THE VETO MESSAGE DISSECTED.
 In the opening words Mr. D'Arcy says he does not deem it expedient to discuss the legal phases involved in the Chemeketa street ordinance. He did not stick to this conclusion for he does discuss legal propositions, and the best legal minds in the city will not agree with him on any of them. A veto message that does not discuss legal propositions is an absurdity on its face. He decides in an off-hand way that the grade established in the ordinance is an impracticable one, but offers no proof of his assertion. How, or why the grade is "impracticable" he does not "deem it expedient at this time to discuss," but leaves the public to jump at the conclusion, as he seems to have done himself. Next he makes an argument for his veto because the ordinance allows the street committee discretion to make the grade practicable wherever it is not so, and calls it an absurd provision. Of course it was perfectly absurd of the council to insert the very remedy the use of which knocked all the wind out of his first objection. But the mayor's "serious objection" is that the "Capital City Railway company is not required to improve the street where the track is laid." The mayor shows lamentable ignorance of the charter of the street railway company which provides that the company shall improve its portion of the street under direction of the city authorities whenever the street is improved. As shown by interviews with the officers of the company, they had fully expected to comply and had already purchased the material. The main political prop of his veto consists of an attack on this company that has no foundation whatever in fact.

THE ONLY SENSIBLE OBJECTION to the whole message is the statement that the city is unable at present to bear the expense of paving the intersections. But with all the other statements, can the sincerity of this proposition be accepted? Those who know say the mayor himself interjected this very defect into the ordinance for the purpose of defeating it.

But why pave Chemeketa? asks the mayor. He objects to expense of intersections. Would he not object still more to the city paying for paving both sides of Willson avenue? But "we have no assurance," says the mayor "that the street will be perfectly constructed." Is not this openly asserting that the contractor, Archie Mason is a fraud? Can it be that Archie is one of those wicked pharisaical boomers? The mayor thinks he redeems himself, however by shedding some hypocritical tears for the poor people of Chemeketa street.

As a matter of fact Mr. Mayor, do you not know that as many bankers, moneylenders, retired merchants, capitalists and well-to-do people reside and own property on that street as on any in the city? As for the poor, there are none on the part of the street sought to be improved. It is true the burden would fall pretty heavy on St. Joseph's Catholic church which owns an entire block.

The mayor's sudden anxiety to improve business property is rather rich. For did not that very lord mayor say to the council, "let us first improve a residence street? Ye gentlemen of the common council when next you meet will you not say to your chief magistrate: Shake not your gory head at us! Thou canst not say we did it."

The veto aside, what of the mayor's abuse of certain perfectly respectable elements of our city's population in an official document? Even if the mayor had the power, real estate dealers cannot be outlawed. If the Salem board of trade has committed a crime in bringing eastern people here, it is an offense that any other city on the coast will be glad to condone.

The Bombast of an Egotist.
 ED. JOURNAL: The following passage occurs in the Chemeketa street veto message of Mayor D'Arcy: It would be a wholesome and proper thing for the council to frequently consider the reform measures which I submitted in my first message.

Of course, it is to be presumed that this is a free country and no one is obliged to read anything unless it is worth reading, even an egotistical, bombastical mayor's message. To ask persons, even tho' they be common councilmen, to "frequently consider the reform measures which I submitted" is an exhibition of gall that deserves only contempt and that is probably all that it will receive, when this bombast with a big "I" is considered in the light of the actual record for "reform measures" which the mayor has made.

What is that record? At the last meeting of the council there was a tie vote on three propositions where the mayor's vote, if he had been present and recorded it for reform, would have carried three propositions to reduce the fixed expenses of the city thousands of dollars. The mayor, however, was absent at a political convention and reform measures went galore.

The city advertised for bids not to be below par on $20,000 bonds on a certain date and hour. At the time set the bids are ready and the mayor changes the hour for opening the same to an unknown date. The result is that while the city was offered on that date par and a premium of $117, with all accrued interest and expense of issuing bonds paid, by the delay it had to sell the bonds to the third lower bidder at a discount of $575, the city suffering a loss of about $1000 and the bonds probably invalidated by the unwarrantable action of the mayor. It would be a wholesome and proper thing for the mayor to consider his own pledges of economy and reform.

J. P. Blaise, a real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of that state during the recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review.

Mr. Blaise had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm. Inside of an hour he was threatened with a severe case of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blaise sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and that in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaise regards his cure as simply wonderful. 50 cent bottles sold by Geo. E. Good, druggist.

A jury in Kentucky has decided in C. W. Williams' favor in the suit for $25,000 damages, entered by Horseman Massey, injured by the falling of a platform at the Independence (La.) races.

