MOVING ALONG—One of the new enterprises in Salem that is now moving along nicely and doing a good business is the new dress making parlors of R. H. Matthews, in the new Cottle block. A professional ladies' tailor is employed, and the latest fashions furnished.

SHIRTS—Made to order. Ladies' shirts a specialty.—R. H. Matthews, Cottle block.

OPERA HOUSE ATTRACTION.—The amusement loving public of Salem will be furnished with a first class company on Saturday evening next by the first appearance in two years of the favorites, Jas. R. Grismer and Miss Phoebe Davies assisted by their own company, and no doubt they will be welcomed with a crowded house when they will present for the first time here Mr. De Witt Young's romantic military drama "Beacon Lights." Mr. Grismer is most capable and painstaking actor, as all the theater goers here are aware, while Miss Davies has but few if any superiors in her particular line of acting. She is particularly strong in emotional roles, but occasionally essays a comedy part, in which she is as bright as a sunbeam and lively as a cricket. Reserved seats now on sale at Patton's without extra charge.

RAILROAD COMMISSION.—The new schedule of the Union Pacific shows a reduction of 9c. per local ticket on account of their correction of a distance tariff. This makes a saving of $90 on each thousand local tickets sold out or into Portland, instead of $70, as previously reported. The Sumpter Valley Railroad Co. operating its line out of Baker City has submitted a freight tariff. The Portland & Vancouver Motor line has also come under the jurisdiction of the commission, as it does a freight business, as well as passenger. No conclusion has been reached in the cases of the engineer killed at Medford or of Hamilton.

CITY COUNCIL.—The city council meets this evening to dispose of paving. The council will be held responsible for whatever action it takes, no matter what outsiders may do or say. It can take no action that will not meet with some opposition from somewhere, but as a rule this afterwards disappears and all are happy. That was the case with removing signs and wooden awnings and it will be so with paving. The main thing is to pave the streets.

C. L. S. C.—The Willamette circle met at the McNary residence on Commercial street Monday evening. The circle is now fairly organized and this is its first actual work. The special study of this circle is the Willamette valley—its history, development and literature. The poem "Beautiful Willamette," which will appear in tomorrow's JOURNAL, was read and the circle requested its publication. Eleven members were present, and three others are expected next week. Under the efficient management of Rev. Whitaker the organization promises to be a very interesting affair.

SIGNBOARDS.—If you want to learn something new and interesting on this subject, go to the Baptist church next Friday evening and hear Dr. John Gordon, pastor of the First Baptist church of Portland, deliver his lecture on "Signboards." Dr. Gordon is one of the leading men in his denomination on this coast. Those who have heard him speak very highly of his ability as a lecturer. Admission 25 cents.

REAL ESTATE.—Twenty instruments were filed at the recorder's office Monday transferring Salem real estate at good prices. The big harvest has put a good deal of money into circulation, and only part of the crops are harvested. Lots and land are selling at advancing prices.

THREE C. D.'S.—Three common drunks engaged the attention of the recorder's court this morning. Two paid the usual fine of $10 and costs, while a third serves five days.

ACCEPTED.—The resignation of Steward Irwin has been acted upon by Superintendent Rowland, and Mr. Conner has been appointed his successor. Mr. Irwin will continue in the service for a few days.

THE CASH STORE CAN AND OUGHT to under sell the time store. Don't forget the new Blue Front Cheap Cash Grocery. They WILL do it.

