A Young Lady Mortally Wounded PORTLAND, Oct. 13.-Miss Brude Morden, 18 years old, was last uight shot and mortally wounded by Burdoth Wolf at her father's residence at Mount Tabor villa. Circumstances indicate that the act was premeditated and was the result of jealously on the part of Wolf. He had been keeping company with Miss Mor den, but of late she had apparently grown tired of his attentions. Last sight Wolf met Miss Morden and her sister in the road and asked Bru del to take a walk with him. She refused, and started toward her home. Wolf seized her by the arm and drawing a revolver, shot her in the breast. The girl fell to the ground, and Wolf ran to the woods. Examination showed that the bullet penetrated the girl's lung, and that it would undoubtedly prove Wolf is 21 years old, and re cently has acted very strangely. Great excitement prevailed over the tragedy, and threats of lynching are

Rescue of Capt. O'Brien From the Whaleback.

PORTLAND, Or. Oct. 13,-The news of the disaster, as written down by the Coos Bay Station, Wm. L. Loch, are full of interest and cover the time from September 8 to 27 inclusive, and gives everything connected with the stranding of the Whaleback and the subsequent attempt to rescue Ceptain O'Brien ous position.

THE LIFE-SAVERS IN PERIL. Keeper Loch, in his journal, thus describes the perilous rescue of

Captain O'Brien on September 27:

We left the station in the lifeboat at 7 a. m. to attempt the rescue of Captain O'Brien and the watch surveyor at Portland, accompanied me out. A tremendous surf was running. When we got about 200 feet from the wreck a tremendous sea covered the lifeboat. Before the boat could recover herself another struck her and she pitch-poled end over end. The seas went over her in succession, and she falled to right. Fextricated myself from the gear as soon as possible, but it took fully four minutes with all my exertion to get the boat righted. The crew then got in her, and though we lost all but six of our oars, we succeeded in getting the lifeboat into the channe, "Then the tug took us to tow. The crew escaped without any injury. Captain Pope was struck unconscious, and was in that condition when we brought buildings small. him back to Empire City."

It was on September 27 that Captain O'Brien and the sailor, William Holmes, were rescued, and then by the Unipqua station crew, who managed to fire lines upon the wreck. O'Brien and Holmes then had only a single biscuit left for food, and had been driven by the waves to their "crow's nest" on the foremast. When they got the Umpqua savers' lines they tied the ends about their waists and jumped into the bolling sea, being pulled into the lifeboat.

Keeper Loch was criticised for falling to make the rescue, but he quotes a letter from Captain O'Brien, lated from San Francisco, which praises the keeper for bravery and mes himself for not obeying

An Extension

Owing to the illness of several of 'our advertisers" who were to assist at Salem and Albany, we have been unable to fulfill our promise of calling upon every family in these two cities to explain our method of presenting the Encyclopedia Britannica free of cost. Many who took the pains to write out a request for our advertiser to call, have not been called upon. It is therefore urged by our representatives at these cities that in justice to those who have been unable to obtain an explanation of our plan, we should extend the time for receiving orders at these cities.

Though we have rigidly held to he limit fixed for receiving orden in every city in the state, we have decided to extend the time for a few lays in Salem and Albany, so as to give all an equal opportunity to vail themselves of this special ffer. To assure yourself of not eing omitted you should at once eave your name and address at Smith & Steluer's store, Salem. or at Samuel E. Youngs store, Albany and one of our advertisers will call apon you before leaving the city, MIDDLEBROOK & SHUMAKER,
