

"August Flower"

Mrs. Sarah M. Black of Seneca, Mo., during the past two years has been afflicted with Neuralgia of the Head, Stomach and Womb, and writes: "My food did not seem to strengthen me at all and my appetite was very variable. My face was yellow, my head dull, and I had much pain in my left side. In the morning when I got up I would have a flow of mucus in the mouth, and a bad, bitter taste. Sometimes my breath became short, and I had such queer, tumbling, palpitating sensations around the heart. I ached all day under the shoulder blades, in the left side, and down the back of my limbs. It seemed to be worse in the wet, cold weather of Winter and Spring; and whenever the spells came on, my feet and hands would turn cold, and I could get no sleep at all. I tried everywhere, and got no relief before using August Flower. Then the change came. It has done me a wonderful deal of good during the time I have taken it and is working a complete cure."

HUMOR

DID NOT GO ON THE STAGE.

The Narrow Escape of a Chinaman Who Was to Play the Skull.

It is related of Jack Langrishe, who was making a small fortune by giving the early day residents of Colorado dramatic art in strong nightly doses, that he once played a memorable "return" engagement in an interior mining camp, where the inhabitants insisted on "Hamlet." Now Langrishe, being a comedian in more respects than one, did not at all favor this Shakespearean idea, but instead tried to shake the natives' faith in the "legit" by insisting that "Toodles" or "Pink Dominoes" would enable him to shine to much better advantage. "Hamlet" was insisted upon, however—they wanted it all, including the ghost—and with Hamlet left in.

Accordingly the somewhat small company was told to study up, characters were "doubled" and the leading man given a chance to distinguish himself as the melancholy Dane. One problem presented itself. No skull could be found for the graveyard scene. Mr. Langrishe represented to the committee who had made the request for a performance of "Hamlet" that the skull was important—no skull no "Hamlet," and what were they going to do about it? The committee considered. It was a new camp, with no graveyard, and there weren't even dead Indians around. Langrishe went to bed that night feeling hopeful. If the committee couldn't find a skull he would have a reasonable excuse for substituting "Toodles" on the morrow night.

The following afternoon Langrishe went into a small Chinese laundry to get his washing. Just as he entered he heard the voice of the chairman of the committee in loud converse with the proprietor of the establishment.

"Want to go on the stage, John?"

"Yes, me larc; me bully larc. How muchee gettee?"

"One hundred dollars, and here's your stuff."

Langrishe collared the chairman just as he was leaving.

"What in thunder do you want that Chinaman for?" he propounded.

The committee leader leaned over considerably. "For 'Hamlet,' of course; he's going to play the skull."

"Play the skull? Why, great-all-fired-cricket, man, how can he? A skull is not a whole man. It's a head."

"I know it," responded the enthusiast; "that's all he'll be by 6 o'clock tonight. We'll have the head for you. We're going to lynch him—a Chinaman anyway. We'll give him a funeral and all that, of course."

It took the comedian an hour after recovering from his horror to convince the committee that "head wasn't a skull." He played "Hamlet" that night, but the Chinaman was in the audience, not on the stage. And the leading man soliloquized over the defunct York by using the whitened skull of a mule.—Rocky Mountain News.

She Didn't Care for Poetry.

He said, "My pride, with a voice as soft as the zephyrus of a June morning, a breath scented with roses and clover, a step like the flutter of angel's wings, a heart as pure as the liquid jewels of a spring that none but gods disturb, a love as lasting as the hills."

But he did not win her.

Then he said, "Sal, your hair isn't as red as Hannah Smith's, across the road, and you have got more sense than she has any day."

The object of his wooing coddled in his arms, a gushing, unceasing source of affection.—Arkansas Traveler.

Poor Human Nature.

Mr. Chungwater had been reading aloud to his family the details of the terrible tornado in Minnesota.

"Is that all there is of it, Josiah?" asked Mrs. Chungwater.

"Yes," he replied, laying his newspaper down. "I've read to you the whole story, names of the killed and wounded and all."

