

"German Syrup"

For Throat and Lungs

"I have been ill for Hemorrhage about five years, 'have had the best Five Years, 'medical advice, 'and took the first 'dose in some doubt. This result- 'ed in a few hours sleep. There 'was no further hemorrhage till next 'day, when I had a slight attack 'which stopped almost immedi- 'ately. By the third day all trace of 'blood had disappeared and I had 'recovered much strength. The 'fourth day I sat up in bed and ate 'my dinner, the first solid food for 'two months. Since that time I 'have gradually gotten better and 'am now able to move about the 'house. My death was daily ex- 'pected and my recovery has been 'a great surprise to my friends and 'the doctor. There can be no doubt 'about the effect of German Syrup, 'as I had an attack just previous to 'its use. The only relief was after 'the first dose." J. R. LOUGHRAN, Adelaide, Australia.

Cross Purposes.

An Irishman one morning went out very early in search of some game on an estate where the game laws were strictly enforced. Turning a sharp corner, whom did he meet but the gentleman who owned the estate.

Paddy, seeing the game was up, coolly advanced toward the gentleman and said: "The top of the morning to your honor! And what brought your honor out so early this morning?"

The gentleman replied by saying, "Indeed, Paddy, I just strolled out to see if I could find an appetite for my breakfast," and eying Paddy rather suspiciously added, "And now, Paddy, what brought you out so early this morning?"

"Indeed, your honor, I just strolled out to see if I could find a breakfast for my appetite!" said Paddy.—Spare Moments.

Mrs. Malaprop's Successor.

Mrs. Malaprop, wife of the English railway king, was a worthy successor of Mrs. Malaprop. Here are two stories of her related by Mr. Vernon Heath in his "Recollections." Mr. Hudson had issued cards for an evening party "to meet the Duke of Wellington." The night arrived, the guests assembled and the rooms were crowded, but no duke, though at a late hour his grace arrived, when Mrs. Hudson, who was ready to receive him, said, "Oh, duke, you are so late, and I have been so anxious for tonight, you know, you are my prima donna!"

Desiring to visit the celebrated Bridgewater gallery, at the residence of Lord Ellesmere, Mrs. Hudson was duly shown the treasures of art there collected. In passing through the corridor, where much beautiful sculpture is exhibited, the visitor was struck by a bust of Marcus Aurelius. Addressing the housekeeper, she inquired, "And who may this be?" "That is Marcus Aurelius, m'am."

"Oh, indeed?" said Mrs. Hudson; "father of the present marquis, I presume!"—Argonaut.

Premature.

An old farmer from one of the back counties of the land, and he had been making a strong fight for it. When the other side began his speech he said:

"May it please the court, I take the ground."

The old farmer jumped up and sung out, "What's that? What's that?" The judge called him down.

"May it please the court," began the attorney again, not noticing the interruption, "I take the ground."

"No, I'll be hanged if you do either," shouted the old farmer; "anyhow not until the court decides the case."—Green Bag.

Uncertain.

Fledgely—I have loved you, Alice, these three weeks! Do you love me in return?

Alice—I do not know, Mr. Fledgely, but we will see. In a new novelette I've been reading called "Love, Love, Love," is the passage, "When Algeron Dunbar encircled, as an equator, Margilord's dainty figure with the dainty fillet of gold, her heart leaped into her eyes, her soul quivered like an aspen leaf, and she knew she loved him."

MANY PECULIAR TITLES.

Names of Religious Societies and Denominations in the United Kingdom.

In the return made to the registrar general of the names of the various religious denominations and sects throughout the United Kingdom, there appears some which, in selecting their badge of distinction, have taken unto themselves somewhat peculiar and novel appellations. Every shade of religion is represented, and from the greatest stickler for religious sectarianism to the most ardent advocate of universal religious toleration, there is some body, society, band or mission which admits of all individuals following their own religious inclinations.

Without dealing with the religious denominations which are familiar to most people we will take a glance at the various sects which carry on their devotional work under the names of bands, armies, etc.

