"A Priceless Blessing."

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is the best remedy for Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, and all the sudden Throat and Lung Troubles to which young people are subject. Keep this medicine in the house. Hon. C. Edwards Lester, late U. S. Consul to Italy, and author of various popular works, writes:—

"With all sorts of exposure, in all sorts of climates, I have never, to this day, had any cold nor any affection of the throat or lungs which did not yield to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral within 24 hours. Of course I have never allowed myself to be without this remedy in all my voyages and travels. Under my own observation, it has given relief to a vast number of persons; while in acute cases of pulmonary inflammation, such as croup and diphtheria in children, life has been preserved through its effects. I recommend its use in light and frequent doses. Properly administered, in accordance with your directions, it is a priceless blessing in any house."

Duty Called Him.

He was an old, gray haired man, and therefore felt himself privileged to remark to the woman who sat next to him in a bridge car the other morning:

"Purty sharp sort o' weather this is?"

"Yes, sir," she replied.

"Must have friz up the ponds last night?"

"Yes, sir."

"You feelin warm 'nuff?"

"Oh, yes."

"I'm glad on 't, for women folks nowaday don't half know how to take keer of themselves. I'll tell you one thing you never orter do in the winter, and that is to git out of bed in the morning and stand around on a piece of oilcloth. I believe that very thing has carried more Brooklyn women to their graves than you kin shake a stick at. You see"——

She crossed the car and took another seat, and after he had somewhat recovered from his surprise the old man said to himself:

"Can't help it if they do git mad about it. That's what killed my wife, and it's my duty to warn 'em about it every chance I git."—New York Evening World.

A Critical Point.

Harley—But if I have the heroine die in the first act, what the deuce shall I do in the second, third and fourth acts?

Lumley—Don't bother about that; the audience won't stay after the first.—Harper's Bazar.

Would Make a Good Wife.

"I was thinking, sir," he said, as he hesitated at the door of the old gentleman's private office, "that perhaps I'd like to marry your daughter."

"A noble girl," said the old gentleman reflectively. "I don't know how I can spare her, but I suppose I'll have to some time."

"Yes, sir; quite right, sir, and I'd like to have her, except—except—you know I'm not rich, sir."

"I know it," replied the old gentleman, "but you are drawing a fair salary, and I don't require wealth."

"I am glad of that, sir, but I was sort of thinking that—that she isn't experienced in household matters."

"She isn't," said the old gentleman, "but she's a wonderfully observing girl."

"Yes, sir, and I think a great deal of her, but if I take her to a home of her own, I'm afraid, sir—I'm afraid it would be hard, very hard. She was educated for a rich man's wife and wouldn't know"——

"You're partly right," interrupted the old gentleman. "But let me tell you something about that girl. She went to my closet a couple of days ago to get something that was there, and there was a pair of trousers hanging near the door."

"Yes; what of it?"

"One of the suspender buttons was gone."

"And she—she"— The young man was so agitated he could not finish the sentence.

"She noticed it," said the old gentleman.

"Noticed it herself?"

"No one had said a word to her about it."

"But she—she didn't"——

"Yes, she did. She sewed that button on."

"Please, sir, say 'Yes,'" pleaded the young man, "and—and if she'll have me let us name the day in the near future. And grant me one other favor?"

"What is it?"

"Don't, please don't let any other young man know about that button until after the wedding. I don't want to take any chances."—Chicago Tribune.

Economy.

Fogg—What, shaving again?

Fenderson—Yes. Brown and I were talking the other day and he reckoned that a man saved eighteen cents when he shaved himself.

Fogg—Instead of going to the barber's and paying twenty cents?

Fenderson—Yes. I used to shave twice a week; now I shave every day. I don't know any easier way to save $1.26 a week.—Boston Transcript.

A Harlem Art Gallery.

Noticing several badly taken tintypes in front of a shanty up in Harlem, and the sign, "Art Gallery," Mr. Manhattan Beach asked the artist:

"What do you mean by calling your establishment an art gallery?"

"Well, now, if you think it doesn't require any art and science to make people pay for their pictures after they have seen them, just you come in and try it."—Texas Siftings.

What the Matter Was.

Little Mabel, three years old, suddenly burst out crying at the dinner table. "Why, Mabel," said her mother, "what is the matter?"

"Oh," whined Mabel, "my teeth trod on my tongue."—Pick Me Up.

He Loved an Editress.

