CHARLIE'S MEN.

The sky was gray, and the grass was green,
When the Bonnie Prince in our glen was seen.
The grass was green, and the sky was gray
When on his horse he rode away;
When he rode away with a score and ten
Who were blithe to go with Charlie's Men.

Oh, loath was I from my love to part—
Hanish the tall with the steadfast heart—
But the Prince kissed lightly my cheek and brow,
And "Lend me," he said, "your sweetheart now.
And when we return victorious, then
You shall wed the bravest of Charlie's Men."

I watched them springing down the brae,
For they took the short and the dangerous way;
I saw their spears gleam far and bright
Till the fir trees hid them from my sight,
Till faint and small as the chirp of a wren
Were the pipes that played for Charlie's Men.

The sky was blue, green was the grass,
When joyful word came up the pass;
The grass was green, the sky was blue,
And dark browed Malcolm's dream was true!
Although the foe for one were ten
The fight was won by Charlie's Men!

But other tales we had to mark
As grass grew gray, and skies were dark,
And the strath was filled with tear and sigh
For sires and sons who had marched to die:
And Hamish, my own, the pride of the glen,
Lay dead on the field with Charlie's Men.

I might be blind, for I never see
But spearheads glintin bonillie;
I might be deaf, for I only hear
The pibroch ringing shrill and clear;
And by moor and meadow, on brae and ben,
My thoughts are thoughts of Charlie's Men.
—Nimmo Christie in Longman's Magazine.

Holes Made by Lightning.

There is an old Hibernicism about making a hole and trying to crawl in and draw it in after you. A hole is a hard thing to put into a collection of minerals, but there are a few holes in certain cabinets that are among the most prized of their contents. It must be added, however, that they have enough surrounding material to prove that they are holes. They are called fulgurites, and they are made by lightning. A thunderbolt striking into a sand heap or sandy soil is sometimes hot enough to vitrify, or turn into glass, the silicious matter that it penetrates, so that you have a glass tube just as big around as a lightning flash.

The largest of these tubes known is about three feet in diameter, but commonly they are less than an inch in thickness. They have been known to penetrate sand for a distance of thirty feet. Though lightning occasionally penetrates rock it never goes into it for more than an inch or two, and more often vitrifies its surface without striking in. A good many fulgurites have been found in Mexico, but the largest and most remarkable are found on the mountain called Little Ararat, in Armenia, for which the lightning seems to have a particular affection.—Minerals.

Wear Proper Eyeglasses.

The philosophy of wearing glasses to improve our vision is that the eye is an optical instrument which, when perfect, is adapted for seeing both far and near objects without any conscious effort. But the number of perfect eyes is small compared with those that are imperfect.

Most eyes are either too long or too short, so that the rays of light are not focused distinctly upon the retina without an effort of the muscles of accommodation to do so, and that effort causes strain.

An eye that is too short is called hypermetropic, or farsighted. One that is too long is called myopic, or nearsighted. It is by the means of glasses that these defects are collected and objects brought to a focus upon the retina without the strain which otherwise takes place.

People frequently have no concious defect in vision. They see all right. Still they have burning of the eyes, and sometimes sties or inflamed lids, caused by the unconscious effort to accommodate their vision for near or far objects.

Many headaches are also caused by defective vision. These cases can all be cured by wearing the proper glasses.—M. L. Lines in Jenness Miller Illustrated.

Paper in Many Trades.

The use of paper as a cheap material for curtains, wall paper and other house decorations has aided to make the homes of the people more attractive. The useful arts are beginning to depend largely upon the paper maker. Thus the present speed and safety of railway travel owes much to the invention of the paper car wheel, which combines strength and elasticity to a higher degree than any other material so far available. The building trades also use paper extensively, while commerce is facilitated by its use for wrappings and packages.—Engineering Magazine.

A Deadly Spirit.

Featherstone—Do you believe in ghosts?

Travers—Well, for years I have been living in a haunted house.

Featherstone—You don't tell me! Who is it haunted by?

Travers—By my tailor.—Exchange.

A Remarkable Echo.

At the castle of Simonetta, Italy, there is an angle in the building which re-echoes a pistol shot sixty-one times. The echoed reports from twenty-one to thirty-three are always louder than the report of the shot itself.—St. Louis Republic.

