PRESIDENT HARRISON.

His Letter to the Chairman of the Committee.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The letter of President Harrison accepting the nomination of the Republican national convention was made public yesterday. After expressing his gratitude for the re-nomination, President Harrison says: "There has seldom been a time, I think, when the change from the declared policies of the Republican party to the declared policies of the Democratic party involved such serious results to the business interests of the country."

McAULIFFE-MEYER FIGHT.

The First of the Series of Encounters.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 6.—The Olympia club's high priced pugilistic carnival was inaugurated last night with the light-weight championship fight under circumstances auspicious in all respects save that of weather. But the weather did not dampen the ardor of sports or hurt the attendance. McAuliffe and his friends preserved a reticence about the condition of their man that was oppressive, and no one but a small circle of light-weights saw the champion in his room which he did not leave during the evening, until friends came to take him to the club.

TRAIN ROBBERS SEEN.

They Are Very Near the Scene of Their Crime.

VISALIA, Cal., Sept. 5.—Evans, Sontag were found Sunday near the residence of Supervisor Ellis, 20 miles north of this city, by two of Ellis' children. The men were camped not 100 yards from the house. The children returned and had their aunt go with them. When she saw Evans she said: "How are you, Chris?" Evans then turned to Sontag and said: "We had as well go to the house now," which they did. As they approached the house Ellis met them and said: "How do you do, Chris?" Evans after a minute replied, "I will shake hands with you soon, though I ought not." The two robbers stayed at the house from noon until dark, when they took a cart and horse of Ellis' and started away. Mrs. Ellis had been very sick, and a number of neighbors called to see her during the afternoon. After the robbers left a man came to town and informed Sheriff Kay, who immediately went to Goshen and asked for a special train that he might meet the southbound train at Selma and prevent the men from taking the train.

subject, and has shown its hostility to the general policy by refusing to extend the appropriations made during the last administration for ocean mail contracts with American lines. Patriotic people, workers in our shops, capitalists seeking new enterprises, must decide whether the great ships owned by Americans, which have sought American registry, shall again humbly ask place in the English navy reserve.

Another related measure, as furnishing increased ocean traffic for our ships and of great and permanent benefit to our farmers and manufacturers as well, is the reciprocity policy declared by section 3 of the tariff act of 1890, and now in practical operation with five nations of Central and South America, San Domingo, Spanish and British West India islands, and with Germany, under special trade arrangements with each. The removal of the duty on sugar and continuing coffee and tea upon the free list, while giving great relief to our own people, by cheapening articles used increasingly in every household, was also of such enormous advantage to the countries exporting these articles as to suggest that, in consideration thereof, reciprocal favors should be shown in their tariffs to articles exported by us to their markets.

Great credit is due to Mr. Blaine for the vigor with which he pressed this view upon the country. The British board of trade presented that government a memorial asking for the appointment of a commission to consider the best means of counteracting what is called "commercial crusade of the United States." At a meeting in March last of the associated chambers of commerce of Great Britain, the president reported that the exports from Great Britain to the Latin-American countries during the last year decreased $23,750,000 and that this was due directly to the reciprocity policy of the United States. Germany and France also have shown a started appreciation of the fact that a new and vigorous constant had appeared in the battle of markets and already secured important advantages.

The most convincing evidence of the tremendous commercial strength of our position is found in the fact that Great Britain and Spain found it necessary to make reciprocal trade agreements with us for their West India colonies, and that Germany and Austria have given us important concessions in exchange for the continued free importation of their sugar product. Taking all the countries with which arrangements have been made, our trade to June 30, 1892, increased 13 7-8 per cent. Are the farmers of the great growing states willing to surrender this new, large and increasing market for their surplus? Are we to have nothing in exchange for the free importation of sugar and coffee and at the same time to destroy the sugar planters of the South and the best sugar industry of the Northwest and of the Pacific coast, or are we to have the taxed sugar and coffee which a tariff for revenue only necessarily involves, with the added loss of the new market which have been opened, as I have shown? Our commercial rivals in Europe do not regard this reciprocity policy as a "sham," but as a nervous threat to a trade supremacy they have long enjoyed.

The declaration of the platform in favor of "the American doctrine of protection" meets my most hearty approval. The convention did not adopt a schedule, but a principal that is to control all the tariff schedules. There may be differences of opinion among protectionists as to the rate upon particular articles necessary to effect an equalization between wages abroad and at home. In some not remote national campaigns, has been, or, more correctly, has been made to appear to be, both a high and low protective tariff. Both parties express some solicitude regard for the wages of our working people and for the prosperity of our domestic industries, but under a more courageous leadership the Democratic party has now practically declared that if given power it will enact a tariff law without any regard to its effect upon wages or upon the capital invested in our great industries.

We fortunately are able to judge of the influence of the existing tariff law upon production by market reports. The day of the prophet of calamity has been succeeded by that of trade reports. An examination into the effect of the law upon the prices of protected products and of the cost of such articles as enter into the living of people of small means, has been made by the senate committee, composed of leading senators of both parties, with the aid of the best statisticians, and the report was signed by all the members of the committee, and given to the public. No such wide and careful enquiry has ever been made before. These facts appear from the report: First, the cost of articles entering into those of earning less than one thousand dollars per annum decreased 1 per cent, while in farm products there has been an increase in price. The fifty-first congress enacted such a law, and, under its beneficent influence, six-ton American steamships of the aggregate tonnage of 574,000 tons, and costing $7,400,000, have been built or contracted for in American shipyards. In addition to this, it is now practically certain that we shall soon have under the American flag, one of the finest steamship lines sailing out of New York for any European port. The Democratic party found no place in its platform for any reference to this

"Puzzled The Doctors."

