SUGGESTED COMMENT.

Hillsboro is agitating a canny project.

Oregon should raise hemp enough for home consumption on the gal-lows at least.

The Sheridan Congregational church is still in the dime social stage of development.

Oregon prospers in spite of indifference to her vital interests on the part of public officials, people and legislators.

The only strife between our public men should be to see who can get in and secure the construction of The Dalles portage railway first.

The people are not interested in any quarrel Governor Penoyer may have with the Oregon senators. They want the portage road at The Dalles.

The Australian system of balloting requires that the state ticket be filed with secretary of state 45 days before election, and each county ticket 30 days before election.

Portland Dispatch: Salem has completed full arrangements for a free library, the trustees appointed, organization effected and rooms secured. It is a good move in the right direction.

Hon. W. R. Willis, Roseburg, is being spoken of as a possible nominee for supreme judge by the Republicans, Hous. B. F. Bonham of Salem and John Burnett of Corvallis, by the Democrats.

In politics as in religion, it is much more important that you do something that can be done than that you believe in a whole lot of things that relate only to future possibilities and do nothing.

To argue for the advantages of education appears about as unnecessary as to argue for the benefits of sunshine and air. Yet half the people do not know how to appreciate the latter properly.

Exchanges will do this JOURNAL a great favor—a very great favor, if they will credit articles taken from these columns to SALEM JOURNAL. There are several "Journal" publications in the state and it is but fair to them to make this distinction.

THE JOURNAL fights for more actual results out of city, county and state government. It does not believe in public officials merely expending the revenues for fees and salaries and doing nothing for the people or to give employment to labor.

We have received No. 17 of the International Library, "A Brave Woman," by the favorite German novelist E. Maritt, gracefully translated by Margaret P. Waterman and embellished with numerous illustrations. This pretty volume will be welcomed by the admirers of that lamented author, and is one of those tales of German home life which made her so famous. It is handsomely bound in illuminated covers, uniform with similar publications issued by the same house, Worthington & Co., New York. Sold by T. McF. Patton, bookseller, Salem.

Jim Lotan says the outlook for harmony in the Republican ranks is good. If such ignoramuses and asses as Jim were deposed from power in the party, the outlook would be more than bright—it would be assured.—Salem Statesman. Because a paper happens to worship some other Republican leader is not good excuse to abuse Mr. Lotan. A good deal of this abuse of Mr. Lotan grows out of the fact of the defeat of the head of the ticket two years ago when Mr. Lotan was chairman. In such cases it is always customary to abuse some one.

A PLEA FOR AN EXTRA SESSION.

Governor Penoyer Has the Opportunity of His Life to Serve the People.

The Dalles Daily Chronicle Feb 9: The Salem JOURNAL is still earnestly urging that Governor Penoyer call a special session of the legislature to make an appropriation for a portage at The Dalles. It contends, and very justly as we think there is not the least possible show for an appropriation from the national government for the work. Railroad building is a new departure which congressional attachment to precedent is not likely to accept. Holman's hostility to any new items of expenditure and a Democratic congress anxious to make a record for economy, stand in the way. The Republican senate is committed to a canal and locks partly completed. Senator Mitchell is championing a boat railroad scheme in the senate and Binger Herman a portage railroad in the house. Senator Dolph is urging a liberal appropriation for the lower river. Paul Mohr has got the ear of members of the house committee and the Union Pacific influence is at work everywhere—all these conspiring circumstances and conflicting combinations reduce the chances of an appropriation to a moral impossibility.

Meanwhile difficulties have arisen in connection with the vicious pilot service at the mouth of the Columbia. The last legislature put the business in the hands of the Union Pacific taking it from the pilot trust of Astoria. The hope that the corporate interests of the Union Pacific, being identical with those of the state, would be sufficient to secure good service, was delusive. Scores of vessels during the fall and winter remained outside the bar for days and weeks for lack of tugs to tow them in, and tens of thousands of dollars were lost in consequence to the people of the state, apart from the immense damage done to the commerce of the Columbia river.

