

"German Syrup"

G. Gloger, Druggist, Watertown, Wis. This is the opinion of a man who keeps a drug store, sells all medicines, comes in direct contact with the patients and their families, and knows better than anyone else how remedies sell. He hears of all the failures and successes, and can therefore judge: "I know of no medicine for Coughs, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, that had done so effective work in my family as Boschee's German Syrup. Last winter a lady called suffering from a very severe cold. She could hardly talk, and I told her about German Syrup and that a few doses would give relief; but she had no confidence in patent medicines. I told her to take a bottle, and if the results were not satisfactory I would make no charge for it. A few days after she called and paid for it, saying that she would never be without it in future as a few doses had given her relief."

STARTLING FACTS!
The American people are rapidly becoming a race of nervous wreck, and the following accounts of the latest cases of Nervous Prostration, Dr. Miller's Restorative Nervine, says that when his son was afflicted with this disease, Dr. Miller's Restorative Nervine cured him. Mrs. J. H. Miller, of Vancouver, B. C., writes: "My son, John, was afflicted with Nervous Prostration, and was cured of it by Dr. Miller's Restorative Nervine. He is now a healthy man, and is able to do his work as usual. I feel that I owe a debt of gratitude to Dr. Miller for his discovery of this remedy. It is a true blessing to the human race." MATRIMONIAL POINTERS.

Dr. Brooks says bed-headed men should not marry. A woman should not marry a man who is bed-headed. "Marriage" was the theme upon which Rev. Dr. John A. Brooks discoursed at the Prospect Avenue Christian church. His text was from Ephesians xxii, 33: "Wives submit yourselves unto the Lord, for the husband is the head of the church, as Christ is the head of the church. Nevertheless, let every one of you in particular so love his wife even as himself and the wife see that she reverence her husband." "Conjugal love is the most serious time for a man or woman," said Dr. Brooks. "Many had unions have resulted from bad courtships. It is the time to be earnest, honest and truthful, not a time of smiling, sighing, pleasing and captivation. It is the time to study happiness, concord and congeniality. Marriage is either a blessing or a curse. Plutarch said, 'A man must eat a bushel of salt before I can take him for my friend.' How much more important it is when he is to be taken for life. There should be harmony in age between the parties marrying. A young person should not marry an old one. The one will seek life and its active joys, the other rest. There should be harmony in neatness and cleanliness. A clean man will not feel at home if he returns to a dirty house, nor a neat woman care to go out with a husband slovenly and uncleanly. There should be harmony also in physical temperament. Both should be strong and vigorous, and ought to have a temper as nearly equal as possible. A reformed man should never marry a reformed woman if he wants peace in the family. There should be harmony in social position. A man should never marry a woman whom he would be ashamed to take to his family and the society in which he moves. In intelligence there should also be harmony. A man does not want to marry a woman who cannot enter into his intellectual enjoyments. Above all, there should be harmony in religion. There can be no happiness in a family where a religious wife or husband has to associate with an irreligious wife or husband. "Every young man should study the woman he is to marry with great care. He should study himself to know the traits he wants to match in his wife. Never marry a woman for personal beauty alone. Her beauty will fade after awhile and you will cease to love her. Beauty of soul is the thing to love. This will survive the failure of personal beauty and live on until death. Do not marry a fretful woman. Her fretfulness and peevishness before marriage will turn into quarrelsomeness and stormy inactivity after marriage. "Never marry a fashionable woman. Instead of her home she will be ever thinking of fashionable society and of preparing for its enjoyment. She will burden you continually with expenses for her wardrobe, carriages and extra servants, and leave you all ways in your home desolated. On the other hand, select a woman who is a good housekeeper. Your home ought to be the most blessed and delightful place during life, and if she does not know how to make it such she is not fit to be your wife."—Kansas City Times.

Origin of the Tomato.
The English word of direct Indian origin most frequently in use is tomato. A native of tropical or subtropical America, it was cultivated by the subjects of the Incas and Montezumas, as well as by the other semi-civilized natives, long before the advent of Europeans on this hemisphere, under the name of tumati or tomah. Though introduced into Europe almost as early as its congener, the potato, it is only lately that it has made its way into popular favor. There it was first known to the English as love apple, to the French as pomme d'amour and to the Italians as pommo d'amore, and these names are still in use, perpetuating the old, widespread notion that its use as food had an influence on the amatory passions.—Rural New Yorker.

Didn't Understand.
In the days of the old schoolship Massachusetts a Sunday visitor once addressed the sailor boys on board in what he probably thought was an effective manner. The next day in the school the question was asked, "What did you learn from the remarks of Mr. X yesterday?" To the surprise of the teacher one boy gave this answer, "I learned that he was talking about two things that he did not seem to understand, sir—navigation and religion, sir."—Boston Advertiser.

