SOMETHING SUBSTANTIAL. — Before the passage of the resolution by the council to declare the North Mill creek race a nuisance and abate the same, the affairs between the Mill Co. and the city were in a fair way to be adjusted. It is impossible to tell now what will be done, except that after receiving their orders from the council the city marshal and attorney will enforce the same if there is never another wheel turned by the mills of this city. THE JOURNAL was satisfied that for the favors asked the Mill Co., or at least its manager, Mr. Wilcox, proposed something substantial for the city in the way of additional investments. It was because of this, and only for this reason, that THE JOURNAL hoped a friendly meeting would take place and further investments be encouraged. Of course, the orders of the council will have to be enforced, and the result will be the mills will shut down.

GOES ALL OVER THE STATE.—THE JOURNAL has upheld the work of the state board of equalization because it believes it to be right. The Oregonian, which has always howled about the inequalities of taxation, now howls loudest at the first effort to honestly right the evils complained of. It rebels at the action of the board in the sordid interest of Portland. THE JOURNAL containing Hon. L. Bilyeu's argument before the state board to levy the state tax was printed in a large edition for distribution all over the state. Bundles were sent to each of the seven judicial districts for circulation among the friends of tax reform in this state. THE JOURNAL is glad to see the good work go on, and is glad to be able to do its part.

EQUALIZATION SUSTAINED.

Taxes Will Be Levied on the Basis of the Work of the State Tax Board.

THE LEVY AGREED ON.

The state board to assess the state taxes met this morning at Secretary of State McBride's office, and after consultation decided to make the levy upon the valuations as corrected by the state board of equalization.

The preliminary work will occupy several days and the levy in mills will not be made until Saturday or Monday.

The net valuation of the state is, in round numbers, $152,000,000 taxable property, instead of $123,000,000, as returned in the uncorrected rolls by the county clerks, a net raise by the state board of equalization of $29,000,000.

The state levy of Jan. 8, 1891, was 4.34 mills. On this basis the state taxes will amount to many thousand dollars.

OFFICIAL PAPERS.—In the official county court proceedings will be seen the action of that body in the matter of the new law which provides for publicity of the orders and bills allowed by the county court. THE JOURNAL does not believe that this is the final disposition of the matter. It believes that the public business in which the taxpayers are interested shall be officially made public and that a reasonable compensation will be allowed. THE JOURNAL believes the members of the court acted in good faith in making the selection they did but fixing the compensation at one cent per square or about two bits per column is for the purpose of nullifying the law and the defeating publicity which the people demand. When it is remembered that on a certain public work thousands of dollars were expended, over several months, before ever any order of the county court of this county was entered of record, or the public had any means of knowing what was done, the necessity of requiring official publicity is apparent to taxpayers. The actions of this court from day to day can only be made public to the people according to this law and in the interest of a certain ring it is proposed to nullify this law by resort to a technicality. It remains to be seen whether it can be done or not.

PROHIBITION CLUB.—A meeting at Good Templar's hall Tuesday evening was well attended and Rev. Geo. W. White delivered an address on the injurious effects of alcohol on the human system. It was an able effort and treated logically and scientifically the evil effects of the poison. Mr. White is to deliver a series of lectures for the club.

ALBANY DEADLOCK.—At the council meeting in Albany last night all the city officers were elected, except street commissioner, over which office a hot contest was had. Sixty ballots were taken when it was still a tie, and as there was no hope of breaking the deadlock, the matter was deferred until the next regular meeting.

POLICE NEWS.—F. Baker, who lives all over the county, a son of one of the first men ever hung in Oregon, was before Judge Goodell charged with larceny of a gun from Michael and Schuyler Desart, on Dec. 29th. He was tracked by Marshal Minto and caught in the hills west of Oregon City. Thirty days was his fine.

THE SICK LIST.—A number of well known people on the Garden Road are still on the sick list. John Baker who has been low for some days is doing better. Nels Medberry is down with the grip. Mrs. Jas. Vaughn has also been a victim of that malady.

STYLE. If you like oysters in any style known to the art of cookery go to Hellenbrand's.

M, Croisan and Joseph Albert, were elected directors. At the meeting of directors, W. A. Cusick was re-elected president; W. W. Martin, vice-president; J. H. Alberts, cashier. At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the First National bank. The following board of directors was elected: Dr. W. H. Byrd, Geo. G. Bingham, A. N. Bush, E. P. McCornac and Napoleon Davis. The board will meet again for the purpose of electing officers.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the State Insurance company the former directors—Judge Thayer, H. W. Cottle, Wm. England, F. E. Hodgkin, Dr. L. L. Rowland, and, Prof. E. B. McElroy and Major George Williams—were re-elected. They re elected the following officers. Dr. L. L. Rowland, president; E. B McElroy, vice-president; H. W Cottle, secretary and manager; C. D. Gabrielson, assistant secretary; George Williams, treasurer.

[illegible]

Looks toward the desert's burning rim.

Before his tent the camels drowse
In the fierce heat; within, a bride
Is cast by curtains, rich with braid
Of gold, with jewels interlaid.