"I know a great many people in Minnesota," rejoined Mrs. Chungwater with a sigh of mild disappointment. "but none of those names sounds familiar."

Diplomatic.

Hadn't Seen It Go.

A few days ago a man entered the telegraph office of the village of Ecles and wrote out a telegram, which he asked the clerk to send at once. In about a quarter of an hour he returned and said to the clerk:

"Now, that's not sent that telegram."

"Yes, I have," said the clerk.

"But I say that's not," replied the man, "for I've been outside watchin' 'em wires for th' last quarter of an hour, and it's not gone yet."—London Tit-Bits.

Tobacco Verbs.

It is curious how, while the Englishman speaks of "smoking" tobacco, the Chinaman and native of Bengal speak of "eating" it, and the native of northern India speaks of "drinking" tobacco, thus indicating that they regard it as one of the necessities of life. Tobacco grows freely in India, which may account for its cheapness and general use.—Chambers' Journal.

SMOKES.

SMOKING TOBACCO

is not like other kinds. It has peculiar fragrance and peculiar flavor. Its peculiar uniformity always gives peculiar comfort, and has made it peculiarly popular. Sold everywhere. Made only by

BLACKWELL'S DURHAM TOBACCO CO., Durham, N. C.

It Saves the Children.

Mr. C. H. Shaven, Wellsville, Kan., says: "It is with pleasure that I speak of the good Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has done my family during the last fourteen years. In the most obstinate cases of summer complaint and diarrhoea among my children, it acted as a charm, making it never necessary to call in a physician. I can truthfully say that in my judgment, based on years of experience, there is no medicine in the market that is its equal. For sale by Geo. E. Good, druggist."

Ten Root Carvings.

Ten root carvings are seldom very costly, running from fifty cents to $100. Nine-tenths bring less than two dollars each. A handsome set of a dozen can be purchased for twenty dollars, which will decorate a drawing room or hall better than bric-a-brac many times more expensive. The figures are strong, durable, and in no danger of fracture by Bridget or Ah Sin. Outside of their aesthetic value they are of interest in showing the wonderful ingenuity and economy of our Chinese cousins.—Collector.

Cartoonists and Machinery.

Says an engineer: "I never saw a cartoon illustrating anything in the mechanical line, from a guillotine to a Keely motor, that wouldn't give an engineer a spasm at first sight. I think the illustrated papers ought to establish a kindergarten of mechanics for the benefit of their cartoonists."—New York Tribune.

Celibacy in Athens.

Marriage is least popular in the peninsula of Athens, in the Aegean sea, in European Turkey, because in that community, which enjoys complete autonomy, subject to paying the Turkish government an annual tribute, no marriage ever takes place. They never allow any woman in their territory, and carry their objection to marriage and the opposite sex to such an extent that no female, even of the lower animals, is ever permitted to enter the peninsula. The population, about 6,000, all monks, form a kind of monastic republic, consisting of twenty large monasteries, besides numerous hermitages and chapels.—Philadelphia Times.

The Black Rat in Europe.

The black rat first came from Asia to Europe in the sixteenth century—along with the plague—and was first known as the "graveyard specter," because he preyed on the flesh of those who died during the awful visitation. He was also known as the "plague cat," because the common house cat had a similar habit of feasting on the dead. This black rat was the common house rat until the brown or gray rat made his appearance in 1773.—Philadelphia Press.

Good Bread.

There can be no doubt that the more palatable a food is the better it is for digestion, provided that the flavor is natural. Bread is one of these things which if badly made digests and may be the cause of imperfect nutrition. English people are a stout eating people, and in that they show their wisdom. To toast bread is to have in a certain measure made the bread easier of digestion. You convert by means of heat part of the starch into the more soluble form of dextrin.—New York Times.

Her Age.

"Madam," replied the judge sternly, "you must answer the question. What is your age?"

"I was born the same year your honor was. That would make me about."

"It isn't necessary to go into particulars," interposed the judge stiffly. "Gentlemen, have you any further use for the witness. You may stand aside, madam."—London Tit-Bits.