She Couldn't Wait.
Lady—I'm sorry your mamma is out, my pet, for I wanted very much to see her, and I can't remain until she returns. She has gone shopping, I presume?
Little Pet—No; she's gone to make thirty-five calls.
Lady—Oh, is that all. Then I'll wait.

Settled at Last.
The old question as to whether the upper part of a carriage wheel in motion moves faster than the lower part seems to have been definitely settled by instantaneous photography, which shows the top spokes indistinct, the bottom clear cut and well defined.—St. Louis Republic.

A Good Thing to Know.
If you have time to do so, learn the name of your next door neighbor. It may save the grocer's boy some trouble when he comes to your house with the wrong bundle, and is also handy in case of funerals.—Chicago Tribune.

Teeth of a Shark.
In respect to its dentition the shark is a very remarkable creature. The white shark has seven rows of teeth, while other species vary in the number of rows they possess. It must be understood, however, that the shark only uses one row at a time. The other rows lie down inside the mouth behind the edge of the jaw, erecting themselves when it is time for them to take successively the place of the first row. When one observes how keen edged these incisors are it seems no wonder that they can bite off a big rope as readily as if it were packed thread.—Washington Star.

Children Are Really Animals.
The children of the frivolous and neglectful have certain chances which the carefully brought up children miss. For the first five years of a child's life, says the doctor, it should be treated like a little animal, with certain instincts and propensities that must be corrected as one corrects a puppy too mischievous or too snarling.—New York Evening Sun.

The Pica of Insanity.
Cannot be urged in extension of the conduct of hosts of people who resort to self-harm upon themselves, and who are found for serious and distressing bodily trouble by the use, in season and out of season, upon slight necessity and without discrimination, of drastic vegetable and mineral substances, notably the various forms of mercury—to relieve simply constipation a complaint remediable at any stage by the persistent use of Huxley's Stomach Bitters. This famous remedy never gripe, evacuates too copiously or weakens the bowels. If there is any other remedy which this can truthfully be said, we are ungrateful to abandon the famous Huxley's Stomach Bitters, which also acts upon the stomach and bowels, cleanses the system, restores the natural vigor, and cures all ailments of the stomach, bowels, and general debility and kidney complaints are treated all consumable by the Bitters.

AN OFFENSIVE PROVERB.

How an Innocent Little Remark Caused a Lot of Bad Feeling.
"Folks that quotes, had oughter to be mighty keenerfol who they're hitting," said Abner Griggs, the wisecracker of Brookville Corners; "but then again," he added, "folks hadn't oughter to be fearful tetchy, seems 'f 't." "Have you got anybody special in your mind, Uncle Abner?" asked the young man to whom the old farmer was talking. "Well, yes, I don't mind sayin' 't I hev," replied Mr. Griggs. "O' course it's a statement 't bears on any number 'o' cases in a general way. But what ye was jest sayin' 'bout takin' up them keenerfol words 'o' Fred Jenkins put me in mind 'o' th' Hill sisters, Susan an' Rebecca; they died 'fore your day."

"What's the story? I've heard of 'em both," said the young man, as the old farmer paused for a moment, evidently lost in recollection.
"Well," said Uncle Abner, "ye see they was gettin' on in years, but they didn't seem 't realize it. 'Twas common fr' folks 't speak 'o' 'em as them two old Hill gals, but they never sus' pected it, not fr' a minute. But they was terrible tetchy, alius on th' lowest fr' sus'ns an' slights, an' made it kind 'o' hard fr' folks."

"One evening they went to a seavin' be' t' Mis' Deacon Emmons. It appears 't some ways 'o' nother they thought 't much 'o' could be they was expected, when they wa'n't. That particular be' was meant fr' th' young folks."

"Well, now, Susan an' Rebecca was a good forty years older 'n th' oldest 't 't rest on 'em. They didn't seem 't hev sense 'nough 't go away when they found how things stood, so they stuck right there. Mis' Deacon Emmons, she was as perlit to 'em as she knew how, but they seemed 't be kinder offish."

"Well, after th' be' was over, some 'o' th' young fellers come in—I was 'mongst th' lot—an' they got to playin' in games. Th' Hill sisters, they staid right along, an' th' young folks took 'em inter their fun; but they was kinder stiff, an' didn't ketch hold 'o' th' games over'n above quick."

"Fin'ly one 'o' th' gals, said, 'Let's play Shoutin' Proverbs,' an' little Mandy French, 't bed jest come home fr' on board school, she spoke up quick—she was kinder quick spoken alius—'an' says she, 'Oh, shoutin' Proverbs is as old as th' hills!'"

"An she never realized what she'd said till she see them two Hill sisters rise up as stiff 's a couple 'o' pokers, an' make a curch, each on 'em, 't Mis' Deacon Emmons, an' say, 'I'll bid ye good evenin'!"

