The Demand of Russia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 20.—The news in a brief note in reply to one of the Bulgarian questions received from the Russian government some time ago, virtually rejects Russia's demand the Sultan of Turkey shall not give audience to Stamboulouff, the Bulgarian premier.

Change in Hungarian Cabinet.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—A Vienna correspondent says: "I hear from an unimpeachable source the days of the Hungarian cabinet are numbered. Count Szapary's resignation is only delayed by the difficulty of finding a successor, both the Tizias having declined the premiership. The crisis is due to the government's inability to carry the civil marriage and other bills, to which the cabinet is pledged."

Thinks Uncle Jerry is Bluffing.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—In reference to the discovery of the case of pleuropneumonia among American cattle at Deptford, the Times says: "Secretary Rusk has long been playing a game of bluff with the English authorities. The discovery of this case shows the fact that no disease had been reported to Washington is not a proof of its non-existence."

Quadalajara, Mexico, Oct. 19.

There have been several severe earthquakes shocks felt here during the past few days, and the people are very much frightened. There is every indication that the Colima volcano is soon to experience a violent eruption, as the crater is throwing out great volumes of smoke, and there are ominous underground rumblings at intervals of every few minutes. The inhabitants of the valley adjacent to the volcano are leaving their homes to escape the lava which knowing ones assert is sure to belch forth within a few days. The eruption of the volcano at this time would do great damage to the crops, as the valley is planted in cotton and corn.

The Steamer Bear.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Captain M. A. Healy, of the United States revenue marine, in a long report to the secretary of the treasury, dated Oulaska, September 25, of the cruise of the steamer Bear in north Arctic waters, says the steamer established the station projected by the interior department at Port Clarence, and started with 177 deer, and great promise of success in the work of introducing reindeer into Alaska. Captain Healy says the season has been particularly open. Nearly the entire whaling fleet had gone east of Point Barrow when the Bear sailed south. The schooner Mary Hume made an extraordinary catch of 39 whales during the spring. The establishment of a refuge station at Point Barrow with a constant supply of provision has encouraged the whalers to go farther north into the more profitable places to pursue their trade, with the knowledge that in case of accident they will not be left to the mercy of an Arctic winter without food or shelter. Captain Healy's effort to prevent the introduction of spirituous liquor into Alaska has been unusually successful despite the great extent of territory patrolled, and he is of the opinion that he has driven the liquor traffic out of the country. The Bear will assist the United States steamer Adams in guarding Seal Island until December 1.

Search Light on Statue of Liberty.

New York, Oct. 20.—[Special.]—The new 20,000 candle-power electric search light will be again turned on the statue of Liberty tonight, by Major Heep, of the United States Lighthouse board, who has been devising means to make the big bronze statue visible from any point in the harbor. Tonight's illumination is in the nature of a more careful experiment than the last one, and if successful, the permanent nightly illumination will be inaugurated tomorrow. The illumination of the statue is to be effected by placing the search light in one of the salients of the fort. The light is the most powerful obtainable. Recent tests show that on a dark night it can reveal a light colored target at a distance of 15,000 feet.

The Peck Affair.

ALBANY, Oct. 20.—[Special.]—The criminal charge against State Labor Commissioner Peck will come up again today in the police court, postponements having now been taken three times owing to the delay in the opinion of the court of appeals, which is to decide whether the papers burned by the state labor commissioner were public or private property. The case will probably go to trial today as the police judge felt earlier postponements.

The Record Broken.

New York, Oct. 19.—The log of the City of Paris, which arrived here yesterday, shows the passage from Queenstown was made in 5 days 14 hours and 24 minutes. The days' runs were 448,508,505,505,430, and 364. This beats the record for westward passage. The record up to this voyage was 5 days 15 hours and 35 minutes, held by the City of Paris.

Columbus Celebrations.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—[Special.]—This is the first of Chicago's public holidays and the day is to be made eventful by a mammoth civic parade under the direction of General Joseph Stockton, and in which fully a hundred thousand men will be in line. Tonight a grand concert will end the first day's Columbian festivities. The great procession is now forming with the governor and staff at the head. Nearly all the prominent Catholic societies of the city are represented, their total membership given as follows: German 15,000; Italian 8,000; French 5,000; Polish 5,000; Bohemian 3,000; Catholic order of Foresters, 10,000; Ancient order of Hibernians, 2,000; Young Men's Catholic Union, 5,000; Catholic Knights of America, 2,000; Temperance Societies, 5,000; Knights of St. John, 10,000; Catholic Benevolent Legion, 500; Second Regiment of Sacred Heart Parish, 1,000. A grand total of 50,000. A grand total of 50,000 members is represented. Forty bands are engaged for the procession, including the Second Regiment band, which leads the van, and the Pullman band, which precedes the Italian division. The Italian division is in the parade on a grander scale than any other nationality, the Italians being animated by a double feeling of patriotism both for their foster country and the country which gave birth to Columbus and themselves. The big float represents prominent events in the life of Columbus and is drawn by eight white horses. The Catholic order of Foresters ranks next. They have several emblematic floats representing important epochs in the history of the country and of their own order. American flags are used by them lavishly. Each member of the order wears in his buttonhole a small United States flag and all wear dark blue cravat hats of the same make. The reviewing stand is on the Adams street side of the postoffice.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 20.—[Special.]—Cincinnati begins its Columbian celebration tonight with a great pyrotechnic display.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 20.—[Special.]—Brooklyn's two day's celebrations begin today with a parade of the Catholic school children of the city. They will be reviewed by Bishop McDonnell.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 20.—[Special.]—Indiana begins its Columbian celebration tonight with a great mass meeting at which the Columbian orator will be John Clark Redpath. The monster chorus of German societies will sing "America," "Star Spangled Banner" and "Columbia," which will be interspersed with the German songs "Deutsche Lied" and "Liedesfreude."

