"A Priceless Blessing."

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is the best remedy for Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, and all the sudden Throat and Lung Troubles to which young people are subject. Keep this medicine in the house. Hon. C. Edwards Lester, late U. S. Consul to Italy, and author of various popular works, writes:—

"With all sorts of exposure, in all sorts of climates, I have never, to this day, had any cold nor any affection of the throat or lungs which did not yield to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral within 24 hours. Of course I have never allowed myself to be without this remedy in all my voyages and travels. Under my own observation, it has given relief to a vast number of persons; while in acute cases of pulmonary inflammation, such as croup and diphtheria in children, life has been preserved through its effects. I recommend its use in light and frequent doses. Properly administered, in accordance with your directions, it is a priceless blessing in any house."

A Very Common Want.

"Out of sorts," "distrait," "the blues," these are familiar appellatives for uncomfortable, undefinable sensations, accompanied with lassitude, nervousness, indigestion. Poverty of the blood, to remedy which an effective stomachic persistently used is the paramount need, is conclusive evidence that the system is insufficiently nourished because—and for no other cause where organic disease does not exist—the food is not assimilated. Reinforce the flagging energies of the stomach, reform an irregular condition of the bowels, keep up a healthful secretion of the bile with Hostetters Stomach Bitters. For over thirty years this popular medicine has supplied the common want of the nervous invalid, the dyspeptic and of persons deficient in vitality, an efficient tonic. To its power imparting strength is attributable its efficacy as a preventive of malaria and la grippe. Thoroughly effective is it too for rheumatism, kidney complaint and neuralgia.

"August Flower"

For Dyspepsia.

A. Bellanger, Propr., Stove Foundry, Montagny, Quebec, writes: "I have used August Flower for Dyspepsia. It gave me great relief. I recommend it to all Dyspeptics as a very good remedy."

Ed. Bergeron, General Dealer, Lauzon, Levis, Quebec, writes: "I have used August Flower with the best possible results for Dyspepsia."

C. A. Barrington, Engineer and General Smith, Sydney, Australia, writes: "August Flower has effected a complete cure in my case. It acted like a miracle."

Geo. Gates, Corinth, Miss., writes: "I consider your August Flower the best remedy in the world for Dyspepsia. I was almost dead with that disease, but used several bottles of August Flower, and now consider myself a well man. I sincerely recommend this medicine to suffering humanity the world over."

CHATS ABOUT MEN.

Both Senator Palmer and his wife, who have just taken up their residence in Washington, are enthusiastic pedestrians.

Henry M. Stanley is educating three negro boys, about twelve years old, whom he rescued from slavery by paying three cents apiece for them.

The first decoration bestowed upon Prince Bismarck, and one which he always wore, was for saving the life of his groom when in danger of drowning.

Ernest Longfellow, son of the poet, is tall, somewhat slender and has a few streaks of gray in his thick dark hair. He is said to look much as his famous father did in his young days.

General Lew Wallace usually rises as early as 6 o'clock in the morning. He takes some very light refreshment, gets into the saddle, rides a couple of hours and then takes a regular breakfast.

Among long haired men of today who are cited to show that length of locks does not imply any "shortness" of brain are Professor Swing, Alphonse Daudet, Edward Eggleston and General Roger A. Pryor.

"The smallest man in the world," a midget from Holland, twenty-four years of age, who calls himself "Prince Mignon," is exhibiting in Berlin. This little chap, who is exactly two feet high, is a perfectly formed human being, and his performances as an acrobat are really wonderful.

The only survivor of Trafalgar is M. Cartingy, of Hyeres, France, who is 101 years of age. He witnessed the famous farewell that Napoleon gave his beloved troops at Fontainbleau in 1814, and was present at the funeral of the prince imperial at Chiselhurst, among the veteran St. Helena medalists.

Since Lord Onslow has been governor general of New Zealand he has had a son born to him to whom he has given among other names the Maori name of "Huia." The Ngatiathuia tribe has formally received the child into kinship, the chief rubbing noses with him and the women singing the customary accompaniment.

The only American whom the king of Siam has ever deemed worthy to wear the decoration of Sacred White Elephant is General J. A. Halderman, of Kansas. The rarity of the honor conferred on him is indicated by the fact that only two other English speaking persons—Queen Victoria and Sir Edwin Arnold—have been likewise distinguished by the favor of the oriental king.

RAILROAD JOTTINGS.

The Pennsylvania railroad has opened its new depot in Trenton.

With all her 400,000,000 people China has only forty miles of railroad.

Passenger trains on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia now run into the Union station at Atlanta.

The Big Four Railroad company will build two extensive freight depots at Indianapolis. Each will be over 800 feet long.

The Erie railway officers have changed the name of Paramus, a small station on the Bergen county branch of that road, to Glen Rock.

Jay Gould has received concessions from Mexico to build two bridges across the Rio Grande—one at El Paso and the other at Eagle Pass, Tex., for the Texas Pacific.

The tax commissioners of the state of New Jersey have raised the valuation of the Pennsylvania railroad about $2,500,000, principally on account of the new Jersey City depot.

Judge Shackleford, of the Oklahoma City federal court, has ordered the completion of the Choctaw road, eleven miles, to Oklahoma City. The Rock Island will run trains on it.

W. G. Godfree, who has been for some time in the claim department of the Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas City road, has been appointed assistant cashier at the freight depot in East St. Louis.

The Pennsylvania company has decided not to make freight trains of its fast passenger trains by hauling two or three express cars and two or three mail cars, but on another train to haul the two classes of business mentioned.

