THE CAPITAL JOURNAL. HOFFER BROTHERS, - - - Editors.

PUBLISHED DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY, BY THE Capital Journal Publishing Company, (Incorporated.) Office, Commercial Street, in P. O. Building Entered at the postoffice at Salem, Or., as second-class matter.

A FEW WOMAN-WISE OBSERVATIONS.

A lady writer in the Orange Judd Farmer has made the following observations from real life: A neighbor came to me in great trouble last fall; his hogs were all dying; cholera, he supposed. Now as it happened I had noticed thro' the summer what poor feed they had, and took no stock in the cholera business. The trouble was the hogs were starved, and when green corn was given them they could not stand it. It is a shame that men will eat three hearty meals a day while their dumb creatures are really starving to death right before their eyes!

It was a dismal, rainy day when my neighbor fell suddenly ill, and the hired man mounted a horse for which the owner had refused $250 the day before, and rode at full speed for a physician. On his return he led the over-heated animal into a common stall, threw him some hay and left him. In the morning the man was well, but his horse was dying of what would be called pneumonia in the human family. It could as well have been avoided if the man had blanketed him at once, covering well the chest, and washed the mud from his legs with warm water, drying them well afterward with a coarse cloth. His services were got needed in the house, but they were in the barn.

It is laughable—or would be if the horse did not have to suffer for it—to see some men blanket an animal; they are sure to put it where it is needed the least. The chest is in far greater danger than the hips, but the creature is deserving of complete covering. "Pennywise, pound foolish." Isn't there such a proverb, and does it not apply to men who lose a horse, or at least seriously injure it, to save buying a few good horse blankets?

All last winter "somebody" threw her dishwater and such slops a few feet from the back door. Daily the irregular, key pyramid grew higher, and it was late in May before it was all gone and the ground dry enough to rake off. Some people always have a cesspool at the kitchen door; barrels and pails are expensive!

I saw a man start to drive along a road, but his broncos balked. Of course you think he got out and pounded them. No, he did not, he just induced them to turn around and go the other way. They are wont to balk, but he never strikes them, and save time and character by it, though he sometimes gets out of the buggy and tries leading them.

WHAT IS GOOD REPUBLICANISM?

There are a few persons disposed to find fault with the Republicanism of this paper. The fault-finding, we are convinced, is confined to those who view the party from the standpoint of what they can make out of it, more than from the standpoint of making it useful to the people. A public newspaper should be printed for all classes of people, but when it comes to subserving anyone's political interests we prefer a course that shall tend to make the party we act with of the greatest use to the masses, in preference to making it useful only to the professional politicians. The politicians can have all the party organs.

This paper is for the people. We hope to make our Republicanism the people's Republicanism. That is not the Republicanism of the ring, whether it be a Portland ring, a state ring, a county ring, or a city ring. The successful political newspaper knows no rings and knows no authority but the sovereign will of the people. It has no interest at variance with the interest of the common citizen and taxpayer, no matter to what party he belongs. Its publishers are partisans but not for revenue nor for rings. Their interest is entirely with the disinterested patriotic voters.

Being for free silver we stand upon the Oregon Republican platform of 1890.

Our position on convict labor is the position of the Republican platform of 1890.

Being for free sugar and an equal extension of the benefits of the tariff policy to the farmers as well as the manufacturer, we stand squarely by the McKinley bill.

We have no apologies to make for our Republicanism.

We prefer the good will and confidence of our thousands of readers of all parties to the friendship of a handful of politicians who seek to dominate the party and the people. We are confident that our course in Oregon politics is meeting the approval of the unthought and unprejudiced people. Growing lists of subscribers and unqualified expressions of readers, by letter and in person from readers, convince us that our course has been not far from right, and we shall stand by those colors.

SUGGESTED COMMENT.

There is a great future in the Willamette valley for dairying.

Common sense is a rare article. It is not fully possessed by over one person out of ten.

The Peoples' party and the Alliance are not the same. The Alliance is not a political or partisan organization, but many of its members act with the Peoples' party.

To live to do good and make money is not such a bad combination. The journalist is usually a person who exists without accomplishing the latter part of it.

THE JOURNAL New Year's edition will contain more information about the fruit lands and possibilities of fruit culture in this part of the Willamette valley than was ever before printed in one paper.

Governor Penoyer has no use for the modern Democracy, according to his article in the North American Review. He wants the genuine old original only pure article—with the words blown in the bottle—no imitation article.

The railroad men are determined to have their own way. Recognizing "the dictatorial power of the people over railway management," they are organizing railway employees' clubs in different states, pledged to vote against candidates who want railroads regulated. They contemplate forming a railroad party, representing railway shareholders and employees. It will not nominate candidates, but "hold and exercise the balance of power at the polls as between the two dominant political parties." It is claimed that the two classes of persons named have about two million votes, and that in allied trades and industries dependent on the railroads there are two millions more. It is a bold scheme. The organizations of farmers and other laborers has come none to soon.

A Leading Oregon Horticulturist. Fruits and Flowers.

