TEMPERANCE READING ROOM.—The Woman's Christian Temperance union have, through their own efforts and the kindness of our citizens, a reading room and circulating library. We have many of the best periodicals of the day upon our tables, and all are welcome to read; also take books from the library. The charge is 10 cts. for use. Our great desire is to enlarge our facilities, and have a larger and well selected library and an inviting reading room. We would be glad to receive any help in the way of books or money that our public spirited citizens may feel inclined to give. W. C. T. U.

DEMOCRATIC PLANS.—The Daily Eugene Guard outlines the following plan of capturing the next senator: "The Oregon Democracy could not follow a better plan next year than to nominate a candidate for United States senator to fill the vacancy that will ensue at the expiration of Senator Dolph's term. We believe that with a nomination of that kind Sylvester Penoyer could carry the legislature. His popularity with the people is unquestioned, and they would remember his unswerving integrity and true devotion to their interests."

PLUCKY BOYS.—Two boys aged twelve and fourteen came into the school clerk's office this morning and said they needed help to get books to attend school. They have been working on a farm all summer and belong to a family of nine. They are determined to go to school and get an education. Such boys deserve encouragement and the law in this state supplies all such with free alone.

IT GOES.—The property owners on the south side of State street, between Liberty and High, are talking up asphaltum. All but one are now willing to put in something better than gravel. THE JOURNAL is glad to see this movement spreading, as it believes with only a little added a much more satisfactory street will result than by use of gravel alone.

HARDY IN TROUBLE.—Representative Ed. Hardy is wanted at Baker City on charge of embezzlement. A missing partner named Manoles alleged a fraud of $800, and Sheriff Condit went to Marshfield and got the defendant. He is well known in Salem and highly thought of by his friends.

HOME SPUN.—Everybody likes the good old home spun of our daddies. At the Woolen Store you can find the finest line, and made right here in Salem.

The Word Enriched.
The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited, and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring-time or, in fact, at any time, and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

A PEDDLER IN TROUBLE.
He is Also Accused by the Police of Taking Liberties With a Lady.
At 11:30 Lucien Gautier, a rosy faced Hebrew silver plating peddler was arrested by Marshal Minto for peddling in the city without a license.
The YOUNG MAN is also charged with improper conduct toward a lady on Center street, where he called at the house, and offered his wares for sale.
"I do not want any," said the lady.
He persisted and took up some articles to polish.
"I have no money," said the lady.
"A nice looking woman like you does not need any money," said he.
At this the Salem woman ordered him out of the house, following up her command with an attack so vigorous that Lucien was glad to fly, leaving his samples behind him.

HE CLAIMS that all this story to the police is false, that some one is trying to blackmail him, that he had no money to give a license. He looks very sick, talks smoothly and will probably do time for awhile.

A SILHOUETTE.—The electric lamps throwing cross-lights on the wires cast a silhouette picture on a back ground formed of the side wall of the postoffice block that attracts a crowd of curious art-loving night-roamers every evening. The outline presented is as perfect as was ever chiseled in marble of the Venus de Milo, or drawn in the figures of an Apollo Belvidere, and so delicate is the tracery that all the entranced gazers unblinking insist the resemblance is altogether toward the former. The nude in art in this case is the felicitous product of chance.

Variation of a Popular Game.
There is a favorite game called "Who Wrote It?" in which the titles of books are given or bits of verse are quoted, and the company are expected to give the authors' names. But people have played this for some time and are beginning to find out who wrote them, and so the game has lost a little of the first zest. Why not make a change for once and take the names of the authors of the operas? "They're too well known," you say. Are they? Of course you who say so know all of these then. Who wrote Martha, Norma and Aida? Who wrote Lucia, The Crown Diamonds and The Magic Flute? Who wrote The Queen's Lace Handkerchief, Oberon, The Barber of Seville, Fra Diavolo, Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, The Prophet, The Black Domino, The Siro, The Huguonote, The Queen of Sheba, Zampa, Don Juan, Esclarmonde, The King of Ys, Carmen, The African, Othello, Traviata, Rigoletto, The Daughter of the Regiment, The Bohemian Girl, Fidelio?—New York Evening Sun.

Power of Expression.
Our language has a wonderful power of expression. On one occasion, we are told, a doctor of divinity rang the changes on "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear." "He that is accessible to auricular vibration," said the doctor, "let him not close the gates of his sympathies." Then again we have that old fashioned saying, "The more the merrier," delightfully translated in this way: "Multitudinous assemblages are the most provocative of ecclesiastical hilarity."—London Tit-Bits.

A Sure Sign.
Young Man—Mr. Tapeline, can you put a new right sleeve in this coat? This one is certainly baldy worn.
Tailor—Certainly, Mr. Downey. Allow me to congratulate you on the engagement.—Judge.

In a Fair Way to Do It.
Friend (sympathetically)—It won't be so very bad after all; it will soon be over.
Criminal—Oh, I've do doubt of it. I shall get the hang of it.—Rum's Horn.

HOME LIBRARIES.

Established Practicability of a New Form of Charitable Work.
The charity organization societies of some of our large cities are gradually extending their work among the poor and passing beyond the lines of simple benevolence. The Baltimore society is co-operating with the industrial education association and cooking schools in efforts to teach the practical principles of social science and to apply them to every day life, and in Boston an excellent work has been done by the establishment of home libraries.
A glance at this plan will serve to show at once its simplicity and the amount of good which it can undoubtedly accomplish. A bookcase large enough to hold fifteen books and five bound periodicals is fastened to the wall in the living room of a poor family, a boy or girl of the house, thirteen or fourteen years old, being made librarian and held responsible for the care of the library.
A club is formed of ten of the children of the neighborhood, who meet together once a week at the house where the library is. At these weekly meetings a visitor from the Children's Aid society, which supplies the books, is always present. The children then return the books which were given out at the last meeting, and take out others to be read at home. When this has been done the visitor, who is generally a woman, tries to draw out the children's opinions of the books and to quicken their interest in what has been read.
She also plays games with them, and sometimes teaches sewing to any who may have a liking for it. The books include fairy tales, stories of travel and the lighter kind of history, and so when the children reach the age at which they are permitted to use the public library they have learned to read a better class of books than they would choose if they had not had the training of the home library.
The cost of a library complete, with forms for keeping the records, is only $25. This plan is undoubtedly an effective means of benefiting the poor. At an age when their character is forming, when their ordinary pursuits and amusements bring them into close contact with all that is worst in the byways of a great city, they begin to realize that there is something better and brighter beyond their own daily routine, and are given an opportunity of enjoying a legitimate and elevating pleasure.
The books which they take home to read are read by their parents and by their older brothers and sisters, and the little librarian in whose house the library is placed awakens to a sense of responsibility and orderliness. The improvement spreads to the rest of the family, and the home becomes brighter and more cheerful.
The first of these libraries was started in Boston four years ago and they now number forty-six. The society which has charge of them says that "good temper, good manners and cheerfulness—what we must look for in children—follow directly in the train of the work. Interest in reading the best books is developed, the children's pride is stimulated by a sense of organization and proprietorship, home amusement and occupation become realities, the family tie is strengthened and individual character developed."—Philadelphia Record.
