trip around from Antwerp. She came in a general cargo and will load wheat for C. Caesar & Co. She sailed from Antwerp Sunday, August 30, 1891, and under tow of a steamer tug, passed Flushing that evening. Monday, the 31st, off East Goodwin, she encountered a gale right ahead, and the tug was unable to tow, so the ship made sail. From this to the Lizzard point, ten days, gales to calm with constant head winds were met. Here she took the first of a northeast wind which carried her down to 14 deg. north, 38 deg. west. From this to the equator in the Atlantic, she had squally, baffling head winds. There were no southeast trades and the ship was detained on the coast of Brazil with light and head winds. Cape Rio was passed October 18. When off the river Plate there were several fierce pampero squalls. November 6, at 10 o'clock p. m., she took the first of the ebb tide, off Cape St. Deigo, and by midnight had passed through the straits of La Mere, the wind northwest, strong and squally. November 8 Cape Horn was ten miles south. From this point the vessel encountered gale after gale, with hail and snow, and with tremendous sea, was driven down to 60 deg. south, 72 deg. west. November 18 there was another tremendous gale, the squalls blowing with hurricane force. The sea was lashed into fury with the constant gales from the northwest and southwest. One sea struck the ship on the starboard now, sending the spray over the topsail yards and into the topsail, falling in a deluge on the deck, the glasses down to 28. There was another tremendous gale November 24, even heavier than the last, with a high, dangerous sea. The ship labored heavily under two close reefed topsails and storm topsails. A number of vessels of various rigs were sighted, but not communicated with. The bad weather continued to 46 deg. south, 85 deg. west, when the ship took a south-southeastern wind, the first fair wind since leaving the trades. This wind, which was fair and steady, carried her to 7 deg. north of the equator. When the weather moderated the hatches were opened and the cargo, which had been well and carefully stowed, had broken adrift. Several of the cases of glass were broken, and barrels of cement and ochre were displaced and more or less damaged. The first of the northeast trades was taken December 22, strong and squally. In a heavy squall at 8 p. m. the main topgallant mast was carried away at the cap, going over the side with all attached. The lower main topsail was torn, and the foot rope of the foresail burst, badly damaging the sail. The vessel had good northeast trades to 26 deg. south, 130 deg. west, where she was becalmed two days. From this position to the bar thick fogs and almost constant rains were encountered. Pilot Stapleton boarded her at midnight of Saturday, January 9, and she arrived at Astoria under tow of two steam tugs Sunday at 6 p. m. The ship will leave up from Astoria the latter part of the week in tow of the steamer Ordway.

HANGED.

MICOPANY, Fla., Jan. 14.—A serious riot occurred Monday night between whites and blacks, crowds of whom had gathered in public to witness a tight-rope performance. A negro named Harry Hinson used insulting language in the presence of white ladies, and W. Jefferson Chittyn, a prominent young white man, ordered him away. Hinson shot Chittyn, killing him instantly. A free fight followed in which John Jones, a negro friend of Hinson, was killed. In the confusion Hinson escaped but Marshal Purdy organized a posse, and captured him at midnight. He was brought back and placed in jail, but early this morning a mob took him out and hanged him to a tree.

FOR ECONOMY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The war cry of the Democratic leaders of the house was sounded by Representative Holman yesterday, and if it is echoed by the Democratic majority today the policy of the party in the coming session will be firmly established without warning to the Republican side of the house. Chairman Holman, of the appropriation committee, presented a resolution declaring it to be the judgment of the house that the granting of subsidies or bounties by congress in money, public moneys, bonds, or by pledge of the public credit to promote special private industries or enterprises, independent of the constitutional power of congress, is unjust, impolitic, and is in manifest conflict with the spirit of the Republican institutions. The resolution further resolves in view of the present condition of the treasury, and because efficient and honest government can only be assured by the frugal expenditure of public money, while unnecessary and lavish expenditures lead inevitably to venal and corrupt methods, that no more ought to be appropriated by congress except such as are manifestly necessary to carry on the several departments, frugally, efficient, and honestly administered.

Holman demanded the previous question on the adoption of the resolution.

Meyers of Louisiana, moved its reference to the committee on ways and means; the motion was lost.

Henderson of Iowa, and numerous other Republicans, asked opportunity for debate, and McKenna of California, insisted that the resolution, if adhered to, would result in defeat of all appropriation bills of any character except such as were departmental.

Henderson inquired if debate would be in order after the previous question was ordered.

The speaker pro tem was of the opinion that it would not.

"And this house will cease to be deliberative," said Reed, of Maine.

The repetition of the charge which had been so frequently hurled against himself caused the house, Democrats and Republicans, to break into a roar of laughter.

