WHERE ICE FORMS IN HOT WEATHER.

Montana Ice Shaft That Enables Whole Town to Keep Cool.

There is a remarkable ice shaft not far from this place. It is a freak of nature formed in an abandoned shaft sunk by miners in old York gulch in Meagher county, Mon.

This gulch was very rich for drift diggers in early days. It paid as high as $400 to a four foot set of timbers, which two miners could easily put in with a day's work. Several years ago two miners sunk a shaft along one side of the gulch, about three miles above its mouth, or where the gulch empties into Trout creek. The shaft was put down about fifty-five feet below the surface of the gulch, and it was well timbered from the bottom to the top, with a good, stout ladder to go down on.

The miners struck the rim of the gulch, and missing the pay streak they abandoned the shaft, as it was of no more use to them.

There has since formed about midway of the shaft a solid mass of ice clear around the shaft, with the ex-ception of a small airhole in its center. It is frozen to the timbers of the shaft. There is no water dripping from the sides and none in the bottom of the shaft; but there is a solid body of ice at the bottom. What seems very strange is that the ice in the shaft is more abundant and forms faster in the warmest summer weather than it does in the winter months.

The mass of ice in the center of the shaft, or about half way down from the surface, is about six feet thick, with an airhole through the center that will permit the passage of a man's body. By putting down a rope one can go to the bottom

A strong, cold current of air continually comes up from below. It is so cold in the shaft that a person can C. A. ROBERT, Architect, room 424, Mar quam building, Portland, Oregon. stay in it but a short time, and even then be must be dressed in his rejection.

Making Sure of the Architect.
Noman-Al-Aouar, an Arabian king who reigned long, long ago at Hirah, commanded the architect Sennemar to build him a wondrous palace. This the architect did, and when it was done a single stone fastened the whole structure, and the colors of the walls changed frequently during the day. The king was greatly pleased, and showered all kinds of rich gifts upon the builder with the lavishness of oriental kings. But monarchs were treacherous in those old days, and it occurred to the king of the short of the said defendants three months before he could get out again.—Leeds Mercury.

A Pleased Englishman.
A globe trotting Englishman's habit was to amuse himself and while away life by going wheresoever there was promise of novelty, danger or excitement. He had been to the African diamond fields, to the Mahdi's realms, to our frontier mining camps and he was on his way to see the cowboys, about whom he had read a great deal.

"They are a very rum sort of beg gars," said he—"a very rum sort of beg gars, and it occurred to the king of the sale of said premises of said the said detendants the said defendants the said defendants and th

Salmon Going the Way of the Buffalo. It looks as though the salmon fisheries of the Columbia river, which have added enormously to the wealth of the northwest, would in the course of a few years become exhausted. The fate of the Columbia will probably be that of the Sacramento river, can be done in this way would suffice to save the fisheries.

It seems that the salmon will not remain in rivers the waters of which are frequently disturbed by steam- fire. If he can lie down and have boats and that flow through thickly inhabited countries. The salmon fire will go out instantly, whereas a fishing of the not very distant future will likely be almost entirely confined to British Columbia and Alaska. -Denyer Republican.

Looking Down a Horse's Thront. A new instrument that possesses value and novelty is a speculum for examining horses' mouths. It is the invention of an Illinois man, and consists of a bit broad enough to keep the horse's mouth open and an arrangement of reflectors to determine easily the condition of the throat and mouth.-New York Journal.

The more he thought over it the more jealous he became, until one day he ordered the architect to be thrown from the top of the palace, to make certain that no duplicate palace would be made. After this the king was satisfied that his palace was the only one, and the Arabians regarded it as one of the wonders of the Ralph in Harper's Weekly

A Hint to People Who Use Lamps. Policemen and firemen are fre-nently called into private houses to Policemen and firemen are frequently called into private houses to put out exploding lamps or clothing that has caught fire from an accident of the kind. When a lamp is blazing ceiling high it requires considerable nerve to take hold of it and hurl it out of a window, but that is the simplest and best way to prevent disaster. The same applies to any one whose clothing is covered with oil and on some soil shoveled on his clothes the dozen buckets of water would hurt him much worse than the fire. A bucket of sand standing in a cupboard in a room where a coal oil lamp is burned is a good precaution, and may check at the start what might otherwise be a most disastrous fire. - Exchange.

The Sun Hatches the Eggs. In 1793 Colnet reported that the nests of the Galapagos tortoises "were thrown up in circular form, never containing more than three eggs, which are heated by the sun, a hole being so contrived as to admit its rays through its daily course." This last very remarkable statement would seem to imply that these che-lonians were somewhat familiar with astronomy.—Boston Transcript.
