

supreme court yesterday morning to urge his petition for a writ to prohibit Judge Wallace from proceeding in trying the charges of perjury and false testimony. Ex-Senator Campbell made an argument on behalf of Bruner. Campbell declared that Judge Wallace had overruled the usual customs by his proceedings in this case; that he had transgressed the law by appointing an elisor before it was shown that the sheriff and coroner were disqualified. He read from the codes to prove this position. Another point was that the rules of the superior court require the presiding judge to provide over the drawing of the grand jury. These rules, unless suspended, have all the effect of statute according to a decision of the supreme court. No order for a suspension of the rules was made, therefore they were in force and binding on Judge Wallace. The law distinctly directs that the names of the grand jurors be drawn from a box according to a list prepared by the judges of the superior court. At least nine of San Francisco's grand jury were not so drawn, and therefore fatal to its legality.

HOLDING NATIONAL CONVENTIONS
TACOMA, Nov. 17.—Franklin K. Lane, editor of the Tacoma News, returned from the east, whither he had been to lay before the Democratic national committee an invitation on behalf of the Democrats of the Pacific Northwest to hold their convention in Tacoma next year. Mr. Lane, in an interview today, stated that it was impossible to overcome all objections excepting one, and that objection was by the newspapers of the east. They think it would be impossible to get adequate telegraphic service from this coast, and the difference in time between here and New York would make it impossible to hold any evening sessions.

TO TEST THE WORK.
SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 19.—Governor Markham yesterday instructed Attorney General Hart to bring suit to the legality of the formation of Green county. It is directed that the suit be brought in any county that the attorney general may designate, and that the proceedings be of such character as shall test the legal propositions involved, before going to the expense of inquiring into the facts.

CLAIMS DAMAGES.
SEATTLE, Nov. 17.—Thomas Lambert, formerly employed in a saw-mill in Snohomish county, has brought suit against the owner Calico Dubuque, to recover $10,250. Lambert claims that he was employed in July, 1890, in the mill, his work being to run the log carriage. The leather band which was used in running the carriage was out of order, and whenever it became greasy, would slip off the wheel which it turned. It was necessary for Lambert to wipe the grease off the band at intervals. He protested against working with such machinery, and one day, while cleaning the band, he was caught and drawn into the machinery. His right arm was crushed and cut so that it had to be amputated. For the loss of his arm and the suffering of body and mind, he places his damages at $10,000.

COAL SHOULD BE CHEAP.
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—James Wardner of Big Blue Canyon coal mines, Bellingham Bay, Washington, has arrived here. "There never was such an outlook for cheap coal," said Mr. Wardner. There has been much more mined this year than last on the Pacific coast and vessels coming here for wheat are bringing a large amount of coal.

FIRE IN ST. LOUIS.

The Largest Drygoods Houses in the West Burn.

FOUR MORE FIRES.

A Horrible Death, The Late Eclipse, Destitute People, The Presbyterian, The National Convention, Farmers' Meeting, Civil Service, Salvation Army Tragedy, State and Foreign News, etc.

BIG FIRE IN ST. LOUIS.
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 17.—Cromwell's millinery store, Penny & Gentile's drygoods store and Crawford & Co.'s drygoods store, the largest stores of the kind in the West, and the Union market are burning. The fire is spreading northward to a number of dwelling houses. The loss will exceed a million dollars. Two firemen are injured.

The fire at 10 o'clock burned itself out, and two or three fire engines are now throwing water on the ruins to quench the flames that here and there are fanned into activity by the strong wind. The firemen deserve great credit for their noble work, considering the intensity of the cold weather which has increased ten-fold, and by the heavy wind.

LOSS BY FIRE.
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—A fire broke out in the carpet cleaning establishment of J. Spaulding & Co., on Telama street yesterday afternoon, caused by the explosion of a can of benzine. The contents of this establishment lent fuel to the flames, and the place was gutted in short order. The sausage factory next door, owned by Wanz & Emly followed. Adjoining the factory was a livery stable, and this went next. On the west side of Spaulding was a two-story dwelling and a stable of the Union Ice company. Both these places were severely damaged by fire and water. Loss about $25,000.

FIRE IN A MINING TOWN.
WALLACE, Idaho, Nov. 17.—At 1 o'clock yesterday morning an alarm of fire was given. The blaze started in Lyon's clothing house, on lower Sixth street, and spread to the adjoining buildings. Although the firemen were out in good time, the stock in the clothing store was totally destroyed. The loss is about $50,000, partly covered by insurance. The building was owned by Alex. Muir, and the adjoining building, which was occupied as a saloon, was owned by Joe Cambia.

