OLNEY PROBABLY DEAD. He Went out in a Small Boat at Olympia. OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 14.—E. B. Olney, United States weather observer, went out in a rowboat at 7 o'clock, the boat was observed by some children to be apparently at anchor off Priest's point, about two miles and a half below the city. About 10 o'clock, a man coming up the bay picked up the boat and brought it to shore. One oar was hanging in the rowlock. Mr. Olney's overcoat was lying in the bow of the boat. The interior of the boat was entirely dry, showing that it had not been upset. On the side of the boat were two deep bruises in the cedar timbers, as if the boat had been in contact with some object. One theory of the case is that Mr. Olney became heated with rowing and stood up in the boat, endeavoring to remove his coat, and that as the boat was about half full he became unbalanced and fell into the water, his hands and arms at the time being bound behind him by the oars. The finding of the boat was not reported until today. Parties have been out today searching for further evidences of his drowning, but none have been found. Mr. Olney has been in charge of the station here since August, 1891, coming from Portland. He was a very efficient observer and had become well known as the compiler of official crop reports for the state. His wife is at present in San Francisco.

When the Trap is Sprung Upon us, as it sometimes is, in a most unexpected manner by disease, we appreciate the fact that it is a most insidious foe, and that not only is it necessary to combat it by the most potent medicinal agencies, but to prevent its manifestation at all by counteracting the causes that bring it about. This exposure in wet weather, the enforced wearing of damp clothes during a storm, a thorough draught, unaccustomed diet and water, bodily or mental overwork, as a breeder of disease, but Fowler's Stomach Bitters will prevent their inducing it. This medicine effects such cures would otherwise prove. To the warmer miner, the outdoor laborer, the slave of the desk and pen, and the overworked general, it is of the most valuable assistance. Dyspepsia, kidney trouble, indigestion, biliousness, all yield to it.

"Thick and Glossy."

THE PRODUCTION of an abundant growth of hair, of a silk-like texture and of the original color, often results from the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. "I was rapidly becoming gray and bald; but after using two or three bottles of Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair grew thick and glossy and the original color was restored."—M. Aldrich, Canadian Centre, N. H. "A trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me of its merits. Its use has not only caused the hair of my wife and daughter to be abundant and glossy, but it has given my rather stunted mustache a respectable length and appearance."—R. Britton, Oakland, Ohio. "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past four or five years and find it a most satisfactory dressing for the hair. It is all that I could desire, being harmless, causing the hair to retain its natural color, and requiring but a small quantity to render the hair easy to arrange."—Mrs. M. A. Bailey, 9 Charles st., Haverhill, Mass.

There are stories enough written, in all conscience, but there is nothing in them. Not more than one in a hundred of those sent to newspaper and magazine offices can be used.