It is claimed that cocaine was used in the way of hypodermic injections on the stallion Palo Alto to relieve the soreness in one of his fore legs, and that it was by reason of this treatment that he was able to trot in 2:08½.

Major Campbell Brown, of Nashville, has one hind and one fore foot of the grand old mare Mary M. mounted in silver and uses them for paperweights. Mary M. was the dam of Andante, 2:20½; Annie W., 2:20; McEwen, 2:18½, etc.
 The growth of the trotting turf, as evidenced by the money offered, to be won in 1892, is simply phenomenal. At Independence, Ia., C. W. Williams announces $100,000 for next August, Columbia, Tenn., hangs up $100,000; Grand Rapids, Mich., $50,000, and many other places of lesser note from $20,000 to $40,000. Nashville offers $100,000.

Two Finds of Coins.
 In 1822 a number of laborers engaged in clearing away some rubbish discovered several gold coins of the early reigns of the Henrys, and some silver coins of Charles I and Elizabeth, all in a very perfect state. About the same time, too, a farmer in France discovered a vase full of pieces of money. The coins numbered about 12,000 and bore the effigies of several Roman emperors, among others that of Augustus. They were said to be of a metal composed of copper and silver, and were of different diameters.—London Tit-Bits.

TORNADO IN CHICAGO.
 Sene Account of the Damage at Jackson Park.

WORLD'S FAIR BUILDINGS.
 Destroyed by a Gale on Wednesday Afternoon.

CHICAGO, April 29.—During a gale that swept through Jackson Park Wednesday afternoon, sections of the south and west wall of the manufacturers' and liberal arts building of the world's fair were wrecked. This is the biggest building on the grounds. One tornado followed another. About 1:30 p. m., the first one hit the big building at the southeast corner, and tore out 100 feet of the latticed woodwork that served as a wall. Three men were injured in the wreck—Charles Sandow, A. Johnson and W. B. Johnson. Half an hour later another tornado tore through the park, and in its path left the wreck of the west wall, 100 feet long and 66 feet high. Nobody was injured in the fall. When the first section tumbled down all the employees climbed down from the building. Nearly all of them were crowded about the wrecked section when the second tornado 'did the greatest damage. Scores of workmen would have been carried down with falling timbers had the west section given way first.

Warned of their peril by the collapse of the south wall, they hurried down before the second section fell. The wind blew great guns all day, but the laborers kept at their work. After the first crash Frank Agnew, contractor for the carpenter work on the building, ordered his men to make ready for another shock by bracing the weaker sections of the building. He was confident that the west wall would stand against any storm, but had less confidence in the strength of the east wall, which stretches 1718 feet along the lake "shore and is fully exposed to the winds. Before his orders could be carried out the second gale swept through the park. It also came from the southwest and rushed through the building with frightful velocity. The tornado seemed to describe a circle across the thirty-acre floor and strike the extreme northwest corner of the building. The first damage was done at the southeast corner. The massive timbers trembled and shook for an instant before the blast. The whole section rocked, and a deafening roar sounded through the building. One of the heavy wall-piers at the very corner of the building snapped and plunged forward with the center of the wall, and as it fell it carried down the next pier south of it. The whole wall crumbled, falling down by piers and trusses, like so many blocks in a row. In an instant the entire section, 700 feet long and sixty-six feet high, was piled on the floor. The few workmen who remained at their posts went down with the wreck, but escaped injury. Three of them jumped to save their lives. The damage to the building is estimated at from $10,000 to $20,000. This building is the largest fair building in the world. It is 1700 feet long by 150 feet wide, and will cost $1,500,000.

A BIG CONSPIRACY.
 Firms Combine to Defraud a Bank.

DENVER, April 29.—A sensational exposure was made during the hearing of the attachment suit against the defunct liquor firm of Boehman & Co. by the First National bank. The firm failed for $250,000. A member of the Mound City Distilling Company stated during the trial that Boehman & Co. and Nagle & Becker, liquor brokers of Chicago, had entered into a conspiracy, whereby the former was to purchase through them goods amounting to $4,000,000 and then fail, the Chicago firm to share the profits. In this way over $50,000 worth was disposed of in Chicago, Denver and the East. An attachment of the bank was declared void on the ground the discounted paper was not given for a consideration.

BLAINE ALL RIGHT.
 He Makes an Argument Before a Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Secretary Blaine appeared yesterday before the senate committee on commerce and made a strong argument opposing the pending resolution authorizing the landing of a French cable on the shores of Virginia and South Carolina. His objection was that the French cable company, co-