If this state of affairs continue over another season it will do so at a loss to producers and shippers of a probable half million dollars. Again, an appropriation is needed for the world's fair if Oregon is not going to be the laughing stock of the whole nation. It is perfectly evident that no adequate amount can be raised by voluntary subscription by those who are liberal enough to contribute. Nor should it be, as the exhibit would be a benefit to every inhabitant of the state, and the state should therefore bear the burden of it. But apart from the world's fair we have a conjunction of circumstances in the necessities of The Dalles portage and the pilot service that make a demand for an extra session of the legislature, with an occasion as great as perhaps ever occurred in any state in the union. An expense of $20,000 to $50,000 incurred in effecting these measures would save to the producers of three states an easy half million dollars. Will Governor Penoyer be equal to the occasion?

IS THE WISH PARENT OF THE THOUGHT?

"The telegraph has given expression to the reasons why an extra session of the legislature, held early this spring, might be at least justifiable. But it has had no expectation that there would be an extra session. The objections to it are also numerous and weighty, and they have been sufficient to prevent the governor from exercising his constitutional right to call an extra session. One of the chief pieces of good and necessary work that an extra session might do is the building of The Dalles portage road; but since it is certain that no extra session is to be called, etc."—Portland Telegram.

Upon what information does the Telegram base its assumption that "it is certain that no extra session is to be called?" Has it any evidence that the governor will under no circumstances call an extra session? If it has it has not made it public. If it has any such information it should not withhold it.

Deafness Can't be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; time cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES.

The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce has reported a bill allowing railroad companies to grant special rates to commercial travellers.

A New York special says the fast mail service of the country is doomed to be discontinued on June 30th, unless the postoffice department meantime can obtain cheaper railroad rates.

Rumors of a gigantic deal between the coal producing companies continue to be current and the regular traders of the stock exchange all believe in the report that an agreement has been made by companies with an immense syndicate which agrees to handle the entire output and pay owners of all coal lands 25 cents a ton royalty on coal taken out by them. Provisions are being made that the syndicate shall amount in the aggregate to $10,000,000 per year.

Pixley is acknowledged to be the driest town in the San Joaquin valley, but since the rainmakers have taken up their quarters there Pixley has shown a greater fall than any other town in the valley. The figures below are beyond doubt correct, tallying with those of several gentlemen not interested in the matter. The rainfall for the last three rains is as follows: Tulare—32, 19, 54; total, 1.05. Tulare—08, 03, 35, total, .41.

Miss Mattie Lee, a young lady from El Paso, Tex., attempted suicide yesterday morning by taking an overdose of chloroform. She and Thomas Whitley, a locomotive fireman, arrived Saturday and were to marry at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, but the prospective groom jumped on a passenger train and left her penniless and alone. She paced up and down her room in a distracted frame of mind all afternoon and night. Yesterday morning she purchased a phial of deadly poison. She first wrote a note to her truant lover, wishing him good luck, and then dressed herself in her wedding tulle. She swallowed the contents of the phial, and laid down on the sofa to die. Her groans were heard by the proprietor of the house, and the door of her room had been kicked in, for she had locked and bolted it. The timely arrival of the physician with a stomach-pump saved her life. It is understood that Whitley is not her fugitive lover's name, but that it is Robert Aakins, and that he is from Sedalia, Mo.

Some further experiments were conducted at Fort Winfield Scott Saturday with the new explosive, terroite, under the directions of Major Rogers and Lieutenant Hamilton, ordnance officer. Three shots were fired with twenty-five pound shells, loaded with five pounds of terroite, to which a six-second time-fuse was attached. The shots were fired from a ten-ton rifled Parrott gun with a charge of five pounds of powder. In each case the shot struck the red rock, bluff on the Marin county shore and the shell, exploded by the fuse, brought down tons of earth and rock. The result of this experiment shows there is no danger of explosion from concussion. The experiment was repeated with a ten-pound charge of powder with which five more shots were fired with similar shells, the result being the same as with the higher charge, except that one shell was imbedded in the bluff and failed to explode, presumably owing to a defective fuse. Major Rogers and Lieutenant Hamilton expressed themselves thoroughly satisfied with the experiments. Their report will be forwarded to Washington to supplement the report of similar experiments made at Fort Hamilton, N. Y.