The yeas and nays on the previous question resulted, nays 80, yeas 145.

Holman then asked unanimous consent for an hour's debate on each side, but, at the request of Reed, he consented to make it two hours for each side.

Simpson of Kansas, asked if this included the People's party, as well as the Republican and Democratic parties, amid much laughter.

The speaker said that he assumed that the division of the time would be between those in favor of and those opposing the resolution.

Debate went over until today.

DEADLOCK BROKEN.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 14.—The deadlock in senate was broken this a. m., Lieutenant Governor Poyner at opening senate said he was now clearly convinced only a majority of quorum necessary to elect permanent officers and not as he before supposed that it took a majority of all the members elected to choose such officers. Roll was then called on election of secretary and the Democrats refused to vote, the Republican candidates was then declared elected.

GETTING SERIOUS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—There can be little doubt that the developments of the past few days in the investigation now being conducted at San Francisco by Judge Advocate General Remy into the attack on the Baltimore's crew, the publication of the testimony in Shields' case, and the ugly demonstration at Valparaiso against the Yorktown's gig crew, have had the effect to create a very uneasy feeling at the capital. Senators and representatives who have all along derided the idea of any serious revolt following the Chilian correspondence, and had the greatest confidence that Chili would soon tender an ample apology and make reparation for these misdeeds of her citizens, are now willing to admit privately that the situation is full of grave difficulties.

THE BALTIMORE'S SAILORS.

VALLEJO, Jan. 14.—The Baltimore inquiry was completed late yesterday afternoon. It lasted six days, and every aspect of the affair has been fully investigated. The first four days were taken up with the testimony of men, who related their individual experience during the riot. By it these facts were clearly brought out—the fact that the attack was premeditated, and that that the police and soldiers aided the mob in their deadly work. The fifth day the medical officers of the ship testified as to the wounds received by the Baltimore's men, and as to the criminal neglect of the wounded sailors in the Valparaiso hospital, the authorities refusing to treat the men themselves or to allow the Baltimore's surgeons to do it.

Yesterday several senior officers testified as to the legal proceedings in Valparaiso, bringing out the clearly utter failure of the Valparaiso court to establish anything to the detriment of the sailors, and the care which the court exercised in avoiding any questions that might bring forth reflections on the Valparaiso police.

Then Captain Schley took the stand, and proceeded to give a resume of the whole history of the ship since first reaching Valparaiso. He spoke over an hour, clearly and forcibly, and was listened to with great attention by the audience that crowded the court room. He showed forth plainly the inception and growth of the anti-American feeling among the Chilians, besides the many discourtesies he was subjected to. He saw over seventy of his men on shore shortly before the riots began, and they were all sober. But, even if they had not been, he declared that he saw no reason why they should have been visited with capital punishment for being drunk.

GOVERNMENT CLERKS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Something of a bombshell was dropped Tuesday in the committee on appropriations by Representative O'Neil, of Massachusetts. He had the audacity to propose that government clerks work eight hours a day, instead of the six and a half hours which are now required of them. Superintendent Porter of the census bureau was before the committee detailing, with all the pathos familiar to bureau officers, how much he needed more help and more money, and what a volume of work his little force had to do. "How long do your people work?" asked O'Neil. Mr. Porter looked at him a little queerly and answered, "From 9 o'clock until 4." "Six and a half hours, isn't it?" asked O'Neil, "taking account of half an hour for lunch." "Yes," was the laconic answer. "Couldn't you accomplish 23 per cent. more work by making them work eight hours?" asked O'Neil. Mr. Porter fairly gasped. "Do you want to accomplish a revolution?" was all he could articulate. Representative Dingley of Maine joined in at this point and said that the requirement of eight hours' work would be a good thing. "How did you ever get it whittled down to six and a half hours?" he asked. Nobody seemed able to answer this question. Mr. O'Neil remarked that people who did hard work worked eight hours, and he did not see why those who had big pay and soft jobs should not work equally as long. The subject was not carried any farther, but it would not be surprising if O'Neil should introduce a bill fixing the working time at eight hours, or at least at seven and a half hours. There will be a terrible tempest among the department clerks if he does, and not a member of congress will have any peace until he has personally assured every one credited to his district that he will oppose the nefarious proposition. The subject may be seriously considered, however, by leading members who are looking to reduction of the expenditures of the government, and an increase of the working efficiencies of the departments.

