WILL BUILD.—Operations will begin next Monday on the new St. Paul's African M. E. church in North Salem. The lot has been purchased, paid for and the deed recorded. The lumber is on the ground and the work of erection will be well under way before another week, and during March it will be completed. The financial aid for this enterprise has all been worked up by Rev. G. W. White, who arrived in Salem from the California conference last September. He has now a flock of twenty attendants at his preaching and a regularly organized church, holding services every Sunday at the German M. E. church of this city. Mr. White is a worker and never has failed to build up a strong and prosperous society wherever he has taken hold. He enjoys the confidence of the Methodist organizations of this city, and of all the churches and ministers in fact. His patient zeal and energy have won him many friends among all classes, who watch his enterprise with great interest. He needs about $300 to finish his church, and all who have not assisted should give him a contribution.

HAVE YOU SEEN.—The crowds at J. H. Lunn's? From appearances he must be giving goods away.

THE G. A. R. BANQUET.

Sedgwick Post Does the Proud Act of Its Life.

FIVE HUNDRED SIT DOWN AT ONCE.

Three Hours of Dining and Speaking—Fun Among the Veterans.

The scene from the gallery was quite imposing. The seven snowy tables stretched away like parallel snowbanks spotted with gold and brown, with splashes of red, yellow and glittering crystal, where fruits, flowers, meats and cakes were arranged with artistic effects. Every table was just as complete as tho' set for a home dinner party.

The choir struck up "Marching thro' Georgia" as the color bearers appeared with the pennant of the division and the stars and stripes, which are always borne side by side at encampments of this order. Prof. Parvin fairly made the piano dance to the grand old tune and the veterans cheered.

AT 8:30 P. M.

Col. Ladue asked Rev. Gue of Portland to invoke a blessing and all arose to receive the same. Then there fell an attack upon the vandals that reeled the charge of the light brigade at Balaklava, and there were pretty near six hundred.

The waiters came! And they were an array, a very pretty array all by themselves, in low caps and aprons, and there seemed to be a waiter for every guest, at least for every one that had any unfulfilled desire and the good fairies flitted from Vet. to Vet., like humming birds among the flowers, bearing nectar-like coffee, etc.

The encampment baby was at the banquet too. It had the colic all day at the state house and another attack came on at the supper, but a kind hearted creature in a bright red dust cap relived the weary mother and for once she enjoyed herself. The baby nestled on the perfumed shoulder of the extemporized relief corps and "peace reigned at Warsaw."

There were mountains of cake at the banquet, and it withstood a siege of two hours and a half. It was not sawdust cake either. The boys in blue attacked it fore and aft. They ate it at the start of the meal, in the middle of the meal and at the close. They ate it before the speeches, between and after, and still there was plenty left.

COLONEL LADUE acted as toast master in a most happy manner. "Gentlemen," said he, "we have been assembled for the business before us, and have not been found wanting." He then introduced Commander-elect Northrup, who was compelled to second the stage. He toasted the Grand Army and thanked the capital city for its splendid entertainment, its grand halls for gatherings and its immense hospitality spread before them. He sounded the praise of the order and declared that no subject was so dear to the people as the G. A. R.

A WOMAN SPEAKS. Mrs. Hessie Shane responded nobly for the "Woman's Relief Corps." She said the order had nearly a thousand members and $1900 cash on hand. She was awarded with three cheers and a tiger, and acquitted herself well, delivering one of the best addresses of the evening.

Miss Parrish received an encore for her "America—Home of the Free." She responded with "You and I Together, Love," again winning hearty applause. The pretty bit of sentiment made many of the old boys in blue look bashful. But they took it all in and enjoyed it. "Our Commander-in-Chief" was the toast of G. E. Calkin of Portland, and all seemed to anticipate a good time coming and his speech was received with humor. He entered a vigorous protest against the use of military titles in the order. He showed that it was not President Harrison's ultimatum that brought Chili to order, but the manifesto of Colonel Olmsted offering the president the services of a regiment of Oregon veterans mounted on Oregon cayuses (great applause). Colonel Olmsted was called for from five thousand throats. He said: "They heard that I had designated Colonel Calkin as quarter-master of that regiment. That settled it for Chili." (Great laughter.)

The toastmaster referred pleasantly to preceding speakers, and forgot not to tell them amid great cheering that they had listened also to the sweet music from Oregon's sweetest songstress.

OUR BROWN was called on for a speech to "Our Guests." He too had to ascend the platform and was equal to the occasion. His allusions to the bummer were uproariously applauded by all present. He eulogized the women who went to the front as well as stayed at home, and also paid a high tribute to the mothers of the soldiers, who had proven themselves a greater army than ever Napoleon led. Mr. Brown's speech was eloquent and well received.