MOST of the cases cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla have been brought up by the regular practice. Physicians recommending this medicine have never, and with satisfactory results. E. M. Sargent, Lowell, Mass., says: "Several years ago, my daughter broke out with large sores on her face, and other parts of her body. The case puzzled the doctors. My daughter used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it resulted in a complete cure. Her blood seems to have been thoroughly purified, as she has never had so much as a simple since taking this medicine."

"This is to certify that after having been sick for twelve years with kidney disease and general debility, and having been treated by several physicians without relief, I am now better in every respect, and think I am nearly well, having taken seven bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—Maria Ludwigson, Albert Lea, Minn.

per cent. The ninth annual report of the chief of bureau of labor statistics of the state of New York, a Democratic officer, very recently issued, strongly corroborates as to that state the facts found by the senate committee. He extended inquiry showing in the year immediately following the passage of the tariff act of 1890 an aggregate sum paid in wages in that state of $6,377,975 in excess, and an aggregate production of $31,315,139 in excess of the preceding year.

Once or twice in our history the production of tin plate was attempted, and the prices obtained by Welsh makers would enable our makers to produce it at a profit. But Welsh makers at once cut prices to a point that would drive American beginners out of business, and when this was accomplished they again made their own prices. A correspondent of the Industrial World, the official organ of Welsh tin-plate workers at Swansea, in its issue of June 10, 1892, advises a new trial of these methods. He says: "Do not be deceived. A victory of the Republicans at the polls means retention of the McKinley bill, and means the rapidly accruing loss of 80 per cent. of the export American trade. Had there been no Democratic victory in 1890 the spread of tin-plate manufacture in the United States would have been both rapid and bona fide. It is not yet too late to do something to reduce the price of plates. Put them down to 11s per box of 100, 14x20, full weight basis. Let the workmen take half pay for a few months and turn out more, then let masters forgo profit for some time."

McAULIFFE-MEYER FIGHT.

The First of the Series of Encounters.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 6.—The Olympia club's high priced pugilistic carnival was inaugurated last night with the light-weight championship fight under circumstances auspicious in all respects save that of weather. But the weather did not dampen the ardor of sports or hurt the attendance. McAuliffe and his friends preserved a reticence about the condition of their man that was oppressive, and no one but a small circle of light-weights saw the champion in his room which he did not leave during the evening, until friends came to take him to the club.

The police kept the streets leading to the club house clear of the motley throng on the outside. The building was ablaze with light. The arena was a double storied affair, with sitting room for something over eight thousand in the center, and never has been a prettier battle ground than it presented this evening. A double row of press seats were around the ring, with private boxes between them. The crowd was as varied in character as it was large in proportions. Ex-Mayor Guillot entered the ring at ten minutes to 9, and as master of ceremonies made a speech. Immediately after, Prof. John Duffy, referee, entered the arena, followed closely by Captain Wm. Barrett, who was in charge of the contest. Mayer and McAuliffe were weighed at a quarter to nine, the former at 137 pounds and McAuliffe at 137 1/2 pounds. Capt. Barrett weighed the gloves and found them according to law, full five ounces. Six thousand five hundred people were said to be present, and even that number failed to fill the mammoth arena.

McAuliffe was the first to enter the ring, which he did at 9:15. Mayer came a moment later. The men were ordered to shake hands at 9:25, and the gong for the first round sounded. The men jumped to the center of the ring, McAuliffe looking pale and Meyer rosy. Mac led off on the stomach, slipped and fell. On gaining his feet, Mayer landed a light left, and Jack snuffed. Both men were extremely cautious, though McAuliffe was the aggressor. It was a pretty round, and the men were sent to their corners not a bit the worse for it.

Second—McAuliffe landed a heavy right-hander, and Meyer clinched, delivering a heavy right-hander himself. McAuliffe knocked Meyer down with a heavy right on eye. Just as the round ended Meyer was about the identity of the robbers as Ellis and others at the house knew Evans for years. Sheriff Kay is positive Evans and Sontag took to the plains. There are many places on King's river and the Kaweah where they can safely hide during the day and then travel at night. Supervisor Ellis was one of the pursuers of Evans after Beaver was shot, and Evans knew this, as he said: "Ellis, you must not hunt me again." It is believed here the men will hold up another train before the week expires. They were armed with two shotguns, two revolvers and Winchester rifles, and carried a can containing ammunition or giant power.

FROM COAL CREEK.

Gathering in Force for Another Attack.

COAL CREEK, Tenn., Sept. 6.—Word was brought into Camp Carnes by a man who is deemed trustworthy that between 300 and 400 miners met at Jellico and, after hearing reports from their scouts, took a horrible oath to wipe out Coal Creek and Oliver Springs before next Saturday. Their plan is first to release the convicts at Oliver Springs and then make an attack on Coal Creek.