We find that there are only two sects who, in choosing their titles, have taken the word "love"—which must ever be a necessary component of religion—as one of its constituents. These are the Mission of Love and the Loving Brethren.

Among those who form themselves into bands the most conspicuous are the Glory Band and the Hallelujah Band.

The ending of a sect with a name which savors of military action is very rare. The most prominent of this class are the Army of the King's Own, the Salvation Army, the Army of the Lord, the Church Army, Christian Soldiers, Holiness Army, the Red Ribbon Army, the Blue Ribbon Gospel Army, the White Ribbon Gospel Army, the Redeemed Army, the Hosanna Army, King's Own Army, King Jesus' Army, the Gospel Army, and the Crusade Mission Army.

In contradistinction to the title of the Salvation Army there is a sect which is called the Salvation "Navy."

There are many sects which still continue to retain the name of their founder or originator, such as the Lutherans (there are also the Danish Lutherans and the German Lutherans), the Glasites, Inghamites and Wesleyans. Also the believers in Joanna Southcott and the Countess of Huntingdon's connection.

Among the Baptist denomination there are many distinctive sects. The most peculiar are the Strict Baptists, the Particular Baptists, the Seventh Day Baptists, Open Baptists, Scottish Baptists and the Union Baptists.

In concluding the list there are some which may be classed under a general heading, such as Strictly Undenominational, Bible Christians, Open Brethren, Open Plymouth Brethren, Plymouth Brethren, Rational Christians, Recreative Religiousists, Protestants Adhering to Articles 1 to 18, Psalms of David Society, Full Salvationists and the Peculiar People.

The above only form a collection of the most peculiar appellations of the different religious sects.—London Tit-Bits.

Rare Ware Easily Duplicated.

Palsies were one of the easiest categories to imitate. Specimens can be, and indeed, are now currently produced which are in every respect but antiquity identical with the originals. The common pipe clay which forms the body of the ware is every where at hand, as in Palsies' days; and the composition of the colored enamels and the methods of their application are perfectly known and offer not the slightest difficulty to the modern potter, while the relief decoration of the original pieces can be either reproduced by molding from them or else imitated by casts taken from the shells, lizards, fish, fern leaves, etc., which were the types Palsies himself made use of. In short, specimens of modern Palsies ware have been produced in France absolutely indistinguishable from the ancient examples.—Nineteenth Century.

A Bishop's Remark.

David Wolfe Bishop was the latest beneficiary by the will of his late cousin, the eccentric Miss Catharine Wolfe. It is related of him that he once met the bishop of New York at his cousin's home during her last illness.

Bishop Potter was also interested in a legacy. As they came down the steps together David Wolfe remarked to the ecclesiastic: "Two bishops and only one lamb. Singular, is it not?" To which Dr. Potter said to have pleasantly replied: "Ah, yes. Two bishops and only one crook"—a remark that has caused perhaps as much speculation as anything the clergyman ever said.—New York Recorder.

Where Ivory and Tin Came From.

Among all the products of Semitic trade perhaps the most interesting are ivory and tin. The question still remains to be finally settled as to what were the original sources whence both these precious substances were obtained. As regards ivory, there appears to have been a double source, the Egyptians and Carthaginians using African ivory, while the Assyrians and Phoenicians obtained it from India.—Scottish Review.

Peculiarities of Frost.

To Slay or to Be Slain.

To attract the dragon of disease and annihilate him before he could take root, or to allow him to attain to a dangerous maturity and then destroy him—that is the question of paramount importance to all afflicted with organic ailments. Among these disorders of the kidneys and bladder are of the most frequent and dangerous kind. Their growth is rapid, their elimination, death, bright disease, ordinary nephritis, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, gravel, prostration of the renal organs, besides the most serious and dangerous, are the result of the disease, and the patient is left a mere shadow of his former self.

Liberty Street

Two Street of Candles.