Miss A. Krebs' instrumental solo was finely rendered, and Mrs. Jay C. Smith recited "The Tragic Death of Benedict Arnold in a realistic manner." T. A. Stephens spoke on "The Public Schools, the Hope of the Nation." He advocated the teaching of more patriotism and something besides material culture, so-called. He said it was a shame for this state to send boys from sixteen to twenty-one years to the penitentiary. The acquiring of knowledge must be made more attractive to the boys. Less than twenty per cent of all boys in the United States ever went to a high school and not half of those completed their course. These Grand Army orders stood pledged to uphold public education.

"By particular request" Miss Krebs gave a violin solo, and if half the young ladies of Salem are as perfect masters of their beaus as she is of her bow, the matrimonial millennium of Leap year is at hand.

Rev. Gue replied to the toast "Our Country and Our Flag," and his speech seemed to be better than any preceding. He paid his respects to old England and he was upheld in his sentiments expressed to the very echo. It was the best and biggest Grand Army speech of the evening and it would be impossible by any report to do justice to it. He eulogized the harmony and ability of the Salem Grand Army men. "The Word of Bunker Hill" was sung by Miss Parrish, and she was again recalled.

THE NEW COMMANDER. Mrs. Train is one of Oregon's best known ladies, a prominent officer of the Grange, a newspaper worker on the Albany Herald, and a lady of great social qualities and most charming manners. She will honor the position by her intelligence and ability.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL. G. W. Murphy, of Independence, was a Salem visitor today.

Postmaster Heninger, of the city town of Woodburn, is in the city on court business.

Secretary J. T. Gregg is up from Portland, looking after state fair business.

An Independence firm has put out about 150 acres of prune trees this winter, besides planting a ton of peach pits for future planting.

It will pay you to see that new line of 25c boxes of paper and envelopes at Dearborn's book store.

The Woodburn Independent seems to have no criticism to make of any Salem paper but THE JOURNAL.

The recently appointed Indian school superintendent for Chemawa, is said to be ill at home in Massachusetts.

Arthur Glover and Ed Pugh, two Salem boys who are known as good rustlers, have just opened a horse-shoeing and blacksmithing shop on State street.

Oranges for nothing, we don't keep them, but we always have a full line of fresh and salt water fish, choice dressed poultry, turkey, ducks, geese, etc. also fresh eggs and choice butter at Davidson & White's Court street market.

Mrs. U. L. Collins, of Chinino, Wash., who is at the home of her father A. Ollinger, is not expected to live, and is rapidly sinking this afternoon with consumption.

If Salem people would raise $700 to sustain their own excellent band, which is maintained at considerable expense and plays on all occasions, it would be better than to subscribe to hear some foreign band, no matter how good.

Mothers should remember, when a physician cannot be procured, that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral promptly relieves the cough.

Log cabin cream at Jones & Bernard's.

Two of the ablest speeches of the G. A. R. encampment were by Methodist preachers, notable of these was the address at the opera house by Rev. G. M. Irwin, superintendent of the Harrison Indian institute at Chemawa, in which he welcomed visiting comrades on behalf of their hosts, Sedgwick post, No. 10, and paid a glowing tribute to the veteran soldier, who showed a soldier's heroism in war and fulfilled his duties as a loyal citizen in peace.

The Best Company.

A GRAND PICTURE.—Yesterday after the Grand Army people adjourned from their session at the state house, a magnificent group of all the delegates and visiting members was formed on the steps of the building, when Cherrington, Oregon's favorite artist, appeared with his mammoth camera and took a negative of the old heroes. Since the picture is developed it proves to be perfect in every detail, and makes a most desirable souvenir of the occasion. Dozens of orders have already been taken but with the good weather they hope to be able to supply the demand very rapidly.

A SUCCESS.—The L. L. D. club of North Salem gave their first Masquerade Ball last night, they report a very enjoyable time and did not go home till the "wee sma hours." Gus Kaiser in the character of an Indian took the 1st gun of the prize and Mrs. Neville took the honors among the ladies, 35 masked couples and about 50 spectators took to the occasion.

DELEGATES.—Before returning home be sure to see those fine pictures at Geo. F. Smith's and supply yourselves with superior art materials. Cattle Block.

HAVE YOU SEEN.—The crowds at J. H. Lunn's? From appearances he must be giving goods away.

Women.

The common afflictions of women are sick-head-aches, indigestion and nervous troubles. They arise largely from stomach disorders. The action is mild, direct and effective. We have scores of letters from grateful women.