The National Transportation association, composed of the boards of trade and other commercial bodies of the United States, has decided to apply to the interstate commerce commission for an order compelling railroads to adopt a similar form of bill of lading. If the commission does not act promptly congress will be petitioned to the same end.

A new match box is in the form of a folded carpenter's rule.

A checker board of jet and diamonds is shown in cuff buttons.

An expansible bracelet on the principle of the toggle lever is exhibited.

The bowl of a large spoon lately shown is made in the shape of a rose leaf.

A partly open pea pod, showing peas in natural colors, is a recent design in brooches.

The design of a novel brooch is a white heart with a serpent of emeralds coiled around it.

A solid bottom and a spout in a silver strainer for tea and coffee recently shown obviate the spilling incident to the use of the old fashioned strainer.

A novel bracelet has on its hinged links a series of overlapping daisies in white enamel and gold. The center piece is a larger pink flower with a diamond center.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Strangely Birthmarked.

There is an interesting phenomenon at Millvale. It exists in the form of a girl baby, born perfect in body with the exception of one arm, which terminates abruptly between the elbow and wrist. Apparently there is nothing phenomenal about this fact, for children born with bodily deformity are numerous. But to the medical profession the case is exceedingly interesting. The cause of such freaks in human nature was once considered inexplicable. When one occurred it was simply termed a "freak" and allowed to go at that. But now they can be explained.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ginter are the parents of the child. They keep a butcher shop in the north end of Millvale borough, at a little place called Bowerstown. Eight other children are in the family, four boys and four girls, all of whom are sound and healthy.

One day, some months ago, the father was called away on business, and, as usual, left the shop in charge of his wife. The shop adjoins the kitchen. Hearing a knock at the kitchen door, Mrs. Ginter proceeded to answer it. Opening the door she found awaiting her an old peddler familiar to that neighborhood. The peddler was a foreigner, by no means a handsome man, and having but one arm. The other was but the stump of an arm, which the man always carried exposed, to excite the sympathy of the people. Yarn for knitting purposes constituted the wares of the peddler. He was informed that nothing was wanted, but, like other representatives of his trade, he insisted that a purchase be made.

The misfortune of the man was emphasized by a special exhibition of his arm. The lady of the house became very much terrified, and finally to get rid of the peddler she made a purchase. The husband learning of the affair became indignant, but as time passed by the incident was forgotten.

It had almost passed out of recollection when on last Saturday it was vigorously brought back to memory. A little daughter was added to the family, and, strange to relate, it had but one arm, the other ending just below the elbow joint. In every other respect the babe was sound and perfect. Still stranger is the fact that the deformed member is on the right side of the body, which corresponds to that of the peddler.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegram.

Looking Up a Boarding Place.

This is the season when the young man is on the lookout for comfortable quarters. There are thousands of unfortunate individuals who drift into the city, obtain small clerkships or positions accompanied with meager compensation, without friends in the (to them) lonely city, to whom the thought of hunting up a boarding house is a practical nightmare. It must be confessed that the question of primary importance in consideration of "all the comforts of home" is the table. Provided the food is of an excellent and varied quality they will put up with such minor considerations as cracked pitchers, diminutive towels and coarse hemmed sheets.

This is how they find out the bountifulness of the table. In most boarding houses the dining room is in the basement. By passing along in front of the house at the twilight hour, by peering through the cracks of the curtains they are able at a glance to see the quantity of food that is spread on the table if not to test its quality, and with a little patience and careful scrutiny are able to judge even of the extent of the courses. In that section of the city known as "below Fourteenth street" it is not an unfamiliar sight to see these young men leaning over the areaway rails in contemplation of the condition of the tables around which are seated the boarders at their evening meal.

If the food is abundant, apparently served with dispatch upon clean table linen, the next move is to ring the bell and to enter upon negotiations for a room.—New York Times.

Exercise and Sport.

A new device in Paris for healthful recreation is called "the hygienic horse." A wooden horse is set on a truck to which it is connected by means of a rocker and a spring. The truck runs on rails, one of which is formed of flat iron and the corresponding wheels have channels which fit into it. The other rail is V shaped and the wheels that engage with it are simply rollers. As a consequence of the rocking motion which the rider gives to the horse the truck rolls a short distance upon the rails, carrying along a ratchet which slides along a rack between the rails.

If the impetus is sufficient to make the ratchet advance the distance comprised between two teeth, its extremity, engaging with another tooth, prevents the system from moving backward. If this result fails the horse returns to the starting point.

Several sets of the trucks being placed in parallel courses it is possible to get up races in which it will be the rider alone and not the horse and his rider that shall win, and a new opportunity to win and lose gloves and candy will be presented.—Boston Transcript.

Women Hiss Speakers.

Although the female suffrage bill has been abandoned by the Victorian government, in deference to the wishes of the Labor party, still political agitation has by no means subsided among the women and their supporters. The women crowd the parliamentary galleries, hiss their opponents and applaud their sympathizers in defiance of parliamentary proprieties. The object of most vindictive demonstration on the part of the ladies was Mr. Gillies, the late premier who said that the house should give no countenance to "fads," and that the adoption of female suffrage would, in his opinion, mean a political revolution and would lead to domestic discord.—New York Sun.

Almost a Proposal.

"When I get married," said Miss Flypp saucily, "I intend to be captain."

"I'd prefer you for a mate," replied young Mr. Codling.—New York Epoch.
