CITY CHARITY.—The ministers of a number of denominations are organizing for systematic charity. Representatives of the Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist and other churches have been pushing an organization of a city board of charities. A meeting is called for this evening at 7:30 at the law office of Ford & Kaiser to complete the organization. A member of the G. A. R. and other orders are to act with the board.

GETTING THERE.—In the usual Salem way the free public library movement is getting under great headway. The committee appointed by the Alkas will report a detailed plan for the establishing of a library and the society should be prepared to act. The public are invited to attend the meeting at Insurance hall Saturday evening. Several offers of rooms rent free for one and two years have been made, and great interest is manifested.

PROBATE.—In guardianship of Bertha I. Dixon, a minor, J. H. Dixon, her father, petitioned for the removal of E. J. Dawne, as guardian, petition granted. During 1884, Fannie B. Peck died at Los Angeles, leaving an estate of inheritance to said minor of $2,000. On Nov. 29, 1884, E. J. Dawne was appointed guardian, said minor has only received support from said estate in the sum of $225.

COMPLETED.—The Democratic club has completed its organization at a well attended meeting held Thursday evening. A vice president is to be selected in each precinct of the country, initiation fee fixed at 25 cents. The club is to meet regular Saturday evening at the Vauldria rooms.

SOLD OUT.—Walter Holman has sold his fire alarm system to Thomas Holman, who will hereafter manage it. The telephone company at Portland has been objecting to the use of its poles for the fire alarm wires.

POLICE COURT.—One drunk who made a nuisance of himself was fined $10 and costs, which he paid. A vagrant got five days, and this ended the usual morning grist before Judge Goodell.

FOUND.—Fresh Oregon eggs at Davison & White's Court street market. We test, stamp and guarantee every egg we sell. Ask for stamped eggs.

JUST RECEIVED.—A carload of cats, and I am prepared to supply all demands, J. E. Eastham & Co., 140 State street. 1-15-92

Sweet Oranges.—Washington naves and Riversides, all sizes, and prices the lowest at Clark & Eppley's.

TRUTH ABOUT AMMONIA.

Its Use and Value as a Leavening Agent.

Physicians and Scientists Comment on it and Tell Why it Makes Better, Lighter, More Wholesome Food.

(Regonant, Portland.)

The use and value of carbonate of ammonia as a leavening agent has long been well known. It has been employed by the makers of the finest bread, cake, and confectionery for a hundred years. In 1803 Musprat wrote of it as superior to any other leavening agent. Prof. Hassall, of the Analytical Sanitary Commission on Foods appointed by the English government (1851), reported as to the quick leavening agents, "by far the best is the carbonate of ammonia." English, French and German authorities, down to the present day, have called attention to the value of this salt, and to the more digestible and wholesome food which its use has produced to mankind.

Not so much has been written or said about the use of carbonate of ammonia in this country, although every physician and chemist, as a matter of course, is familiar with its highly volatile character under heat, and with the great wholesomeness of the leavening gas which is thereby evolved.

A series of recent experiments, however, by Prof. Chandler, of Columbia college, New York, and recent president of the New York board of health; Prof. J. W. Mallet, of the University of Virginia; Prof. Haines, consulting chemist to the department of health of Chicago, and professor of chemistry in Rush Medical college; Prof. Davenport, the official analyst of the state board of Massachusetts; Dr. W. G. Tucker, professor of chemistry of Albany Medical college, and official analyst of the state of New York; Prof. A. B. Prescott, University of Michigan; and Prof. George F. Baker, of the University of Pennsylvania, and president of the American Chemical society, has given the most valuable information upon this important subject. All of these gentlemen will at once be recognized, by physicians, chemists, and laymen alike, as the highest possible authorities in this country, and the accuracy of whose work will not be questioned by any one. The use of carbonate of ammonia for leavening purposes, it is shown by these authorities, is not only unwholesome, but positively beneficial. When used in baking powder, it makes an article that more perfectly leavens, that leaves a less residuum in the bread, and that serves to neutralize any acid present in the flour. The result of these tests will be found of great value to bakers, baking powder makers, and to the public generally. They will attract wide attention, and aid everywhere in the preparation of more appetizing, digestible, and wholesome food.