FIRE IN MINNEAPOLIS.
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 17.—The wholesale house of the Minneapolis glass company and the Lind say Bros. agricultural implements burned this morning. Total loss will be nearly $200,000. Partially insured.

FIRE IN BROOKLYN.
BROOKLYN, Nov. 17.—Fire broke out at 2 o'clock this morning in a row of wooden tenement houses. The prompt work of the police and firemen undoubtedly saved many lives. A number of people were rescued from their beds when almost suffocated by smoke. They will probably recover. Wild rumors were circulated of whole families being lost in the fire, but they proved to be groundless. Loss on buildings is estimated at $30,000, fully insured.

FOUR MEN POISONED.
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 17.—A horrible case of poisoning is reported from Center Point, in Henderson county. Four cattle drovers went to the house of Joe Regan to collect money due them. Regan said that he could not pay the money, and asked them to give him more time. This they refused to do and said if he didn't pay at once they would levy on him. This angered Regan and he determined upon a plan to square the debt and get in a deadly revenge. He invited the four men to remain for supper, and during the meal brought in some white corn whiskey, of which all partook. The debauch continued far into the night, and one by one the men fell into a sleep, from which three of them never awakened. Next morning the four lay stretched on the floor of the dining hall. When found, Jack Baker, John Holy and Sam Wilson were dead, and William Hagelin was unconscious, but was afterwards revived. Regan is under arrest. He is considered to be partly insane.

A HORRIBLE DEATH.
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—Herma Wiese, a street employed by a Sausage store druggist, met with a horrible death Saturday afternoon in the lofty Chronicle building. He walked into the elevator shaft on the top floor and dashed with awful velocity to the basement, where the elevator cage received his remains, already mutilated to their descent. Death was almost instantaneous, and though the patrol wagon took him to the receiving hospital for surgical aid, it could be seen that the life was extinct before the body could be removed to the corridor.

Wiese went to the top floor with chemicals. He was seen to walk over to the elevator shaft and snapped open the fastening of the iron lattice door. Wiese jerked at the door, which slides back. The grating door was only a step in front of him. Wiese, like a man unconscious, or in utter ignorance of what he was about, stepped into the shaft and disappeared like a fish.

In his terrible fall Wiese bounded from one side of the shaft to the other, and at one place struck against the iron railing. His right arm caught the rail and was wrenched completely from his body. When he dropped on the cage his yielding flesh was tangled up so badly in the iron network that it took nearly half an hour to release him. Deceased was married, aged 35, and a native of Germany.

THE LATE ECLIPSE.
BOSTON, Nov. 17.—The eclipse of the moon was observed under the most favorable circumstances in this city, as the sky was cloudless. At Harvard photographs were taken, the plates being exposed five minutes, one at a time, the greatest totality being exposed ten minutes.

The plates were immediately developed and examined, the principal object of observation being to determine whether the moon has a satellite. No sign of such a body was discovered. Harvard also established an observatory in Arequipa, Peru, where a search for the satellite was also to be made. Observations were also taken at Harvard of the eclipse of one of the satellites of Jupiter. The eclipse began at 5:20 and lasted three minutes.

TWENTY MILLION PEOPLE DESTITUTE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The Tribune St. Petersburg's correspondent sends the following: Despite all efforts of the government, with the coming on of winter the distress increases in the famine-stricken provinces. According to the latest reports 20,000,000 people are destitute. These occupy 13 provinces, with an area of 500,000 square miles, more than ten times the size of New York state. This most fertile part of the empire is the so-called granary of Europe.

The death rate has been startling, the mortality being caused partly by starvation and partly by a general epidemic of disease that invariably dogs the footsteps of famine. In addition to these present ills, the weather is so unfavorable that all hopes of a harvest next year have rapidly vanished. The weather has been fair and dry, and the fall of snow has been very light. Hard frosts are now coming on, and the grain that has been planted has no protection against them. Therefore it will be destroyed, and next year will see only a continuation of the famine.

An ominous feature of the situation is the demoralization of the people. Famine has written "flood" upon thousands of faces. At first they take to begging, and when that fails they become thieves. When thieving is resisted, they do not hesitate to murder and arson.

Tens of thousands of peasants are now roaming about the country, all through the Southwestern Russia, as lawless as the wolves of the forests. In Orenburg they have not hesitated to stop and wreck trains to secure the supplies with which the cars are loaded. They also storm churches to secure the gold and silver ornaments off the altars. They have the fearless fury of starving beasts, feeling that it is at least as well to die fighting for food as to die of hunger without a struggle.

Horrible tales, too, come to hand of their cannibalistic practices. Desperate outlaws are said to have eaten the bodies of their fellow men, whom they have killed in their struggle for food.