PREPARING FOR WAR.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 14.—There has been unusual activity at the Hotchkiss Ordnance company's factory in this city for the past few weeks, and tests of the Howell torpedo by the ordnance board at Newport at a most unreasonable time of the year have, notwithstanding the repeated denials of government officials, given color to a report that the administration was preparing for an emergency. The Howell torpedo tubes are practically all ready, and the two torpedoes which have been turned over to the ordnance board will be accepted within the course of a few days. The work of finishing the government order is now a matter of but a few weeks, and if necessary other machine shops in this city will be called upon to assist in getting out portions of the machinery. Representatives of the Japanese and English government have been in this city within the past two weeks, investigating the reported results achieved by Howell at the recent trials at Newport, which were conducted privately. Strenuous efforts have been made by representatives of various legations at Washington to witness these trials, but none of them succeeded. Work upon the factory is being vigorously pushed under the personal supervision of Lieutenant Drake.

ROBBERS CAPTURED.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Jan. 14.—A message received from Wattsburg announces that Sheriff McFarland, of this county, had just arrived with two prisoners, William Cooper and Jasper Harsh, charged with robbing the United States mails at Huntsville October 22. Cooper was captured near Moscow and Harsh above Dayton. The former had in his possession a stolen registered letter containing a money order for $12. The prisoners will be brought here for examination before United States Commissioner Duvel.

DUKE OF CLARENCE DEAD.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The Duke of Clarence, eldest son of the Prince of Wales and heir presumptive to the British throne, died at 9 o'clock today.

The news of his death caused widespread grief. Flags at half mast are displayed everywhere.

Prince Albert Victor Christian Edward was born Jan. 8, 1864. He was the eldest son of the Prince of Wales, and consequently in direct line of succession to the throne. He was to have been married to princess Victoria Maria of Teck January 27. By the death of the Duke of Clarence, the next person to the Prince of Wales in the line of direct succession is Prince George of Wales, brother of the duke.

UNITED STATES NAVY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The navy department was informed that the gunboat Bennington arrived at Montevideo yesterday. It is expected that the Atlanta will arrive there today. These two vessels will increase the American fleet at that point to five, the others being the flagship Chicago and the Essex and the Yantic. These will all be available in case the negotiations with Chili should assume a more warlike aspect than at present. The Philadelphia, Concord and Kearsarge are at Port au Prince and could be utilized in the event of prolonged trouble, together with the Miantonomoh, at New York, and the Newark, at Norfolk. The disposition of the vessels on the Pacific station is as follows:

The San Francisco and Charleston at San Diego, Baltimore and Mohican at San Francisco, Pensacola at Honolulu, Boston at Callao, Yorktown at Valparaiso, and the Iriquois at Samoa.

Cramp, the Philadelphia shipbuilder was at the navy department yesterday, in conference with the officials in regard to the condition of work on the naval vessels now under construction at his yard. He said the work was progressing as rapidly as possible, but was hampered somewhat by a scarcity of material. For this reason he could not say positively when cruiser No. 12, better known as the Pirate, will be under way. She will, however, be ready for launching in May.

NOMINATIONS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The president today nominated the following postmasters: In Idaho, Marcus Whitman at Montpelier; in Washington, John T. Lobaugh at Pullman; in Oregon, Wm. N. Crosley at Forest Grove. John Watts, register of the land office at Lakeview, Or.

RAILROAD RATES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—At the general meeting today of the transcontinental association the following roads have not reported: Rock Island, Denver and Rio Grande, Great Northern, Oregon railway and Navigation company, Oregon and California and the Rio Grande Western. The subject of discussion was rates between points west of the Missouri river. The warlike proceedings of the western traffic association on the subject of cut rates has not effected the transcontinental association.

THE BALTIMORE AGROUND.

VALLEJO, Cal., Jan. 14.—Water was let into the dry dock yesterday, and the cruiser Baltimore once more floated. At 1 o'clock, being high tide, she hauled out. The tide was running furiously and her hawsers snapped like thread. The vessel was caught in the current and whirled over to the Vallejo side. An anchor was dropped, but not in time, and the big cruiser brought up in the mud almost against the wharf. The tide falling, she keeled over very considerably to the starboard, and now lies in an unpleasant, though not dangerous position. It is hoped that she can be floated at high tide this afternoon. Her engines are being repaired and she is unable to get up steam, and must depend upon a small tug to haul her off. She may perhaps have to go go back into the dry dock to see whether the grounding has injured her hull.

HIGHEST PRICE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Senator Stanford acknowledged yesterday that he had sold Arion, 3-year old, to J. Malcolm Forbes, but refused to name the price. He said, however, the price was the highest ever paid for a horse. It is generally understood that $150,000 was the price paid. Forbes is the well known Boston yachtsman, and already owns Nancy Hanks.

He made confession on the scaffold.

