THE CAPITAL JOURNAL.

HOFER BROTHERS, - - - Editors.

PUBLISHED DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY BY THE Capital Journal Publishing Company. (Incorporated.)

IN REPLY TO "COUNTRY."

THE JOURNAL believes in running its columns wide open, so far as discussion of timely topics, limiting writers only to the same limits imposed upon the editor in respect to length of articles, and interest of readers and a general average quality of writing.

It believes a city or county or state will prosper in proportion as it engages its capital and credit in a public spirited and patriotic manner in advancing all enterprises for the benefit of the whole people that it can legitimately engage in.

There is a wise medium between wildest financiering, or the booming that leads on to bankruptcy, and the niggardly policy of a peanut conservatism that only applies the brakes.

We leave to lawyers to decide whether a street, that was originally a county road, is entirely out of the jurisdiction of the county court or not. Certain it is, the county built the present bridge sought to be replaced by the viaduct.

"Country" seems to think the county court can levy a tax for roads and bridges on the entire property of the city of Salem, and then expend it in the needs of the city. This is a fallacy.

Salem needs more religion as well as more churches.

The work of placing Salem's first residence street in metropolitan condition is being begun.

Salem is being warmly applauded for being the first to move in organizing a State Poultry association.

The advances of gentle spring are delicate and almost imperceptible, but constant as those of a true lover.

Salem is a good location for new business houses in several lines. Few branches of business are overdone.

Oranges at half a cent apiece, car fares at three cents and aldermen without salary—who says luxuries of life are not cheap at Salem?

Among the plans for the south viaduct is one on the steel cantilever plan. The only bridge of this kind in the valley is the new one at Albany.

There seems to have fallen a deadly pall on the Salem debating society since women are eligible to membership. Yet, none have been elected members.

The JOURNAL wishes it to be understood that modesty forbids it should claim to be the lever that lifts Salem. Salem grows by inherent strength of natural advantages as a city.

people, edited by Helen VanAndersson, assisted by a corps of talented writers. It is the only magazine of the kind, and is an improvement upon the usual juvenile literature.

Were you ever in a coal mine? Can you imagine what one looks like? Or what kind of folks the miners are? Or how their families live?

A Tribute to E. M. Miller. It was with deep regret that the people of the Willamette valley, heard of the death of E. M. Miller.

As a companion and friend no one could say, that he was at fault in any way, since he had the best regards, and the esteem of every student in the school, and his class records were above reproach.

A Kick From Chemawa. CHEMAWA, Or., Feb. 22, '92. ED.