THE PRESBYTERY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The New York presbytery devoted yesterday to the consideration of the report of the committee on revision, Doctor Briggs and friends being on hand. The professor succeeded in securing one or two important amendments to the report. In the course of the discussion he offered a substitute, which was adopted, as follows: "Infants dying in infancy and other persons incapable of being called by the ministry of the Word are regenerated and saved by Christ through the spirit which worketh when and where and how he pleases." Also other persons who have not been called by the ministry of the Word. Section four was amended to read: "Those persons who are called by the ministry of the Word and yet resist the Holy Spirit, and never truly come to Christ, cannot be saved, neither is there any salvation in any other way than by Christ, the truth and the spirit." Further consideration was postponed for one week.

FARMERS' MEETING.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 17.—Every known organization of American farmers holds some sort of meeting here this week. One of the most interesting questions is: Shall all interests of those concerned be merged into one? Hundreds of delegates are already in this city. Congressman Jerry Simpson, who arrived today, speaks most favorably of the alliance outlook. President Terrell, of the Confederated Industrial organizations (comprising F. M. B. A., Citizens' Alliance, K. of L. and National Alliance) says the purpose is to take action toward the unification of all labor interests, to adopt a platform that all organizations can stand on, so by united action they may procure the legislation they demand.

The hardest political fight will be made on the endorsement of the people's party by the alliance, the consensus of opinion of the delegates already here being that the alliance will not endorse a third party, but will endorse that party whose platform most closely proclaims alliance principles.

President Polk said that while the alliance was opposing Cleveland, it also opposed Harrison, Hill, and any other man who did not advocate alliance principles. "By the way," he added, "no doubt you have heard of the great combination of Stanford and Polk for the head of the third party ticket. Why, Stanford would not get one alliance vote for a cent. All these articles circulated urging Stanford for the presidency on the third party ticket are paid for by him. His circulation bill was a pernicious measure, degrading the proposed currency from the very start."

FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

INDIANAPOLIS, N. V. 17.—The supreme council of the farmers' alliance was called to order at 10:40 o'clock by President Force of Indiana Alliance, with nearly all the 120 delegates and 500 spectators in attendance. Mayor Thomas L. Sullivan, welcomed the delegates to Indianapolis. J. F. Tillman, secretary of alliance executive committee responded. After thanking the people of Indianapolis for their warm welcome and paying tribute to President Harrison he said: "It is farming and laboring people who feed the world, who fought the battles of this country and to whose energy and patriotism this great and glorious land of ours is indebted for its richest blessings, liberty and peace. It is not our mission to tear down nor disintegrate any honestly conducted industries."

CIVIL SERVICE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—In the supreme court of the district of Columbia yesterday the demurrer in the case of the United States against Charles Newton, charged with violation of the civil service act, was overruled, and the case went to the Cincinnati court for trial. Commissioner Thompson, of the civil service commission, this evening said the decision holds that all solicitations for political purposes within United States buildings are unlawful. The effect he thought, will be to practically stop political assessments and leave government employees free to contribute or not as they see fit. The decision is a complete vindication of the course of the commission.

CANADA ANNEXATION.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 17.—Sol White, the political union leader, received a letter from Markham, near Toronto, saying joint debates are being held there on the subject of political union with the United States and that they are attracting great attention. The letter also says many persons in that vicinity are in favor of such a union and are only awaiting the opportunity to declare themselves.

SALVATION ARMY TRAGEDY.

OMAHA, Nov. 17.—The coroner's jury last night returned a verdict in the case of Nettie Beldier, who shot Captain Hattie Smith, of the Salvation Army, and then committed suicide last night. A verdict of death by suicide was returned. Captain Smith is at the hospital resting easy, and may recover. It is learned that the Beldier girl had made careful preparations before leaving home for the commission of the deed, placing her things in order and destroying everything that might give a clue to the cause.

A BLIZZARD.

ASHLAND, Wis., Nov. 17.—A heavy blizzard raged in North Wisconsin last night, the wind blowing a gale and the snow drifting. Apprehension is felt for some of the vessels which cleared yesterday morning, with ore and lumber. If the storm continues at the present rate railroads will be blocked. The weather is getting colder.

PORTLAND'S ASSESSMENT.

PORTLAND, Nov. 17.—City Assessor Flower has completed the city assessment roll for 1891. The roll shows that the total valuation of the assessable property excluding indebtedness is near $46,000,000. Last year's assessment of the three municipalities which now constitute the city of Portland was net total valuation of about $31,000,000.

FOREIGN.

