SALEM BOYS AHEAD.—At the Albany shooting tournament on the 4th the Salem gun club played a full hand. F. A. Turner carried off the first prize for the highest general average and Glenn took second. Turner also won a fine Marlin rifle, a pair of binoculars, a barrel of flour, and several other things besides some cash prizes. C. D. Gabrielson walked off with a bridle, a whip, a surcingle, a fancy cane, a razor, and some other jewelry, besides a good purse. Several of the other Salem boys also dipped into the exchequer, and when they get the plunder all together the Salem gun club will charter a car and bring it home.

THANKS.—Alert Hook & Ladder Co., last night tendered a vote of thanks to Mrs. O. D. Hutton for a beautiful bouquet of flowers presented them for their truck on the Fourth.

MARRIAGE LICENSE.—Was granted yesterday to C. E. Brady, aged 23, and Reita May Magis, aged 16.

NO QUORUM.—There was to have been a meeting of the city council last night, but as no quorum was present an adjournment was taken until tonight.

PROSPERITY AND PROGRESS.
What a Salem Merchant is Doing
ALL FOR SALEM'S BENEFIT.
Cold Storage and Ice Making--
Ed. Cross' New Plant.

Last spring, it will be remembered, Ed. C. Cross, Salem's enterprising market man, made a tour of inspection to San Francisco and other points, to investigate the matter of putting in a cold storage and ice-making plant. After two weeks research among all the large and small plants, he returned home and decided to put in what he considers the best in the world, Dillenberg's direct expansion system. Mr. Dillenberg is considered the best authority on the coast on these machines, and has himself been here several weeks superintending the putting up of this plant, of which we will endeavor to give a comprehensive description.

The rooms are built of 11 inch walls, which consist of four thicknesses of matched lumber, including three air spaces, which are lined with the heaviest building paper. Several coats of insular paraffine paint makes the enclosure about as nearly impervious to heat as is possible. The structure contains 22,000 feet of lumber, and has required from ten to fifteen men over a month to build it. The pork room is 10x10 feet, and will hold 100 dressed hogs. The beef room is 16x31 feet and holds 80 dressed beefs, while the mutton and veal room is only 8x5 feet, but holds 60 dressed animals.

These rooms are in the rear of Mr. Cross' State street market, while back of the same has just been put on a corrugated iron building 22x60 feet, for engine, boiler and all the new machinery. To start with, a new forty-horse boiler has been here neatly bricked up in modern style, which furnishes the steam. A new 25-horse horizontal Russell engine has just been put in by Mr. A. Mitchell, their enterprising agent. It is a beauty, and does all the work easily. Full sets of shafting and counter-shafting carry the power with belts to the various machines.

HOW IS THE COLD PRODUCED?
This is the question which everybody will ask, and as a JOURNAL reporter got an accurate account of Mr. Cross, he will endeavor to make it plain to all readers. In the first place, let us say that the cold is all produced by the expansion of liquid ammonia into a gaseous state. This liquid ammonia is carried by a pipe from the storage tank into what is called the ammonia receiver, where it is subjected to a pressure of 150 lbs to the square inch. This great pressure expands the chemical through a fine spray valve, with one-eighth of an inch opening, which opening is nearly closed by a cone point. This transforms it into gas of the highest rarity. This gas is forced through 1500 feet of piping in the cold storage rooms by the immense pressure. This becomes so cold as to form frost on the coils, and thus cools the rooms through which they pass.

After this process the gas comes back through the return pipe to the ammonia pump, which sends it at a pressure of 150 pounds to the condensers overhead. These condensers consist of coils of pipe with cold water passing over them, and thus the gas is distilled back into its original liquid state, ready to repeat its work. As the gas is thus pumped to the condensers at such high pressure the cylinders become so hot that it is necessary to have a stream of cold water flowing over them constantly.

Mr. Cross' ammonia engine has two 5x8 cylinders, so in case of any accident either one can be detached and the work not be delayed. Inside the cold storage rooms the cold current is brought down at the sides, which drives the warm air up a center flue.

There is a track with rolling books from outside the front door, runs through the shop into the different rooms, where they can be switched off to their places. A section of this track is connected with an improved Fairbanks scale in the shop, thus making it possible to weigh each piece as it comes in. Outside the meat is elevated by pulley, so there is scarcely any handling required.