PROFESSOR CHANDLER, COLUMBIA COLLEGE, NEW YORK, SAYS: "I know of no reason why any one should object to the presence of carbonate of ammonia in a baking powder; on the contrary, I know that some of the best baking powders always contain carbonate of ammonia—baking powder which I select for my own use. "I have read some of the articles which have been published by interested parties, in which they attempt to prove that a small percentage of carbonate of ammonia in a baking powder is unwholesome, because a concentrated solution of free ammonia in water—that is spirits of hartshorn or aqua ammonia—is caustic, and, taken in a concentrated condition into the stomach, would prove injurious. It would be about as logical to say that it would be dangerous to drink a glass of water because several people have been drowned in mill ponds. A concentrated solution of free ammonia is one thing, and a moderate quantity of carbonate of ammonia is another thing, and there is no relation between them; and nothing that you can say about one of them has any bearing upon the wholesomeness of the other."

PROFESSOR MALLETT, OF THE UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA, SAYS: "As to whether carbonate of ammonia is a proper ingredient of a baking powder, and whether there is any objection to such use from a hygienic standpoint, I have to say that experiments made by myself have convinced me— "1. That no injurious consequences follow from the use of bread, otherwise good, made with baking powder in which carbonate of ammonia is used to the extent found in the baking powders actually on the American market. "2. That this salt, as used in baking powder, is advantageous, since it serves to neutralize any lactic or other organic acid present in the flour, or acidity developed by fermentative change. "I am of the opinion, based on careful investigation of the subject, that there is no reason whatever for objection on sanitary grounds to carbonate of ammonia as used in the best cream of tartar baking powders in the market, and that it has undoubtedly the advantage of producing a better color and texture in the bread."

PROFESSOR HAINES, RUSH MEDICAL COLLEGE, CHICAGO, SAYS: "After thorough investigation, I am wholly of the opinion that one per cent. of carbonate of ammonium in a baking powder is entirely free from even the slightest unwholesomeness. When such a powder is practically used in baking, the carbonate of ammonium is volatilized by the heat of the oven, and passes off in the form of a gas, raising the dough and giving lightness to it as it is expelled. Should a small portion be left behind in the bread, it is incapable of producing any bad effects. On the contrary, by its alkalinity any traces of carbonate of ammonium left behind are really beneficial; they neutralize whatever acidity may exist in the bread, making the latter lighter, more palatable, more acceptable to the stomach, and more digestible. "I am thoroughly convinced by my investigations that a small percentage of carbonate of ammonium in a baking powder is, therefore, not only not unwholesome, but positively beneficial."

PROFESSOR DAVENPORT, MASSACHUSETTS STATE ANALYST, SAYS: "I consider carbonate of ammonia, as used in baking powders, perfectly harmless, and we have the assurance of very eminent authority that it is even actually advantageous. The facts above stated are in full accord with this. "Traces of ammonia are to be found in the air, in almost all natural pure waters, and in many articles of food, in none of which cases has it ever been shown to be injurious to health. PROFESSOR TUCKER, NEW-YORK STATE ANALYST, SAYS: "Concerning the use of carbonate of ammonium in baking powders, I am decidedly of the opinion that its employment in quantities which have shown to be present in American baking powders, is entirely unobjectionable. The salt is wholly and easily volatilized by heat; and even if it was not completely dissipated in the process of baking, what might remain would act beneficially rather than otherwise by neutralizing the acids which are often developed in dough by fermentative changes. I consider it a valuable ingredient in a baking powder, and believe it to be generally recognized as such by competent authorities."

PROFESSOR FREESCOTT, UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN, SAYS: "In the production of baking powder, the introduction of a small quantity of the volatile carbonate to supplement the action of the stronger fixed carbonate, for generation of the aerating gas, is a happy device. The volatile carbonate is the carbonate of ammonium. In this use it is without sanitary objection, and I believe it gives a sanitary advantage when in the proportions of baking powders of superior quality at present." PROFESSOR BARKER, UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA, SAYS: "After a somewhat careful examination of the hygienic questions connected with the use of ammonium carbonate in baking powders, I have come to the conclusion, not only that no valid sanitary objection can be urged against the employment of the quantity of this substance found in the best known baking powders, but that such use has very material advantages to recommend it. "The addition of ammonium carbonate to a baking powder, even in so small a quantity as one per cent., serves to make the resulting bread lighter, sweeter, and more palatable, and of course more easily digested and more wholesome."

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

H. A. Johnson, Jr., returned this afternoon from Seio. Mrs. E. M. Lafore and Mrs. W. Breyman left on the afternoon train for Portland. Prof. J. J. Hunsaker of Turner is in the city. Hon. E. F. Parkhurst returned today from a short visit to Yaquina bay.