THE MODERN SAMPSON.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—An enormous crowd gathered at South London Palace last night in order to witness the attempt of the famous strong man, Louis Cyr, to break the weight-lifting record of the world. The modern Sampson lifted a 104 pound dumb bell above his shoulder with his right hand. Then he lifted one weighing 242 pounds in the same way with both hands. His third feat consisted in elevating a barrel, containing 280 pounds of cement, with his left hand. Aided by his thigh he raised it to his chest and then onto his shoulder. Finally putting on harness, to which a frame was attached, he lifted a weight of 2619 pounds.

"The Best."—Wm. Brown & Co.

WHY HE WANTED TO BE A HEATHEN.

Little Robbie Tended the Baby Faithfully, but He Didn't Like Them.
There were eight of the young Daers, and my friend Robbie was number six. He is a sturdy little fellow, with faded flaxen hair—he won't wear a hat and a very pink face liberally sprinkled with big brown freckles. It has been the business of Robbie's life to "tend the baby" and what a relentless tyrant that baby seemed to be! All day long Robbie pushed with it and waited upon it and played it around in the rocky perambulator which has been occupied successfully by all the Daer infants.

One hour, and one only, in the day was his free, that was during the baby's nap. Then little Robbie glared in his indignation. Into that brief hour he tried to compress all the fun that other small boys spread over the whole twenty-four. It was exhilarating to watch him enjoy himself.
"When the baby's bigger," Robbie told me one day, "then I'll go to school to learn to count, like Bert. I'll have a coat with pockets, like Joe's. I'll sell papers to make money, same as Fred does. But I had to stay at home to tend the baby now, cos mother's too busy. After the baby's bigger I'll get to go to play ball on Saturdays, 'n I'm goin' to buy me a bat like Bert's. Oh, I'll have lots of fun after the baby's bigger!"

But one afternoon, while the baby took his nap, Robbie failed to devote himself to enjoyment with his usual fervor. I saw him sitting on the porch steps all alone with a wrinkled brow and eyes fixed upon the ground.

"What's the matter, Robbie?" I asked. "Why aren't you playing?"

"Oh—cos!"

"Are you sick?"

"None."

"Have you been bad?"

"None."

"Come tell me what's the trouble."

Robbie rose slowly, still frowning, and thrust his hands deep into his knickerbockers—he had no pockets, poor boy! As he approached me I could see that he was trying hard not to cry.

"Say," said he at last, with great solemnity, "do you love God? Mother does."

"Every one loves God, Robbie, except wicked people and the heathen."

"What's the heathen?"

I explained.

"Do you think God's smart?" His eyes were fixed on the ground as he asked.

"Why, Robbie?"

He looked up with desperation on his face.

"Well, I don't," he exclaimed.

"Guess I'll haf to go 'n be a heathen. God's sent us another baby—'n I'm just disgusted with him!"—Amy Eliza, beth Leigh in Kate Field's Washington.

The Professional Beggar.

The professional beggar must be a man of some ability and he requires years of study and practice to make the occupation profitable. He must be a man of some originality, for the American people prefer variety even in the tales of woe told by the street beggars. The men who achieve success in the business are proud of their profession and rather enjoy being caught now and then. No part of the city is free from the frauds who are collecting the living they claim the world owes them. They visit every block and probably every house from the Battery to the Harlem river.

During the day they work among the fashionable residences up town and the wholesale districts down town. In the evening they swarm along upper Broadway, mingling with the throng of well-dressed theater goers and promenaders. It is there they reap their richest harvest from the out of town people, who are seeing the sights and have usually seen enough of them at that hour to feel as though they would be glad to relieve all the poverty and suffering in the world.—New York Cor. Chicago Herald.

The Use of Metaphors.

A speaker who attempts to use nautical metaphors should be thoroughly familiar with the sea and the working of a ship or he will strand his speech. A clergyman was supplying a pulpit by the seaside. Thinking to impress the truth more distinctly upon the congregation, many of whom were seamen, he drew the figure of a ship trying to enter a harbor against a head wind.

Unfortunately for the success of his metaphor, he knew little of seamanship. After putting the ship into several singular positions, he cried out in a voice intended to be emphatic:

"What shall we do next?"

"Goodness only knows," exclaimed a disgusted old tar, "unless you let her drift starn foremost!"—London Tit-Bits.

The Sign of Equality.

Mathematical readers will be interested in the following quotation from Robert Recorde, who introduced the sign of equality into algebra.

Records was the first English author who wrote on the subject of algebra. In his treatise called "Whetstone of Witte," published about 1557, he says: "To avoid the tedious repetition of these words, is equals to, I will sette, as I doe often in worke use, a paire of parallel lines of one lengthe, thus: =, because no 2 thynges can be more equalle."—Youth's Companion.

His Ambition.

"What are you going to be when you grow up, Harry?" asked Uncle John.

"Somebody's uncle," returned Harry.—Harper's Bazar.