A DOG'S BRAVERY DISPLAYED.
A Manifestation of Unsuspected Qualities in a Great Starved Sater.
The existence of a quality in a being is often unsuspected and remains unknown, even to the owner, until some sudden emergency brings it forth.
This was strikingly illustrated by a stirring little episode which electrified the Pine hills last long since.
Up on these hills lives a Gordon setter of mature years. This dog is a dog of an exceedingly pacific disposition. It cannot be truly said "that he would not hurt a fly," but he draws the line at flies. To be sure, he is a terror to cats, but only when they flee before him. If even a kitten turns and faces him he stops in his headlong career, sits down, wags his tail and inspects the kitten blandly.
Once the ladies of the family discovered a rat. They called the dog into the room, then asserted their feminine instincts by mounting chairs and tables and awaiting results. And this dog followed that rat around the room, sniffing at it and occasionally accelerating its pace by a poke from his nose until it got away down a hole. So it may be readily seen how harmless and peaceful he is. Every child on the Pine hills has pulled his tail, a harsh word causes that tail to droop deprecatingly.
A short time ago his owner brought home a bulldog weighing forty-five pounds. Now a bulldog is organized, both mentally and physically, entirely with reference to combat, and a forty-five pound bulldog represents a terrible instrument of warfare.
The chain which held this dangerous compound of bone, sinew, brutality and jaw was apparently strong, but when the bulldog saw the setter waging his tail in greeting he rent asunder his bonds and pinned that setter by the throat.
The neighbors gathered from far and near, with sympathy and suggestion. A crowbar was actually used as a pry in the bulldog's mouth, without effect, ammunition proved useless; a hose was turned upon him, but his iron jaw held firmly to the setter's throat. Finally the victim tore his throat away from that awful grip, leaving the bulldog's mouth filled with setter flesh.
Then what did that setter do; that peaceful dog, who would not harm a rat, who was cowed by a word? Of course he presented a black streak as he disappeared through Allen street on route for his old Lark street home.
Did he? Well, no.
The hired man, who was of a figurative turn of mind, said that "he riz upon his hind legs like a hopponthous us," an expression fanciful but obscure. In plain English he developed suddenly into an awful fighter; he attacked that bulldog in a manner terrible to behold. A lady fainted at the sight.
He destroyed his enemy's internal economy; he dug huge pits in his flesh; he caused an almost complete dissolution of continuity between the bulldog's fore leg and his body. He tore him till he dropped for dead, and then, like the lady specter, Maida fainted clean away.
And the next day he was discovered in the barn, shoving a rat around with his nose and making it squeal for his amusement.
He is now regarded by the children as a great warrior, yet they pull his tail with impunity as of yore. And the children of these children will know, many years from now, the story of Maida and the bulldog.—Albany Argus.

Their Way.
Concerning the manners and customs of the savages of Mount Sylvia, Formosa, Mr. E. Colborne Baber related the following incident before the Royal Geographical society:
A party of English officers from a man-of-war landed on the island, and meeting a company of natives armed with matchlocks challenged them to a trial of skill in shooting.
Affixing a mark to a tree about a hundred yards distant, the officers made what they considered pretty fair practice, without, however, astonishing the natives, who, when it came their turn to fire, disappeared in the jungle like one man, and crawled on their bellies through the undergrowth to a point about three yards from the target, which of course they all hit exactly in the center.
When the Englishmen protested that such a method of conducting the competition was hardly fair, the natives replied:
"We do not understand what you mean by 'fair,' but anyhow, that is the way we shoot Chinamen."—Youth's Companion.

Why the Boys Leave the Farm.
The answer is self evident—perpetual toil in good weather all through the busy season, and perpetual loneliness in bad weather and most of the winter season. The time when the farmers have leisure is, in half the country, the very time when they cannot get away from home by reason of their isolation and bad roads; yet such is the hunger of the heart that the boys revolt against this unendurable loneliness and even now often walk miles through the rain or the snow to spend half a day in sitting around the stove in the country store. Already, in many sections, the young people of both sexes have broken through the barriers and established farmers' clubs and little societies of one sort or another, and improved roads have done much to aid this relief. But why should not this natural tendency be reasonably directed, and all ages and both sexes enjoy their long winter evenings together.—John W. Book-walter in Forum.

Fruit Stones Made Costly.
The stones of certain kinds of dates, like those of Rosetta and Burios, being rather large, are carved and pierced to make beads for rosaries. The stones of a species of Canarium (often called peach stones) are beautifully and elaborately carved by the Chinese, and when set in gold or separated by gold filigree beads form exceedingly handsome brooches and bracelets. Amoy is renowned for this kind of work, and some of these beads cost a dollar each, a very large sum, when the slight remuneration in China for skilled labor and the cost of native living are borne in mind.—Chambers' Journal.