'Tis hard enough, in any case, to win a woman's Yes,
But pity me, O gods and men! I loved an editress;
With fervor I implored her to accept my heart and hand;
With gentle care she answered me, in accents soft and bland:

"We must regret we cannot use
The articles you offer. This rejection
Implies upon their merit no reflection.
For, while they do not meet our views,
We often must reject what others use.
Your style may not be ours, you understand,
Or we have similar articles on hand;
There may be many reasons undetailable,
But at this time the articles are not available."

BREVITIES

CHATS ABOUT MEN.

Phil Armour's pork packing business in Chicago is said to amount to $63,000,000 annually.

Bishops Wilmer of Alabama, Peterkin of West Virginia, Dudley of Kentucky and Williams of Japan are all Virginians.

Justice Bradley, of the United States supreme court, has established a prize in Roman law at Rutgers college, of which he is a graduate.

Archbishop Kenrick, of St. Louis, whose jubilee was recently celebrated with great pomp in St. Louis, is the oldest Catholic bishop in America.

William D. Windom, a son of the late secretary of the treasury, has been appointed chief of the accounts division in the architect's office of Secretary Foster.

At the grand receptions of President Carnot in Paris, the president does not shake hands with the guests, but bows to them in a solemn way as their names are announced while they pass by.

The recent purchase by Baron Hirsch of 3,001 square leagues of land in the northern part of the Argentine Republic for 260,000 sovereigns makes him the possessor of a territory larger than is owned by any other man in the country.

Amos A. Parker, of Fitzwilliam, N. H., recently passed the century mark. He is the oldest living college graduate in America and has been a successful editor, lawyer, author and poet. He was an intimate friend of the Marquis de Lafayette.

As showing how unexpected Governor Boies' first election was to him two years ago, his daughter mentions that she and her father had trunks all packed for a European tour at the time, and when the news came of his success the journey was abandoned.

General Agramonte, who served during most of the war on General Hooker's staff, is now a notable character in the City of Mexico, where he is the agent of an American Life Insurance company. He is still a lively fellow, and wears the badge of the Loyal Legion.

Emile Grainer, the French millionaire, is credited with having done more than any other one man toward the development of the state of Wyoming. In the eight years he has lived there he has spent $400,000 in the work. His first winter's experience made him a rheumatic cripple for life.

Herman Hoffer, a six-year-old boy, recently committed to the New Jersey reform school at Jamesburg, is a little over four feet high, has a blond mustache and can strike a blow that would do credit to a pugilist. He weighs 142 pounds, can lift 200 pounds, and set a barrel of flour on its end without the least exertion.

BEHIND THE SCENES.

Francis Wilson, the comic opera star, is the father of two bright children.

The story that W. J. Scanlan, the Irish comedian, is losing his memory is not true.

It is unlikely that Mrs. Langtry will ever appear on the stage in America again.

The northwest has been the most profitable field for theatricals so far this season.

Arthur Forrest, the actor of "Captain Swift" fame, recently lost his voice. He will recover.

A big fair for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America will probably be held in New York early in the spring.

Octavus Cohen, the well known dramatic writer, almost lost his life recently by taking an overdose of medicine by mistake.

Judith Berolde will play the leading part next season in a play showing a phase of American life not before utilized on the stage.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and Sarah Bernhardt are the only foreign stars, aside from opera singers, who have made money in America this season.

W. H. Crane, whose American play, "The Senator," has been so successful, says that he shall never again appear in a drama written by any but an American.

Augustus Pitou, the manager, gave up acting because he considered himself too short in stature to ever become a great actor in Shakespearean roles—the only ones which he cared for.

RAILROAD JOTTINGS.

One million dollars is to be expended on new stations, extra tracks and other improvements on the Lake Shore railroad between Cleveland and Chicago.

The new shops of the Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas City road at Frankfort, Ind., are now in operation. The machinery is new, and some very good work is being done.

James O'Leary, of Racine, Wis., an employee of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, who was injured by an accident in 1888, has secured a verdict of $4,889.

The Rogers Locomotive works, of Paterson, N. J., is building twenty ten wheel engines for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the cylinders of which will be 19 by 24.

The British Columbia and Southern Railway company has discovered a new pass at Crow's Nest 600 feet lower than the present one, at an altitude of 4,275 feet. Fifty different seams of coal have been discovered in the vicinity.

