiful beryls—the emerald is a variety of beryl—have been secured in the neighborhood of Haddam, Conn., and the largest beryl in the world are obtained at Grafton and Acworth, N. H. From the former locality a crystal over six feet long was quarried, and another weighing two and a half tons. These wonderful specimens are of a pale green color. Such specimens rarely have transparent spots so large as to allow the cutting of even a small gem.—Washington Star.

Something in a Name. The Guest—How's this? Four dollars a day! Stopped here a year ago and paid only half that much. The Proprietor—Just so. Then it was the McGinnis tavern. Now it's the Hotel McGinnis.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Large Hats Push Down the Ears. Ears are sometimes pushed down and forward by the lower rim of a hat crown, and parents should see to it that no risk of this kind is run, as it brings about as great a deformity as though the wearer of a too large or heavy hat were born with unlovely features.—Detroit Free Press.

Politics had been quite warm in one of the rural sections, and there was a little family dispute going on. "Lucy," said her husband, "I'm sorry you don't like my politics any more, but I've got my opinions, and I've got to support 'em." "Well," she replied, "ye've got me an' the children, too, an' ye kin fix make up yer mind which yer family or yer opinions."—Washington Post.

ODDS AND ENDS. Complaining becomes habitual with many fault finders. "Tact can afford to smile while genius and talent are quarreling. To see other folks happy is hell to the man who has no love in his heart. The poorest man is not the one who has the least, but the one who has the most wants.

A billion dollars would pay for a trip around the world for 800,000 persons, and buy enough clothing to last 10,000,000 men one year. Parents and teachers are, to a great extent, responsible for the increase of defective vision in children. Much can be done to prevent it.

When your face and ears burn so terribly bathe them in very hot water as hot as you can bear. This will be more apt to cool them than any cold application. A new theory in relation to the moon has lately been advanced, to the effect that the lights and shadows of the moon are incompatible with the theory of its spherical shape.

Moorish Tradition as to Locusts. Referring to the plague of locusts in Morocco, the British consul at Mogador quotes a tradition as to them which was told to him by a Berber fisherman. It runs as follows: "In the interior of Sahara are people called Jeraduja or locust owners, who have control over the locusts, and they used to receive yearly presents from the sultan of Morocco, and they kept the locusts back. Every year a certain monster came to that place and it died there, and these people used to burn the carcass and then all was well.

"But if it was not burned, owing to the men not being in a good humor, then it putrefied and bred millions of maggots, and they became locusts. And lately some of these men came to the sultan and said, 'Have not people been complaining of locusts?' And the sultan replied that they had. 'Well,' said the Jeraduja, 'we are the locusts; why have you not given us our customary largess?'"

Another version was that the locusts came out of a certain cave or pit in the Sahara, over which some holy people had control. The same idea of potency of the intercession of holy men has frequently been noticed in causes assigned by Moorish fishermen for the periodical falling off or improvement in the supply of various important kinds of sea fish.—Manchester Guardian.

Profits in California Orchards. Governor Markham received $350 from one acre of orange trees in South Pasadena in 1888—the fourth bearing year—and the cost of production was twenty-six dollars. In the same year Mr. James Smith, of Pasadena, received $1,810 net for oranges produced on three and one-third acres, Mr. Frank P. Morrison, of Redlands, San Bernardino county, received for one year's crop $900 per acre, and the Hon. Scipio Craig says that seedling orchards in that county will average $400 to $500 per acre. Riverside is the most celebrated place for orange production in the state. Receipts per acre have been as high as $1,200, and $400 and upward are not uncommon.—Ex-Governor I. A. Sheldon in Forum.