In the death of Mr. R. S. Wallace, which sad event occurred Friday, October 30, 1891, Salem, yes, the whole state of Oregon, loses a most estimable young man. Intelligent, industrious, earnest and enthusiastic in the development of Oregon's resources, especially horticultural, he has done a grand work for Salem and her surrounding country. Mr. Wallace was a member of the state board of horticulture for the second district, and its treasurer. His interest in the board's work has been unflagging, the more so perhaps, because, being the possessor of one of the largest and best young orchards in the state, he saw the importance of arousing the horticulturists to do battle against the orchard pests. His young orchard of over two hundred acres, located just west of Salem, in Polk county, is a model in more than one respect, and has been the scene of some very important experimental work with insecticides.

By the death of Mr. Wallace, Oregon horticulture loses a most intelligent, enthusiastic and earnest worker, one whom all knew only to respect. It is sad to chronicle the death of one so eminently fitted to carry on a great work. Just in the prime of life, with most flattering prospects for the future, with a brain ever active in devising some new enterprise, whereby labor and capital could be employed, it becomes doubly sad to record his demise.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, 75 cents.

The coming city election in Pendleton will not be conducted under the Australian ballot system, as expected, the council concluding that the new law does not go into effect till June, 1892.

Hillsboro real estate is advancing. Less than a year ago Lawyer Rice bought a tract of less than an acre of W. E. Thorne, near Highland Park addition, for $3000, and Mr. Rice has just sold it to a Portland lady for $1250.

Merit Wins. We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arma Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. at Fry's Druggist.

Blackwell & Wilson started from the Harvey Fields ranch last Saturday with 300 head of the finest beef cattle that have gone from the John Day valley for ten years. The cattle were for the Portland market, and were to be shipped from Heppner.

Robert Carr, living opposite Shell Rock, on the Washington side of the Columbia, sent a "mess" of potatoes to The Dalles Chronicle, the largest of which weighed seven and a half and six and a quarter pounds each. Many others of his crop were nearly as large.

According to the semi-annual summary statement, showing the financial condition of Washington county on the 30th day of September, there were liabilities to the amount of $3,500.80, and assets amounting to $23,668.00. The expense of building the new courthouse will not put the county's liabilities at a higher figure than its assets, and it is not probable that the tax rates will have to be raised.

A careful estimate made by a gentleman interested in the mines of Greenhorn, and who is now visiting Baker City, says The Democrat, places the amount of freight shipped into Greenhorn for winter supplies at 60,000 pounds and there is yet much more freight to be taken in. The largest portion of the amount was purchased at Granite and Baker City.

A Safe Investment. Is one which is guaranteed to bring you satisfactory results, or in case of failure a return of purchase price. On this safe plan you can buy from our advertised Druggist a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Trial bottle free at Fry's Druggist.

On the 3rd inst., at Grant's Pass, in Jennings & Co's woodshed, a man named Berger, who came to that place with Dr. Davis some time since, shot himself in the head, killing himself almost instantly. He was about 25 years of age, and the cause of the rash act is supposed to be ill health. Henry Smith, who kept a boarding house in the same town, committed suicide two days later, shooting himself in the side with a gun. It is said that he was jealous of his wife and a man living at his house. He was about 35 years old, and came to Grant's Pass some time since from Missouri.

Some of the wool of the wild sheep to be found near Anacortes, was sent to an eastern manufacturer lately. The sample measured twenty-six inches in length, and was a surprise to all who saw it, the manufacturer stating that it was the longest specimen of sheep's wool ever heard of. About fifteen years ago these animals were turned loose on a small island in the Sound, and have never been shorn since.

At the Harvest of Death. Much grain is prematurely reaped by the scythe of disease that might have ripened to a golden maturity if "minor" bodily troubles had been attended to in time. Nothing is truer than this—bodily ailments not only grow apace, but beget one another. This biliousness, constipation, dyspepsia follow close on the heels of one another. Break together, the one perpetuating the other, and together a superabundant quantity of later ailments more or less severe as their cause is more or less disregarded and neglected. Impure chills, fevers, malaria and "bilious" indigestion of the kidneys, of what dire disaster they are the cause when not or but slight attention is paid to their early treatment. These "minor" ailments with Hester's Bismuth Bitters and Fowler's Sarsaparilla repel, who exact the forfeiture of life as the penalty for disregarding the means of preserving it.

A correspondent of the Kobe Herald writes: "We took a train on the evening of the 20th ult. to Tarui, which was as far as we could go by railway, and found that this place had suffered comparatively little. There were some cracks in the houses, and tiles in the road, and a few miserable shanties had collapsed on the outskirts of the town. Leaving Tarui, the first serious traces of that terrible calamity met our view one and one-half miles further on, at Ayada. This place presented a pitiable appearance. The village temple is in ruins and only one or two houses left standing. When across the bridge we noticed large cracks in the road, which became worse as we progressed. At Hin-sata-Mura, formerly Shioda, nearly all the houses were down and the streets quite impassable for vehicles. We had to toil over the debris of houses where all was unutterable confusion. Two temples were in ruins, and from inquiries we found that four people had been killed, and in the adjoining villages about twenty. This sight of utter desolation met our gaze to the bridge over the Shioda-Gawa, where our journey could not further progress, so our men shouldered our luggage. The sight from Shioda-Gawa bridge was awful and heartrending. The bridge itself was half destroyed, and on each bank of the river were ruined houses, with their late occupants' camping out under mosquito nets, old matting which had been dragged out from the fallen houses, huts improvised from pieces of board, and in fact anything which would afford in any way the meager shelter. In the bamboo groves near