"'Twa'n't no use tryin' 't explain," concluded Uncle Abner with a reminiscent chuckle of amusement. "They allus thought 't th' day 'o' their deaths 't 'twas intended for a slap right 't their faces. 'Twa'n't no good tellin' 'em 'twas a common sayin', a kind 'o' proverb like! When folks wanted them Hill sisters to a getherin' after that, they allus hed 't make a pint 'o' invitin' 'em special, by word 'o' mouth, an' they never went 't nother seavin' bee, long 's they lived!"—Youth's Companion.

A Doctor for Meisssonier's Dog.
Here is a good story of a doctor and a painter's wife. The doctor's name does not appear, but the painter was Meisssonier. Mme. Meisssonier sent for the family physician in a great hurry. He came, thinking some illness had overtaken the artist. But it was not the artist; it was only a lapdog. He pocketed his pride and attended the patient, who soon recovered. At the end of the year the bill came in, but there was no item for attendance on the dog. Mme. Meisssonier noticed the omission and told the doctor to charge. He would not charge; he said he could not charge, he was not a vet. He was very glad to be kind to the dog, etc. The lady insisted. Well, said the doctor, the hinges of my garden gate are rusty; ask M. Meisssonier to bring his brush and paint them for me.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Copper Came from Cyprus.
The word copper is generally admitted to be derived from Cyprus, as it was from that island that the ancient Romans first procured their supplies. In those remote days Cyprus and Rhodes were the great copper districts; and even in our own day new discoveries of copper ore, especially the beautiful blue and green ores—from which the metal is so much more easily obtained than from the copper pyrites and other sulphuretted ores of Cornwall—are being made nearly every year in the islands of the Mediterranean.—Chambers' Journal.

Shortsightedness.
It is a disgrace to our educational institutions that half of our students bring away from them myopic—shortsighted—eyes, and that, even in our grammar schools, children who have hardly reached their teens become life long slaves to spectacles, formerly regarded as the almost exclusive badge and burden of old age. And it must be remembered that short sightedness is not a mere inconvenience, but a disorder that tends toward ultimate visual disorganization.—Youth's Companion.

Ship in California in 1888.

The ship Oxford arrived in San Francisco from Boston with sixty four skilled mechanics, who during the voyage of 190 days had manufactured all their tents, cots and hammocks, had built a boat, had made daggars of old files and inlaid the handles with gold, and having landed on some islands and found some pearl oyster shells had covered the handles of their knives with pearl in place of buckhorn. They had constructed a blacksmith's shop on board, and if a man broke his pen-knife there was another man who could mend it. The captain complained that they used up every kind of material they could lay hands on, and that it was with difficulty he kept them from cutting up his ship. Even the boys were noted for their wit. A Salem lad eighteen years of age printed on canvas in San Francisco the words "American House" and "Broadway House," and sold them as signs for twenty-two dollars. Another day he earned seventeen dollars and another fifteen for doing similar trades. He and a companion picked up the boxes that had been cast aside as useless in the city after the goods had been sold from them and got four or five dollars apiece.—George W. Sheldon in Harper's.

The Dog Went Wrong.
M. F. Minnaugh, the popular Paton avenue merchant, owns a very smart dog. When Mr. Minnaugh is short of apples or other fruits he orders the dog, Frank, a fine setter, to go to a neighbor's store and bring him what he wants, and he does. Our article on the intelligence of Frank a few days ago to a lady friend who is a very strong Prohibitionist, and said he could give Frank a note to Hill & Sank's meat market and the dog would go and get his dinner.

The good lady doubted this, and Mr. Minnaugh wrote the note and told him where to go and for what. The dog took the note, listening attentively to instructions, and to the disgust of Mr. Minnaugh trotted directly to Frank O'Donnell's barroom.

The good lady thinks even the dogs are being corrupted.—Asheville Democrat.

Queer Tricks of Defective Sight.
Almost any nearsighted man could write an interesting chapter on the queer tricks which his eyes have played upon him. Such a chapter would include experiences like this: The other day a gentleman who is not so very shortsighted was astonished to see a man going along Washington street accompanied by a red calf, which was gambling by his side. It would be impossible to describe the comical appearance to the beholder of this prancing calf on the sidewalk of Washington street. The gentleman looked on in wonder as the man and the calf drew nearer, and then he saw that the animal was merely a setter dog. Only an instant before he would have sworn that he saw the beast as plainly as he did now; but then it was a calf, and now it had undergone a sudden transformation into an Irish setter.—Boston Transcript.

The Crystal Palace.
At one period during the building of the Crystal Palace some 7,000 workmen were engaged in its erection, and some idea of its vastness may be obtained from the fact that 9,642 tons of iron were used in the framework, besides 175 tons of bolts and rivets and 103 tons of nails. Were it possible to place the panes of glass employed end to end, they would be found to extend 242 miles. For heating purposes alone there are fifty miles of piping under the floor and ten miles more of pipes carrying the water supply to the fountains. When the complete fountain system is in full go, as many as 11,783 jets are playing and throwing 120,000 gallons into the air every minute. One great display consumes 8,000,000 gallons of water.—London Tit-Bits.