The plan of consolidation between the Vermont and Canada and Central Vermont railroads has been ratified by the unanimous vote of the stockholders of the former road. The plan had previously been adopted by the Vermont Central, the Consolidated Railroad company, the Montpelier and the White River Railroad company.

TURF TOPICS.

Robert Bonner will drive Sunol in Central park, New York, this winter.

B. C. Holly, the California turfman ruled off for manipulating Revolver in a heat race, will retire from the turf.

The 2-year-old stallion Monbars has lowered his record to 2:16¼. He is still a long way from 2-year-old Arion's 2:10¾.

It is rumored that either Orrin Hickok, John Goldsmith or Dick Havey will succeed Marvin as the Palo Alto farm trainer.

Old Eurus, 3, by Eolus-Majestic, died recently. During his racing career he won $71,553, was placed 83 times out of 114 starts and landed the 1887 Suburban.

Prince Wilkes, 2:14¾, the trotting champion of 1888, has broken down in South America, and has been sold to a Buenos Ayres liveryman for a small sum.

F. G. Babcock, of Hornellsville, N. Y., the owner of the great colts Voodoo, by Stamboul, 2:11, and Blake, by Nutwood, 2:18¾, out of Rosa Wilkes, 2:18¼, is constructing a kite track on his farm.

It is said that the McLewee race horses have been transferred back to their original owner, Frank Ehret. The string cost the brewer's son some $90,000, and in 1890 the horses won no less than $104,000, exclusive of bets.

AROUND THE THRONES.

Prince Albert Victor, of England, is known as a tricycle rider.

The Princess of Wales has the reputation of being the most tastefully dressed of all the royalties.

The czar of Russia and the Siamese king are among the monarchs who are alleged to ride bicycles, and ride them well.

The czar is a very busy man, frequently working till 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. No one of his subjects passes more time in hard work than he does.

Queen Victoria has an excellent memory for faces; so it would seem that the Prince of Wales' accomplishment in that line, which is well known, is a matter of heredity.

Natalie, the banished queen of Servia, is said to have shown resentment toward her son for his adherence to Milan, the former king, by making a will according to which her estates in Russia are bequeathed to Princess Shica, her sister.

The queen regent of the Netherlands will visit Berlin next spring. Great preparations will be made to receive the royal guest and repay her for the hospitable reception accorded to Emperor William upon his visit to The Hague. It is uncertain as yet whether she will be accompanied by the little queen.

FASHION'S DECREES.

Pale yellow is one of the prettiest shades for evening dresses, and is generally becoming.

The cloth gowns which were so popular last year are definitely taken up again in medium, light and dark tints.

A curious fad in the way of a white bed is shown. It is a huge white swan made of white enameled wood. The workmanship is exquisite and it is very pretty.

Black slippers and hose are still worn, but for an elaborate occasion slippers are made of the same material as the dress, and silk stockings are worn of the same shade.

Hairdressers announce that the classically simple Greek styles are tending to disappear, that the chignon will grow more voluminous, and some curls are to be added thereto.

It is the correct thing now to have small tables in one's drawing room entirely devoted to a single sort of bric-a-brac. A bronze table, for instance, is presided over by a low boudoir lamp in the precious metal, and various accompanying bronze baskets, small figures, trays and the like cluster about its base. Silver, Dresden, ivory and amber tables are other treatments of the same idea.—New York Press.

NOVELTIES IN JEWELS.

Tiny hearts of enamel, moonstone or turquoise, pierced by a gold arrow, are a pretty and suggestive present as a stickpin.

A white enamel apple blossom with the edge of the petals overlapped with frosted gold and a jeweled center is a new and pretty brooch.

The bowknot grows more and more coquettish. Surmounting a stickpin with a jewel in one of its fluttering folds it adds the last touch to the toilet.

In gold rings chased bands, usually with a small incised border, are intended for children. These usually have a plain disk on top intended for the initial.

Comedy and tragedy appear to be favorite designs in stickpins. Sometimes they are represented by two hooks in pink shell, and again by a single laughing face pierced by a gold dagger.

The latest novelty in bracelets supersedes knife settings, with ornamental forms, in which the larger jewels have a cramp setting and the smaller jewels have a gypsy setting. This places them on different planes.—Jewelers' Circular.

ODDS AND ENDS.

At a recent auction sale of odds and ends in Paris a woman bought an old mattress in which she found 14,000 francs in gold.