In the Wrong Class.

Many dogs ranked as A1 by their owners are really only K9.—Boston Globe.

Everybody knows what it is, and that is the reason they go to Heilenbrand's for that pure ice cream soda.

Pay the Price of the Royal for Royal only.

Royal Baking Powder is shown by actual chemical tests absolutely pure and 27 per cent. greater in strength than any other brand.

Many grocery stores have recently been stocked with second-class brands of baking powder, which are urged upon consumers at the price of the high-cost, first-class Royal.

These powders cost from 8 to 30 cents a pound less than the Royal, besides being of 27 per cent. less strength. If they are forced upon you, see that you are charged a correspondingly lower price for them.

THOUGHT SHE HAD A BARGAIN.

A Lady from the Rural Districts Meets with a Disappointment.

It was noonday and lower Washington street was crowded with the usual throng of hurrying pedestrians. At the corner of Milk street a young man with a satchel slung at his side was trying with some degree of success to attract the attention of those who passed. In one hand he held a pair of pantaloons with the heaviest part down, and as he swung them slowly back and forth he called out at varying intervals: "Here they are, now, only ten cents a pair; they remove wrinkles and prevent baggy knees. Ten cents is all they are."

These and kindred remarks he varied from time to time by asking loudly, "Who's the next one to take a pair; only ten cents a pair?"

Presently there appeared on the scene a woman, somewhat past the prime of life, and evidently from the rural districts, on a shopping expedition. She stopped and looked at the young man, fixing her eyes on the suspended garment with a natural curiosity. Just then the previous statements of the young man were renewed with fresh emphasis:

"They're only ten cents—a dime! That's all they are, gents; only ten cents a pair!"

He didn't notice the woman, and while he was looking the other way she took advantage of her opportunity to examine the texture of the cloth in the pantaloons. She felt of its thickness, adjusted her spectacles to examine the stitching and the color and seemed perfectly satisfied.

"I'll take 'em," she said.

The young man, not quite catching the remark, turned around, and seeing the woman standing there, pocketbook in hand, he opened his satchel and handed her a pair of the curved wire devices that he was trying to sell. The woman looked at him in astonishment. As she bent over with her eyes close to the trousers—for she was very near-sighted—the young man understood her mistake, and, half to her and half to the crowd, he announced in the same tone that he had used before:

"I'm not selling pants, but the latest improved pants stretchers; only ten cents a pair; that's all they are; one dime, ten cents!" and the woman, perplexed and disappointed, moved away and was borne along in the surging crowd.—Boston Journal.

They Never Took Mustard.

An Englishman, fond of roaming about the world, says that he was once on a large steamer where he had for his fellow passengers many Brazilians and Portuguese.

It was the first time that he had encountered individuals of either nation, and he was curious.

"What sort of people do you find them?" he asked the captain one day as they paced the quarter deck together.

"Well, sir," he answered, "they're a queer lot, and that's the truth of it!"

"How so?"

"For one thing," said the captain, "they all of them, man, woman and child, squeeze their feet into boots that it gives a man the cramp to look at."

"And what besides?"

The captain turned short upon the speaker, as if the second development of nationality was really almost beyond his patience.

"When they eat roast beef, sir, they won't take a bit of mustard with it. Now, that's a fact!"—London Tit-Bits.

Cuckoo Superstitions.

It was a popular superstition in Norfolk that whatever you are doing the first time you hear the cuckoo, that you will do most frequently all the year. Another is that an unmarried person will remain single as many years as the cuckoo, when first heard, utters its call.—London Queen.

Deserving Praise.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. Dan'l J. Fry, druggist. 225 Com'l St.

The Old Timers Are Not In It.

While at our other store at Big Island, Va., last April, I was taken with a very severe attack of diarrhœa. I never had it worse in my life. I tried several old-time remedies, such as Blackberry Wine, Paregoric and Laudanum without getting any relief. My attention was then called to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy by Mr. R. C. Tinsley who had been handling it there, and in less than five minutes after taking a small dose I was entirely relieved.—O. G. Burford, Harris Creek, Amherst Co., Va.