Salem should show her enthusiasm by taking an active interest in the Fruit Growers' meetings. The grounds of the Yew Park school are being graded up and the building cleaned preparatory for use. School will be opened there in about two weeks.

Eastern Oysters, Davison & White's. Attorney J. A. Carson went to Eugene today on legal business. Rev. J. H. Rook left for Brownsville this morning to be absent over Sunday. James Harris was arrested a second time for vagrancy and plead guilty, paying his fine and agreeing to leave town.

An event which will interest many old-time Salem friends is the marriage of Gaines Fisher to Mrs. R. A. Brown, of Newton, Iowa, at Portland, Wednesday, Jan. 13th 1892. James Herren of Polk county was brought to the asylum Thursday evening. He is a relative of Wm. Herren of Monmouth. Councilman Moore started for Fresno, Cal., on Thursday night's overland. He will be away three weeks. L. D. Jacks, special agent of State Insurance Company left today for Colfax, Wash.

Brandy cordial drops the latest and best thing going at Jones & Benard's. Sure cure for the grip. Prof. Getz of Ashland, accompanied by Supt. Grubbe has been visiting the Salem schools today. The overland was two hours late this morning. Leon E. Crossan has joined the Salem postoffice force as carrier No. 3 and is making an efficient hand. The Palace Dry Goods and Shc Co. of Salem, capital stock $20,000, has filed articles with the county clerk, H. S. Belle, Reese Leabo et al., incorporators. Alderman Hunt is at home from his trip. The street committee, Supt. Shiel and Street Commissioner Crossan go this afternoon to survey the North Mill creek dam, and agree with the company upon some plan to relieve the people whose property is flooded.

Hon. G. W. McBride has our thanks for an advanced copy of the table showing the rate per cent. added or deducted for each class of property in the several counties of Oregon, and the aggregate valuation as equalized by the state board of equalization. It is the largest piece of tabular work ever on-piled on one sheet in this state and a creditable job by the state printer. Ayer's Cathartic Pills stimulates the appetite and regulates the bowels. Try them. Have you seen Ayer's Almanac? Wild game, Davison & White's.

A FIGHTER.—Mr. Gus Brown, now of Salem, writes an Albany man in reference to a match here, either in fighting or wrestling. Mr. Brown claims to be the recognized champion light weight pugilist of the coast, and champion of 126 to 128 catch as catch can wrestler of America. He has won 75 battles and 100 wrestling matches. Here is a chance for some ambitious pugilist or wrestler to get done up brown.—Democrat.

DISMISSED.—Mrs. Dodd's illness made it necessary to send a substitute from Prof. E. H. Anderson's room, but a number of large boys proved unwilling to behave and the school had to be dismissed. In case of sickness pupils should show some consideration.

BOON THE FRUIT GROWERS. A Meeting Called to Arrange for the Two Days Convention at Salem. The Marion County Fruit Growers association holds its annual convention at Salem next Tuesday and Wednesday. A program of great interest and practical value will be gone through with. Of so much importance are the facts presented that one real estate firm has decided to have a stenographic report of the proceedings. All Salem men feel a deep interest in the fruit industry. At this meeting arrangements are to be made for the annual strawberry and rose show in the spring and the fruit place at the state fair next fall. These are all matters of great importance to this county, and especially to this city. The local program committee desires the cooperation of those interested to make these meetings a success and arouse that local enthusiasm which the subject merits. A meeting of Salem business men, fruit growers and real estate dealers is hereby called at the parlors of the Willamette hotel, Saturday at 4 p. m. Let all attend and assist. Coar.

It is a Mistake To try to cure catarrh by using local appliances. Catarrh is not a local but a constitutional disease. It is not a disease of the man's nose, but of the man. Therefore, to effect a cure, requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, expelling the taint which causes the disease, and imparting health.

Jerked venison at Davison & White's. FEELING A GIANT.—A force of men have been at work cutting down an immense oak back of Wade & Co.'s hardware store. The large limbs had to be cut off while the tree stood, and at 3 p. m. the big oak was ready to go over amid the applause of a multitude of onlookers.

Columbia river smelt, Davison & White's. A SHOOTING.—In an altercation near Health's postoffice George Heath had occasion to draw a pistol on a man by name of J. P. Case. This occurred last Friday the 8th and neighbors in from there say there will be a grand jury case made of it.

If faithfully used, Ayer's Sarsaparilla will remove scrofula in what ever form it exists.