We were in La Calle de las Velas—the Street of the Candles. It was the way which all devout ones had to take on their route to the shrine, and no one could worship there without a lighted candle in hand. Therefore there was an enormous business done in candles, which, to meet the requirements of the church, had to be of pure beeswax. The street was lined with booths for the sale of these, which were displayed in amazing quantities and in a variety of handsome shapes and attractive colors. Probably the idea was that the more elaborate and costly a candle the devotee held in his hand before the altar the greater the efficacy of the ceremony for himself.

The revenue from the sale of the candles was a prerogative of the curia—the parish priest—whose position was so snug and comfortable as to make him the envy of all his colleagues in that part of Mexico. The income from various sources during the feria was so great as to assure the curia a very handsome personal return, as well as to maintain the church in first class condition. I was informed that another priest had offered his brother of Tepic $10,000 a year for his position, but the proposition was not entertained for an instant. These candles were not only paid for at goodly prices, but it was the rule that they must be left in the church at the end of the ceremony.

The curia therefore got the greater part of the wax back again, to be made over into fresh candles, for the ceremonies very likely, with regard to the due economy of wax, were made conveniently short.—Sylvester Baxter in Harper's.

Dealing with an Indian Chief.

On one occasion the late Sir Donald McLean was commissioned by the colonial government to purchase a large tract of land from a Maori chief. For three days Sir Donald remained the chief's guest. They rode, talked, ate and smoked together. Each night the bags of gold containing part of the purchase money were solemnly handed over to the chief for safe keeping and restored again to the commissioner's attendant in the morning. But not a word was said about the purchase of the land.

On the third morning Sir Donald prepared to return. The horses were exchanged and farewells were exchanged.

"Go on your way in peace," said the chief.

"Dwell in safety in your village," replied the commissioner.

Then at last the Maori, beaten at his own game, gave in.

"Does not my friend know that I wish to sell the land? Why does he not speak about it?"

After that of course the business was soon settled.—All the Year Round.

Palsies Was an Imitator.

Curiously enough Palsies himself was an imitator, that is to say, he availed himself of another man's work by similar processes of mechanical reproduction. Simultaneously with the production of Palsies' ware the production of another celebrated artist, Francois Briot, executed beautiful work on enbossed pewter; in particular, fine rosewater dishes and ewers, decorated with arabesque ornaments in low relief.

One of the best known and most popular models of these ewers and dishes was reproduced at the time by Palsies in his enameled earthenware by molding from the pewter originals, and the pieces which were more beautiful and covetable things than the simpler prototypes. These ancient Palsies reproductions of Briot's pewter wares are now of the utmost rarity. The dishes and ewers are never found together, and in fact very few examples of either are now extant.—Nineteenth Century.

Why Gold Is Rare.

Why is gold so rare? Simply because it is heavy. There are only two metals that are heavier, namely platinum and iridium. Remember that at the beginning the earth was a body of gas. By gradual condensation it became liquid, while now the whole of its mass, save only an outer crust, much thinner in proportion to the whole bulk than is the shell of an egg, would be a fluid but for the fact that it is held together by tremendous pressure. Naturally, in the course of its formation about a center of attraction, the weightier particles composing the globe gathered about that center. Accordingly we find that the earth as a whole weighs five times as much as water, while the rocks forming the crust are only about 2 1/2 times as heavy as water.—Washington Star.

The Professor in a Fix.

"Ah, is that you, my friend! So pleased to see you after your long absence; how is your dear wife?" "I am unmarried, Herr Professor."

"Oh, indeed? Ah, to be sure—still, I thought positively—ahem!—but what I meant to say—how long then have you been unmarried?" Tagliche Rundschau.

FREE THOROUGHFARE.

In hollow trees Live white owls, chipmunks, bats and bees. If I were a chipmunk, bat or bee, I'd pack my stores in an empty tree!

Under the ground Ants and beetles and snakes are found; And truth! the snake with a leathery skin Needs a cellar to hide him in!

By the brook's brink Splash! go the beaver, muskrat, mink. Clashed in a doublet close as he, A beaver's hut were the place for me!

