GHOST SEERS.—

One of the great German authors has written a master-piece on the above subject, but the interest in this subject is not dead. Only last Saturday night three young men of this city took a stroll through the South Salem cemetery at the midnight hour as a wager. They were Cooke Patton, Charley Tasker and Harry Randle. They arrived just as the town clock struck twelve, and the first thing to greet their vision was a pair of glaring eyes about as big as saucers. The boys feared it was a foul to encourage them to an unwise course. About this time they imagined they saw a flash of lightning, but they braced up and proceeded to the front. They had come to see ghosts, and didn't propose to back out now so they went, and as their courage grew the ghost apparently weakened. By the time they arrived at the spot whence the orbs of fire had glared at them, they were gone, and nothing could be seen but a polished monument. From the carving on this the electric light of the city had reflected back and furnished the boys a genuine ghost for the time being. They came home satisfied.

A Cheap Stone Road.

In 1871 a piece of well made dirt road in the small village of Gilbert, 1 1/2 miles east of the city of Davenport, Ia., was selected for a little experiment. The road was sixty feet wide, with sidewalks and gutters, the latter occupying about sixteen feet, leaving forty-four feet for the highway proper. Five feet from the center line of this forty-four feet, on both sides of it, were staked boards, and to each board one foot wide. Between these boards was dumped limestone, broken fine enough to pass through a 2-inch ring. When the space between the boards was two-thirds full the first boards were moved forward.

When the boards were removed the upper edges of the rock rolled down, thus widening the rock track between one and two feet, leaving on each side of the stone a good dirt road six feet wide.

When the dirt surface became muddy the travel went over the stone center, which was thus made solid and smooth without an expensive roller. This experiment was completed in 1873 and the travel over it was probably five times as much as upon the average country road. For sixteen years it remained in perfect condition. Within the last two years about three dollars has been expended upon it in repairs. It is in perfect condition still. Its original cost was ninety cents for each twenty-five cubic feet of stone. Had the same policy continued, every rod of highway in the district would have been macadamized at this time, and no expense incurred except the ordinary highway tax, and from one-half to two-thirds of that tax might now be relinquished.—New England Farmer.

Ancient Cider Brandy.

Perhaps the oldest cider brandy now left in Connecticut—or certainly none that is "about" the oldest—is a little lot owned by Mr. Dudley Allen, of West Hartford. It is a very small residuum of three gallons left in the estate of Virgil Pettibone, of Westgrove Simsbury, and was distilled in the year 1820. These three gallons were secured by Captain Nathan Moses, Ebenezer G. Curtis and Lorenzo G. Humason, all (we believe) at that time residents of Simsbury; but Mr. Humason soon after removed to New Britain. Mr. Allen's share was secured (only a quart of it) from Mr. Curtis. He has since, at the urgent offers of one or two persons, parted with all he had left but about one ounce, and for that ounce he was offered one dollar and refused the offer.—Hartford Times.

Can't Be Done.

The problems of how to make good butter or cheese out of poor milk are those which no dairyman should consider. If they can be done it would be much more to the advantage of all parties if the time and thought were given to learning how not to have any poor milk. There are difficulties enough in the way in striving to produce a good article from good milk. The farmer should learn how not to produce any poor milk, and the creameries should learn, and are learning very rapidly, how to detect it when offered to them, and how to reject it with sufficient firmness.—American Cultivator.

The Old Timers Are Not In It.

While at our other store at Big Island, Va., last April, I was taken with a very severe attack of diarrhoea. I never had it worse in my life. I tried several old-time remedies, such as Blackberry Wine, Paregoric and Laudanum without getting any relief. My attention was then called to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy by Mr. R. C. Tinsley who had been handling it there, and in less than five minutes after taking a small dose I was entirely relieved.—O. G. Burford, Harris Creek, Amherst Co., Va. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle.

Dr. Geo. A. Bethune, state chemist of the state of Washington, has examined the various baking powders of the market, and speaks emphatically as to which he considers the best. He says:

"A series of carefully made tests of the baking powders sold in this market shows that the Royal yields the largest percentage of leavening gas. This powder is also found free from any harmful or even objectionable ingredient; its constituents are of exceptional purity, so combined that the powder produces the purest and most wholesome food.

There is, therefore, no question but the Royal is the strongest, purest and most wholesome baking powder in the market."

Old People.

J. V. B. is the only Sarsaparilla that old or feeble people should take as the mineral potash which is in every other Sarsaparilla that we know of, is under certain conditions known to be enervating. J. V. B. is the only Sarsaparilla that creates new blood, the very thing for old folks or broken down people. It builds them up and prolongs their lives. A case in point:

Mrs. Belden an estimable and elderly lady of 80 Mason St., S. F. was for months declining so rapidly as to seriously alarm her family. It got so bad that she was finally afflicted with fainting spells, she writes: "While in that dangerous condition I saw some of the testimonials concerning J. V. B. and sent for a bottle. That marked the turning point. I regained my lost flesh and strength and have not felt so well in years." That was two years ago and Mrs. Belden is well and hearty to-day, and still taking J. V. B.