All round the sloping canvas walls
Bright cloths are placed; gay Syrian hues
Of crimson, green and purple blues;
With which stray sunbeams interfuse.

Adown their midst a striped skin falls;
Against whose fur sharp weapons lean,
Ablaze with steely light and keen
As any deadly Damascene.

Beside the Sheik a table stands,
With fragrant coffee, spices rare,
Dates that have known the desert air,
The wild fig and the prickly pear.

Beyond him stretch the burning sands,
Behind him pale Iskandra lies,
Nude, and with drowsy, half closed eyes,
Still dreaming of Circassian skies.

A lithe, brown boy close to his feet
Upon a reed a soft, low tune
Doth make, and sings an Arab rune
Of love beneath the desert moon.

Still grows the blazing, burning heat;
Yet ever toward the sand waste's rim,
Looks forth with gaze no glare makes dim,
Ismail, the Sheik, with aspect grim.

—William Sharp in Temple Bar.

Don't Get Up Too Early.

Poor Richard averred that "a man who rises late may trot all day without overtaking his business," but that depends wholly upon his gait. If his sleep has been plenty and refreshing he can trot pretty fast without causing fatigue. In a word, it is the recuperative power which we have gained by sleep much more than the time we arise which determines our working power in any direction for the day.

To be sure it will not do for the bakers or the milkmen who lie in their beds too late in the morning; but the merchants or the professional men need not get about so early, providing of course that their business has been properly attended to before retiring. The merchant need not be on hand much before his customers, who are not wont to stir about until they have partaken of their morning meal.

We are often informed that overactivity, not indolence, is the besetting sin of the average American; hence the nervous prostrations and their attending brain disorders. Insomnia with them is, alas, too common. And pale, haggard looking individuals are more often encountered here than rotund, well favored, comfortable appearing people.—Fannie L. Fancher in Housekeeper.

Effect of Sun and Moon on Edged Tools.

It is not generally known that the light of the sun and the moon exercises a deleterious effect on edged tools. Knives, drills, scythes and sickles assume a blue color if they are exposed for some time to the light and heat of the sun; the sharp edge disappears, and the tool is rendered absolutely useless until it is retempered. Purchasers should therefore be on their guard against buying tools from retail dealers and peddlers which, for show purposes, have probably been exposed for days together to the glare of the sun.

The unserviceableness of tools acquired under these conditions is generally wrongly attributed to bad material or to inferior workmanship. A similarly prejudicial effect has been exercised by moonlight. An ordinary crosscut saw is asserted to have been put out of shape in a single night by exposure to the moon.—Iron.

A Secondhand Dealer's Experience.

A strange adventure once happened in this way to me: My little son was sent for a walk to the park, not above a quarter of a mile from our place, in company with his eldest brother, aged nine. Here they were met by an old woman, who gave the eldest boy a penny to go and fetch some sweets, saying she would mind baby for him till he came back. While he was away she stripped him of his clothes and left him crying in the road, where his elder brother found him, on his return, with nothing on but his little shirt. It may seem strange, but it is true, that this same woman came and offered to sell me my own child's clothes.—London Tit-Bits.

Children and Gifts.

After all little children do it best. They are the superlative receivers, and it is because they are that we delight to give them things. They are frankly and delightfully appreciative. Obligations sit on them as lightly as air. They value their gifts simply by the pleasure they get out of them, and prefer a rag baby to the deed of a brick house. They take a jumping jack from Mary, the laundress, and a jeweled pin from Aunt Melinda Crœsus without the least distinction of happy approval. The nearer we get to their gullelessness, the nearer we approach perfection in receiving.—Scribner's.

Dickens as a Grandfather.

To some men who have vecu, and hope to vivre encore, the unavoidable position of grandfather is fraught with horror. Even Charles Dickens, with all his straightforward common sense, could not bear it. As little reference as possible was made in his family to the dreadful fact; the word grandfather was utterly tabooed, even by his children's children, who were instructed to address him as "Venerables," a comic conceit which, however, failed to hide the soreness with which the patriarchal condition was borne.—London World.

Pimples.

The old idea was that facial eruptions were due to a "blood humor," for which they gave potash. Thus the old Sarsaparillas contain potash, a drastic mineral, that instead of decreasing, actually creates more eruptions. You have noticed this when taking other Sarsaparillas. It is however now known that the stomach, the blood creating power, is the seat of all vitiating or cleansing operations. A stomach clogged by indigestion or constipation, vitiates the blood, result pimples. A clean stomach and healthful digestion purifies it and they disappear. Thus Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is compounded after the modern idea to regulate the bowels and stimulate the digestion. The effect is immediate. A short testimonial to contrast the action of the potash Sarsaparillas and Joy's. Mrs. C. D. Stuart, of 400 Hayes St., S. F., writes: "I have for years had indigestion. I tried a popular Sarsaparilla but it actually caused more pimples to break out on my face. Hearing that Joy's was a later preparation and acted differently, I tried it and the pimples immediately disappeared."