High over the rocks, Lord of his watch tower, dwells the fox; Were I more fleet than the west wind I, I'd have a steeple as steep as his!

Of nose and beak, Tooth and tail, it were long to speak; Every creature I much admire Who lives in winter and needs no fire.

Whom'er one meets Has roofed his chamber or paved his street; Yet of all their wits not one, you see, Has learned the secret of lock and key.

Canada's Biggest Man.

Leonard Whittton, of Brighton, brother of the cheese inspector, James Whittton, of Belleville, has continued to gain in flesh and is now classed as the biggest man in Canada. He weighs 469 pounds. His measurement is as follows: Around the shoulders, 5 feet 6 inches; chest, 5 feet 2 inches; hips 6 feet 2 inches; neck, 1 foot 11 inches; arm at shoulder, 2 feet 2 inches; arm below elbow, 1 foot 5 inches; thigh, 3 feet 9 inches; calf, 2 feet. His head measurement around the temples is 23 inches. Mr. Whittton attends daily to his business and is quite nimble on foot. Ten years ago he did not weigh more than 150 pounds, and during the past few years he has increased in weight rapidly. He is comparatively young, under forty years of age and may yet add an extra fifty or seventy-five pounds to his enormous weight.—Belleville Ontario.

She Failed to Take the Compliment.

Lord Lytton was seated one day at dinner next to a lady whose name was Birch, and, as tradition says, was beautiful if not overintelligent. She said to his excellency, "Are you acquainted with any of the Birches?" Replied his excellency, "Oh, yes, I know some of them most intimately while at Eton; indeed, more intimately than I cared to."

"Sir," replied the lady, "you forget that the Birches are relatives of mine." "And yet they cut me," said the viceroy; "but," and he smiled his wonted smile, "I have never felt more inclined to kiss the rod than I do now." Mrs. Birch, to say the least, did not see the point, and so the gossip has it, told her husband that his excellency had insulted her.—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Tail of a Wolf.

The wolf carries its tail hanging down because in that position it is less conspicuous and better eludes detection. A family of wolves playing together undisturbed occasionally carry their tails curled upward. By degrees the tail acquires naturally the upright position as a result of coincident evolution of the mind of the wolf by domestication and of the slow adaptation of the appendage as an organ of expression. The cessation of natural selection in the domestic dog would give the tail greater freedom of motion without detriment to life, and artificial selection modifies it into various shapes.—American Naturalist.

Hindoo Ideas of Beauty.

Hindoo families, when they wish to be particularly lovely, smear themselves with a mixture of saffron and grease, and in nearly all the islands of the Pacific and Indian oceans the women, as well as the men, tattoo a great variety of figures on the face, the lips and the tongue.—Yankee Blade.

A Custom in Greenland.

When a child dies in Greenland the natives bury a live dog with it, the dog to be used by the child as a guide to the other world. When questioned in regard to this superstition they will only answer, "A dog can find his way anywhere."—Philadelphia Press.

Where Spiders Are Venerated.

We never kill spiders in Fiji. The natives venerate them as much as the Dutchman does his stork, and perhaps with more reason, for they are the enemies of the huge cockroaches.—Fiji Cor. Notes and Queries.

To walk is wise, independent, manly and moral. It is also healthy and agreeable. Our characteristic impatience and fury of competition has introduced artificial and in a measure objectionable features into it.

The minds that guide the progress of the world make their owners far superior to any physical charms. That's where we come in. We wouldn't be handsome for anything.

Tests in electrically welding rails for horse or steam cars show that the importance of allowing for the contraction and expansion at the joints has been overrated.

Absolutely the Best.

"I never hesitate to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as absolutely the best," says Mr. F. B. Kemp, assistant manager of the Youngstown, Ohio, Daily Telegram one of the most influential and valuable newspapers in the Buckeye state. Mr. Kemp also says: "I have found it a certain cure for the cough usually following an attack of the grippe, and always keep a bottle of it in the house." 50 cent bottles for sale by G. E.