Yachts and Sharpies.
The centerboard sloop is by most thought the fastest kind of yacht, and very many successful racers, from the big Volunteer to the little twenty footer winners in yacht club regattas, have no doubt been sloops. But the sloop rig is not by any means the safest and handiest for comfortable cruising. The yawl and sharpie are much safer and handier than the catboat and sloop.
The yawl has an extra sail set at the stern. This is called a "driver," "mizzen," "figger" or "dandy," and it is a veritable friend in need at all times, requiring no care, and being always ready to save you from a capsize and to help you in every maneuver. Its position is such that it always tends to luff the boat.
If a squall strikes a yawl she may right herself because of the pressure on this little driver; if a severe blow comes on you can sail in safety with jib and driver alone, the mainsail being furled; in fact, the yawl with her mainsail down is perfectly manageable and as safe as can be.
No reefing is necessary; just lower the mainsail, and your yawl is "reefed" at once for the worst kind of weather. There is always plenty of driving sail behind, and with the jib in front to balance this your boat is under full control. No sloop or catboat possesses such attributes of handiness and safety.
—F. W. Pangborn in St. Nicholas.

Benedict Arnold's Drug Store.
It is not generally known, even to those interested in matters historical, that Benedict Arnold in his younger days kept an apothecary's shop here. He was born in Norwich, in a pretentious house still standing, and Dr. La-throp taught him the drug business in a little shop in the village street. Arnold removed to New Haven and started a drug shop, where he dealt out pills and nostrums to the townspeople, whom he later treated to pills of which lead was the principal ingredient.
The old sign which swung in front of the drug shop is now an interesting relic in the possession of the Historical society, the word "From London" being a clever dodge which he played on the gullible Yankees.
Surrounded by freight trains and lumber yards in Water street stands the house in which Arnold lived. It is a roomy structure. A pathway bordered by boxwood leads to a covered porch, on either side of which is a seat. The waters of New Haven bay came up to the gate of the house in years gone by, and Water street was then lined with handsome villas belonging to wealthy residents. At the lower end was the fashionable Pavilion hotel, now a factory.—New Haven Cor. New York Sun.

An Advertising Trick.
One of the most amusing incidents relative to sleek advertising was a trick on the Chicago newspapers several years ago. One of the partners of a firm went into court and filed a bill for injunction to restrain the other partner from sacrificing the goods in their store at figures far below first cost.
The plaintiff set forth in detail that his partner had with some insane desire marked all the goods in the store down below cost. Then he went into details and showed how different articles were being sacrificed, notwithstanding his protest, and asked the court to issue an injunction and restrain the fractions partner. It was a strange fight, and the newspapers took it up and devoted columns to the novel case.
The result was that people on the lookout for bargains flocked to the store and purchased goods. Day after day the hearing for an injunction was delayed, and finally, when the free ad had been worked to its end, the suit was dismissed without prosecution, the whole cost to the firm for thousands of dollars' worth of advertising being about twenty-five dollars.—London Tit-Bits.

A Boon to Travelers.
Anything that will reduce the rattle and vibration of the ordinary railway car is a boon to the traveling man. A new appliance which is said to possess this qualification in a marked degree is the cushion car wheel, which has the additional advantages of being simple, safe, economical and noiseless. The wheel is composed of two parts, the center and the tire, while between the two is a thick rubber band which acts as a cushion to absorb all the vibrations.
The tire is so made that it may be removed without taking the wheel from the axle. The rubber is so placed between the center and the tire as not to be liable to injury from a hot box or from the corrosive action of the lubricants. The rubber will run 20,000 miles without showing the slightest signs of wear, and in a similar distance the wear of the tire is but one-thirty-second of an inch, which is less than one-half the usual wear for this amount of travel.—Philadelphia Press.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
CURE SICK HEADACHE.
Headache is the most distressing ailment of the human system, and one which is often the forerunner of more serious troubles. It is caused by a congestion of the liver, and is relieved by Carter's Little Liver Pills, which act directly on the liver, and regulate the bowels. When it is only cured.
Sufferers from this distressing complaint, but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who cure try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. Buy after all sick head.