To give an idea of how thoroughly this institution does its work, a test was made. After putting in twenty-five head of warm meat, the room was reduced from a temperature of 64 degrees to 30 degrees in less than 24 hours. The average temperature will be about 38 degrees.

Here the meat can hang for weeks and grow better every day. It will be absolutely dry on the surface, and no meat smell whatever can be discovered. When the machinery is shut down at night the temperature in the rooms rises only four degrees in twelve hours before starting up the next morning.

This plant has been put in at an expense of not less than $7,000, and Mr. Cross can feel truly proud of having what Mr. Dillenberg proclaims the best built and most perfect working plant on the Pacific coast. This statement he is willing to back up with a $500 forfeit if any other concern wishes to contest the point. It is truly a triumph of modern inventive genius. Consumers of meat in the capital city have ample reason to feel grateful for this grand improvement. It is for their direct benefit, and they should not fail to appreciate it. Mr. Cross will be pleased to show any one through and point out its workings.

TUESDAY NIGHT'S FIRE.
A Frame Building on Commercial Street Burned.

Tuesday evening just before midnight a police officer discovered an intense smoke in the confectionary store of Fred V. Cooper, the young blind man, and on breaking open the door the whole room seemed to burst into flames. The alarm was immediately given and the fire department was soon out and at work, but as everything was dry, the building could not be saved. Mr. Cooper says it could only have been caused from a spark or cigar stub, as no light or fire was in the building. The statement that it originated from the gasoline peanut roaster cannot be true, as the gasoline is all burnt out at 8 o'clock last evening, and could not be refilled, as Mr. Cooper was entirely out of that inflammable article. The brick building occupied by Barr & Petzel checked the fire on the north, although the flames had caught in the awning of the Lewis restaurant beyond.

The losses are, Fred V. Cooper, $1000; J. F. Spaniol, tailor, $1200; Sing Hop Co., tailors, $800. Cooper has enough insurance in the Beeler agency to cover about half his loss; Spaniol also has $1000 in the Beeler agency, and the Sing Hop Co. has $500 in the State Insurance company.

Samuel Adolph owned the building, and will no doubt replace it with a substantial brick block. Mr. Spaniol and family lived in back of the tailor shop, and had a very narrow escape.

Mr. Cooper's loss is a severe one, as he had but started up in business, and owing to his blindness receives much sympathy from every quarter.

The Second Regiment.
A competitive drill of the non-commissioned officers of the companies was held yesterday evening. There were sixteen contestants for the medal, which was won by D. E. Moran, sergeant in Company C, of Eugene.

Before the competitive drill the Eugene Marine Cadets gave an exhibition drill in Willson avenue that was truly an excellent one and showed that the boys were well trained, even if they were little fellows.

At 8 o'clock the battalion had their evening dress parade, which was held in the usual manner. After the parade Col. Lovell gave a fine creditable exhibition of volley firing. The last few volleys were about perfect, equaling the performance of veteran troops.

The Marine Cadets gave a fine exhibition of skirmish firing, which with the firing of the cannon gave us a realistic idea of what war would look like.

League Base Ball.
About 1500 people were present yesterday at the ball grounds to witness the Portland and Spokane league teams play ball. As the teams give all sort of excuses for their exhibition and are going to do so much better today we forbear making comments. We do not print the score of the game as no one would take the least interest in it.

BADLY BURNED.—Yesterday morning a frightful accident happened to little Cora Dawson at her home, No. 540 High street. She dropped a lighted match on the sidewalk and in an instant her clothing was afire and she was enveloped in flames. Mrs. Dawson heard her screams and rushed out with a little baby in her arms and attempted to extinguish the fire, but she was badly excited. Mrs. Martin, who lives in the same house, threw a blanket around the girl and put out the fire, but not until it had consumed the little one's dress, with the exception of a narrow strip in the front. Her arms and back were burned to a blister and the skin came off. A physician was called and he soon had her resting easy and he says with careful treatment the girl will recover. Mrs. Dawson's left hand was badly burned, which is very unfortunate for her as she has to take in washing.

Women.

The common afflictions of women are sick-head-aches, indigestion and nervous troubles. They arise largely from stomach disorders. As Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is the only bowel regulating preparation, you can see why it is more effective than any other sarsaparilla in those troubles. It is daily relieving hundreds. The action is mild, direct and effective. We have scores of letters from grateful women.