Cultivate Sentiment.

Blessed be they who never grow too tired or too old or too busy to dream. Blessed be the man who never gets to be so thoroughly a business man that he cannot find time to go to Italy on a magnolia bough in springtime, or to Egypt on a lotus flower. "I have heard it said that we have no mountains in this western country," said a grizzled old member of the board of trade the other day. "Why, we have rosier peaks and whiter summits than any Alps, every clear night along the western horizon, and sometimes I can almost hear the winding of a hunter's horn adown their far defiles."

Wasn't that a beautiful fancy for an old wheat reckoner to keep in his heart, and do you think such a man will ever quite lose his passport papers to the fair country over the border? Why, my dear, half the entire world, with its money getting and its greed of gain, won't know what to do with themselves in heaven if God's love ever gets them there. They will see nothing but 95 per cent. specimens in the golden streets and a greenhouse speculation in the garden of paradise.

Cultivate a little more sentiment, indulge now and then in a little romance, open the windows of your soul to the south and let the soft breezes blow through and perfume your rusty old heart a bit. It will not harm you, and it will make you an infinitely more pleasant companion than you are now. —Chicago Herald.

How a Broken Heart Looks.

Did you ever see a broken heart, or have you any idea what one is like? No? Well, I have, and the effect of the sentimental tragedy was apparent too. When a person dies of grief—and very, very few do so—the brain rather than the organ of sentiment suffers most, and an examination of the heart reveals no distinct traces of the ailment. I did not believe that there was such a thing as a person dying of a broken heart until three years ago, when I actually saw a case in a Madrid hospital. The patient was a young Portuguese whose wife had been slain by a former suitor. The husband was a robust man, but after his wife had been killed he sickened, although apparently there was nothing the matter with him.

Medicine did him no good, and he finally died. I performed an autopsy and made a searching investigation of his heart. Directly across it from the main feeder was a line, or what appeared to be a line, which, when I had dissected the organ, was seen extending clear through it. I searched throughout the body for the origin of such an abrasion, but could find none. It was there, to be sure, but how it came was not revealed, although for five days I studied the matter. The immediate cause of death was consumption. The brain was in normal condition, but the lungs badly diseased.—Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

What a Laugh Does.

Dr. Greene says that there is not one remotest corner or little inlet of the minute blood vessels of the human body that does not feel some wavelet from the convulsions occasioned by good, hearty laughter. The life principle of the central man is shaken to the innermost depths, sending new tides of life and strength to the surface, thus materially tending to insure good health to the persons who indulge therein. The blood moves more rapidly and conveys a different impression to all the organs of the body, as it visits them on the particular mystic journey when the man is laughing, from what is done at other times. For this reason every good, hearty laugh in which a person indulges tends to lengthen his life, conveying, as it does, new and distinct stimulus to the vital forces.—London Standard.

The Cultivation of Hickory Nuts.

Much is being done in the cultivation of hickory nuts. Nurserymen are planting and grafting the young trees, which they sell to growers. No orchards are as yet in bearing, but there are wild groves of fine varieties in Ohio which are regularly harvested. There are shagbarks in Iowa of large size which have such thin shells that they can readily be cracked by grasping two together in the hand. From such stock grafts are taken by the growers, and the process of progressive selection will doubtless develop some very remarkable results in the course of a few years. —Washington Star.

A Noteworthy Exception.

A severe wind storm was prevailing on washday in the Capital City, and playing havoc with the clotheslines. The colored maid of all work rushed into the house with excitement written upon her dusky countenance. Emerging from the basement she called out, in tones that carried her startled information throughout the house and even to the ears of the callers in the parlor, "Fo' de Lawd, missus, all de han'k'chi'fs done bin stole, 'cep'n de socks!" —Harper's.

The Difference Explained.

"James never has to answer the telephone," replied the abused young man. —Detroit Free Press.

Taken for a Crank.

A semi-fiendish delight often seems to possess people of strong nerves in sneering at those with weak ones. The irritability of the nervous hypochondriac is ridiculed as natural ill temper. The very genuine and distressing symptoms from which he suffers are made light of. "He" or "she is a crank!" is the cheerful sort of sympathy with which the nervous invalid meets from the unfeeling and the thoughtless. At the same time no complaint is more defined and real, none has a more easily explainable origin when it is chronic. Imperfect digestion and assimilation are always accompanied by nervous debility and anxiety. Build up the powers of assimilation and digestion with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and nervous symptoms, sick headaches and a generally feeble condition of the system are remedied. Remember that fearful ravages are produced by la grippe among weakly, nervous people. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters cures it, and prevents malaria, rheumatism and kidney complaint.