They play multitudes when they are the product of neglect of insipient disease. A "sight" cold, a fit of indigestion, biliousness or constipation each of any of these "minor ailments" advance in many cases with "lingue-destroying" strides. Give them a swift, early defeat with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and avert the danger. Absorbent administered as astringent, re-opens to the man who is injured him that he had "only a cold." "Only a cold," repeated the doctor. "What would you have the plague?" Rheumatism and a gripe are easily extinguishable at the start. Why then allow them to get up a full sized ailment? Put on the brakes with the Bitters. MISCELLANY.

FULL DETAILS OF THE EXECUTION.

SING SING, Feb. 9.—Charles McIlvaine, the murderer of Groceryman Lucas, was electrocuted at 11:12 yesterday morning. The warden read the death warrant to the condemned man at midnight. When the warden left McIlvaine, he gave him to understand that his hours were numbered and advised him to get all the sleep he could. The murderer seemed quiet and did not appear visibly affected by the reading of the death warrant. Father Creodon arrived at the prison at 8 o'clock and proceeded at once to McIlvaine's cell. After prayer the condemned man partook of a light breakfast. He appeared to be in good spirits, and did not show any signs of weakening. Led by Warden Brown the witnesses walked to the execution chamber. They were all medical men. Reporters from the leading press associations and newspapers were also present. Stools were ranged about the room, in the aisle of which stood the new execution chair. It involved the introduction of a new feature in the provision for the application of a current through both hands. The new chair is fashioned in its outlines after the chairs previously in use. It involves a change at the arms, however, and they are high at the back and fit closely under the armpits, thence slanting downward to the front. A distinctly new feature was the provision of a deep glass cell securely fastened, that the hands may be immersed in the water which fills the jars. The water was a solution of chloride of sodium; one cell received a current from beneath, the other from above. The usual coil of conducting wire for the electrode for the head dangled from above. Stout board straps were placed for fastening the wrists in the cells and other bands held the elbows tightly. When everything was in readiness, at 11:05, Warden Brown, addressing his visitors, warned them that no gratuitous advice or suggestions would be tolerated from any save those in charge officially.

"Bring in McIlvaine," said Warden Brown, turning to Keeper Connaughton and a deputy, who stood near the door opening into the cell corridor. "There was a tramping of feet heard in the corridor, the door was pushed open and the officers appeared with the prisoner between them. The condemned man, McIlvaine, was pallid and his hands, which held the cuffs before him, trembled and shook. Fathers Creodon and Smith were at his side when he entered the room, the officers giving way to the priests. "O Jesus, help me," he murmured, with suppressed emotion, and then, as control of his nerves slackened, he almost shouted "O God, I am sorry that I have offended thee! O Christ, have mercy!" Meantime he had been lowered into the chair, his head pressed back against the leaden neck-rest, the electrode quickly clapped upon his forehead and the clamp on the rubber tube was loosened so the water flowed down into the electrode sponge, and while this was being done, an officer on each side had strapped the wrists and elbows, while others were strapping his legs at the ankles and binding an electrode upon the calf of the right leg, from which the trousers leg had already been ripped. "Jesus, spare me. Merciful God, help me," muttered the prisoner, as a broad leather mask was bound across his face, concealing all the features except the nose and mouth. The time was 11:12 a. m. The condemned man came into the chamber with the priest, himself carrying before him a crucifix and murmuring prayers. The chair used was never before employed. On each side at the arais was a jar into which the hands were immersed in a solution of salt. The arais were strapped at the elbow and wrists, and contact on the head made at the forehead. An electrode, as in previous cases, was here present, for use on the leg in case of failure of mishap at the other point of contact. The first contact was forty-five seconds in duration. A few seconds after the current was cut off, froth issued from the mouth and almost