A company of women is running two canning and preserving factories in Michigan. Not a man is allowed to work in either place.

According to recent statistics there are 5,500,000 women in Germany who earn their own living, a greater number than is to be found in any other nation.

A steamer from Auckland recently landed in London a cargo of 40,000 sheep and 2,000 cattle, frozen and dressed ready for the market, and at prices lower than those charged for American meats.

The Work of the Raindrop.

As every student of geology knows, the surface of the earth has undergone in past ages, and is even undergoing at present, the most radical changes in form and condition. From the time the earth had sufficiently cooled to allow the aqueous vapor in the air to condense and cover its surface with oceans of boiling water, change has succeeded change without cessation, although so slowly that the period of human history is too short to show any notable effect, and we are obliged to look to the records of past geological ages in the rocks and minerals hid beneath the surface to fully appreciate the results of the forces which have acted in times gone by. Mountain ranges higher than any at present existing have been raised up only to be worn down into sand, gravel and clay, and spread out over the bottoms of ancient oceans, which in their turn have been raised into dry land.

Volcanoes have appeared in various parts of the world, covering large tracts of country with lava, igneous rock and volcanic debris. Immense fresh water swamps filled with luxuriant tropical vegetation have been transformed into the coal beds of the present day; beds of sedimentary deposits have been covered up by subsequent layers, and baked and transformed by the internal heat of the earth into rocks that can hardly be distinguished from the primeval crust of the earth; while glaciers and ice fields have now and again crept over the land, destroying all forms of life and changing a country covered with luxuriant vegetation into an icy waste like that of Greenland at the present day.—Popular Science News.

How It Was Done.

This is what Mr. Gall wrote on a postal card one evening, and then went five blocks to drop it into a letter box after addressing the card to the editor of The Daily Bugle:

"Mr. C. Charles Gall, of the well known and justly popular firm of Gall & Gritt, leaves tomorrow evening for an extensive southern trip, accompanied by his estimable wife."

And this is a bit of conversation Mr. Gall had with one of his neighbors who met him in the horse car the next morning:

"Hello, Gall," said the neighbor. "I see by this morning's Bugle that you and Mrs. Gall intend going on a trip south."

"Ha, so the Bugle fellows have got hold of that, have they? Hang these newspaper reporters, anyhow! There's no keeping anything from them. I haven't seen a Bugle man for a month and haven't spoken about our trip to three persons and yet those Bugle fellows have got hold of it. Hanged if I ain't a mind to send the editor a note and tell him I wish he'd let me and my private affairs alone after this. It's a little annoying, you know, to have one's name bandied around so common like in the papers. I hate publicity of that sort."—Detroit Free Press.

Nantucket a Pioneer in Woman's Clubs.

It is rather an accepted idea that the dwellers at Nantucket, good thrifty souls though they be, are deplorably behind the times—a notion largely founded on the continued existence of the ancient street crier and night watchman. In point of fact, according to a native woman of the quaint old town, Nantucket is one of the pioneers in the way of woman's clubs.

"Thirty years ago," she says, "we had a flourishing Shakespeare class, and we have never been without a similar organization since"—and everybody knows that the Shakespeare classes were the evolution of the woman's club out of the prehistoric sewing society. No town which sheltered the childhood of Maria Mitchell can be without serious distinction, and Nantucket never forgets this.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

The Hours Doctors Work.

The doctor's calling looks very different inside from what it does outside. A great many medical men refuse on any condition to put their sons into medicine. They have found the profession an occupation of unceasing, harassing and responsible work with poor pay. It must be admitted that the general practitioner in a third rate neighborhood has but a melancholy time of it.

An eight hours' working day would be almost heaven for them. A sixteen hours' day is a very common experience. Many a doctor who works sixteen hours a day and has two or three disturbed nights a week into the bargain nevertheless soon learns to think himself very lucky if not more than 25 per cent. of his hard earnings is lost in bad debts.—London Hospital.

The Superstition About Thirteen.

I went out with a petition the other day for signatures for the appointment of a notary public. The lines for the signatures were numbered consecutively from one to twenty something. I noticed when I presented the paper for signatures that nearly every man looked at the number of the line before he put down his signature. For awhile the signatures were scattered, but eventually, of course, all the lines were filled save one. That was line thirteen. On that line I was not able to get a name, and the petition went to the governor with no signature on line thirteen.—Interview in Chicago Tribune.
