THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM. The Oregon Democrats pledge themselves anew to the principles upon which the party is founded. Then they skip all the intervening platforms and reaffirm the doctrines enunciated in the platforms of 1884 and 1888.

When they asked Dr. Edward Everett Hale the other day the secret of keeping young at the age of 70, he said: "First, never do anything yourself which you can get another to do for you; second, never trouble yourself as to who will get the credit for what is done; third, never work after 8 o'clock in the afternoon; fourth, sleep ten hours out of every twenty-four."

J. P. Blaize, a real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of that state during the recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review. Mr. Blaize had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm. Inside of an hour he was threatened with a severe case of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blaize sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and that in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaize regards his cure as simply wonderful. 50 cent bottles sold by Geo. E. Good, druggist.

THE WRITERS OF GREAT HYMNS. It seems a singular fact that apparently nothing in a literary way will relegate a writer to oblivion so surely as to be the author of a world famous hymn. I have often thought of this upon being introduced to some person of whom I had never heard, only to find that he or she is the author of some hymn familiar to almost every one. Take a few instances. For example, nearly every one has heard or sung the line of "Shall We Gather at the River?" and yet how many know even the name of the author, much less the fact that he is living? Yet few men are more respected in Plainfield, N. J., than is the Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D. Way out in Richmond, Ill., lives Dr. S. Fillmore Bennett. To how many is that name familiar, yet to whom is his familiar church song, "The Sweet By and Bye," not familiar?

In the interior of New York state lives Mrs. Annie Sherwood Hawks, who wrote those famed lines of "I Need Thee Every Hour." Only a little better known, and sometimes less forgotten, is the Rev. Dr. Samuel Francis Smith, the author of our national anthem, "My Country 'Tis of Thee," as well as the hymn "The Morning Light is Breaking." As one of the professors of the University of Rochester, the Rev. Henry Gilmore is far better known than the author of the lines, "He Leadeth Me, Oh, Blessed Thought."—Edward Bok in New York Epoch.

It Lacked Life. Almost every little community contains at least one person, usually a woman, who appears to take a morbid pleasure in attending funerals. She goes whether or not she was intimate or even acquainted with the deceased person. It is enough for her that there is to be a funeral. Such a woman lives in a little Connecticut town. She is known to all her neighbors as Aunt Hetty. In most respects she is like a good many other harmless and well meaning people, but those who know her well say that she counts that week as loss in which there has been no funeral to attend.

She had just returned from one of the other day looking rather downcast, when a neighbor met her. "Been to the funeral, Aunt Hetty?" "Yes, I went." "She wasn't a particular friend of yours, was she?" "Oh, no; I never spoke to her in my life."

"I thought she might be a friend, you looked so sad over it." "Well, truth is, I couldn't seem to enjoy it, somehow. I don't know just what the trouble was, but there didn't seem to be no life to it."—Youth's Companion.

Entertainment by Telephone. In this country the Long Distance Telephone company makes a special feature of giving concerts and entertainments by telephone to large gatherings in towns where the long distance service is introduced for the first time. These entertainments are generally conducted from the head office in New York, from which office some of the numbers in the programme will be provided. Perhaps a string band, a quartet, a cornet soloist and an elocutionist. The artistic endeavors of these performers will be varied by switching on a line to a theater where some popular comic opera is being performed, or to the house of some favorite singer who has promised to sing a song at a certain hour. In this manner a large audience at some town 200 or 300 miles from New York is treated to a fine delectable variety entertainment that only electricity can provide.—Electricity.

Ants Like Human Beings. It has been ascertained beyond a doubt that in Texas and South America, as well as in southern Europe, India and Africa, there are ants which not only have a military organization and wage systematic warfare, but also keep slaves and carry on agricultural pursuits. Nineteen species of ants with these habits have been already discovered and their modes of life more or less fully described. Indeed, nearly all the institutions and gradations of culture and civilization which the human race has passed through, and of which we find survivals among the different tribes of men, exist also among ants.—Atlantic Monthly.

The Right Color of a Pipe. Colonel Wagstaff, of New York city, has a valuable pipe on whose bowl is carved the head of an Arabian. The colonel has used the utmost care in coloring the pipe, and stopped smoking it as soon as it had acquired the beautiful chestnut brown so highly prized by the smoker. Curiously enough the color is a very natural one so far as an Arab is concerned. Colonel Wagstaff is a well known collector of pipes, of which he has about fifty.—Collector.

THE RUSTLER WAR.

They Are After the Cattlemen Though Guarded by Troops.

A FOOLISH MAN.

Killed Himself Because of a Lover's Quarrel.

BROOKFIELD, Mo., April 22.—Word reached here yesterday morning that Frank James, assistant station agent at Meadville, this county, committed suicide last evening. The young man had been keeping company with Miss Abbie Creamer for some time. Last week they had a misunderstanding, and the young lady refused to have anything more to do with him. Yesterday Frank sent her a note, asking her if he might call last night, but the young woman and her mother were going out to call on friends and told him so in answer. About 7 o'clock Mrs. Creamer and her daughter left the house and spent the evening with neighbors. When they returned, about 9 o'clock, they found the key, which they had hung up near the door, gone, and saw a bright light in the parlor. Looking through the door, they saw the form of a man lying on the floor. They finally gained entrance through the back door, and found the lifeless form of Miss Creamer's former lover. A revolver, with one empty chamber, and a small vial partially filled with morphine, were at his side. He left no note or word as to his suicide. Before going to the house James went around town and paid a few debts. He gave his gold watch to his mother, saying that he was going to get a larger one for himself.

THE CAPTURED CATTLEMEN.

Rustlers Are Determined to Get Them if Possible.

SAGE CREEK, Wyo., April 22.—Colonel Van Horn, and his command left Fort McKinley early yesterday morning in charge of forty-two captured cattlemen. Where they are at present no one knows. A snow storm has been raging with unabated severity and the trail between the fort and Douglas is in frightful condition. It was the intention of the troops to make Powder river the objective point of the first day's march, but it was absolutely impossible to get further than Crazy Woman, twenty miles from the starting point. There they camped Monday night, and if the storm here was any criterion of that up there, they did not move a hoof yesterday. The weather this morning is clearing and it is probable that the march will be resumed. If so, the critical point of the march will be reached at Powder river. The military guard is not more than 150 mounted men, and 500 thoroughly armed and much better equipped settlers in that neighborhood, determined to get possession of the forty-two cattlemen. No better spot for an ambush could be selected than in the immediate vicinity of Powder river. Canyons and ravines abound, and fifty expert riflemen could easily pick off the escort and prisoners from the sheltering rocks. The cattlemen are being transported in heavy wagons drawn by four-horse teams furnished by the stage company. If no difficulty be experienced from an attack by settlers, the march will be a hard one, for there is no point on road between Crazy Woman and Brown springs, a distance of ninety miles, where hay or grain could be obtained for the horse. As a sample of the traveling along the road between Douglas and Fort McKinley, it took from 6 o'clock till 3 o'clock yesterday morning to make the trip from Douglas to Sage Creek, a distance of twenty-five miles, the ride being made in an open buggy, in the face of a driving snow storm, and that section of the road is the best of the 150 miles between the fort and Douglas. Forced marches may lead them at the county seat of Converse county by today.