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 20.—[Special.]—St. Louis' Columbian celebration begins today with a massive parade by the Italian Societies of the city.

Probably Lost.

TACOMA, Oct. 20.—A special to the Ledger says. Nearly two weeks ago a party of young men left Eielson for the headquarters of Eielson to hunt. Among them was Jason Dunkel, about 25 years old. Dunkel got separated from his companions, though they fired guns and built big fires they failed to find him, and after hunting two days longer came in for help. A new party has gone out. It is feared he hurt himself, and, falling disabled in the snow, died from exposure. He had a gun, ammunition, and plenty of matches, and the hope is entertained that he may have crossed the divide and came out on the other side.

Second Day of Great Celebration.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 20.—This is the second day of the series of pageants, commemorative of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus. Connection with the dedication buildings for housing the great Columbian exposition, opened cheerless, cold, with dull clouds obscuring the face of the sky; but in spite of these adverse conditions, there was no lack of enthusiasm among the large crowd gathered in the city from all quarters of the county, and from all nations of the globe, to witness this momentous event. The ceremonies of the day opened with a great civic parade at eleven o'clock, in which it is estimated nearly one hundred thousand people participated actively, and which was witnessed by one million and a half of spectators. The city is profusely decorated. The parade formed on the lake front, and marched through two miles and a half of business streets, the leading divisions disbanding at the end to make way for those following, before final divisions had fallen into line. General Nelson A. Miles was grand marshal.

Deafness Can't be Cured.

By local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, 7c.

Work to be Resumed.

The Tacoma News is authority for the statement that within the next 12 months the branch of the Union Pacific railroad from Portland to Tacoma will be completed. This information that paper states, is authentic. Arrangements are now being made to have work resumed on the line.

The Great Northern is in control of the Portland & Puget Sound Railroad company, which began the construction of the line under the management of the Union Pacific two years ago. H. Y. Thompson, the Portland attorney of the Great Northern, has been elected president of the company.

Mr. Thompson is authority for the statement that the Great Northern has acquired from the Union Pacific all title in the uncompleted line, the differences between the companies which existed at the time construction was discontinued having been amicably adjusted.

Engineers will go over the line and re-locate the road at certain points. The old grade and roadbed is said to be in good condition, having been damaged very little by washouts, and it is now packed solid like an old roadbed.

Early in the spring a large force of men will be put on the uncompleted line between Vancouver and Seattle and the work pushed to completion. The road, Mr. Thompson says, can be finished up within 90 days after work is resumed.

SHOWED HIS NERVE.

The Marquis De Mores Not Intimidated by a Crowd of Fresh Cowboys. "Did you ever hear how the Marquis de Mores swung two bad men in Cheyenne?" said Jack Frazier, of Council Bluffs.

"Well, it is not much of a story, but it's an illustration of a man's nerve and quick thought. I was in the cattle business in 1881, and became acquainted with De Mores in Denver in the month of May. He was a very polite man, but rather inclined to be offish, as we say in the west. About a month after that I met him at Barlow's ranch, about twenty-five miles from Cheyenne. He was mounted on a vicious broncho, and appeared to have a good deal of trouble to keep his seat.

"A couple of cowboys were whooping and howling in front of Barlow's shanty when the marquis drove up. His ponies were tethered and they were running foot races, and for no reason on earth yelling like Comanches in a war dance. They began to gey the marquis on his horse-manship. He made no reply, but kept on talking to me. Finding he was not to be provoked that way one cowboy, nicknamed 'Broadback Morris,' because of his unusually broad shoulders, began to show the Frenchman how to ride.

"His companion followed his example, and in a couple of minutes they were circling around the marquis firing off their Winchester and using the most insulting language. Whether the marquis understood what they meant I don't know. At all events, he rolled a cigarette and lit it. 'Drop that, you tenderfoot,' roared Morris, pulling up his mustang with a jerk; 'drop that, or I'll clip it out of your mouth.' At the same moment he lifted his Winchester.

"De Mores turned half way in his saddle, took a deep inspiration and blew out a cloud of smoke. As it cleared away the cowboy took deliberate aim and fired. The cigarette was sent flying in fragments. Before I scarcely knew what had happened De Mores had drawn his long barreled French revolver from his belt and pulled the trigger. The Winchester dropped out of Morris' hands. He had been shot through both wrists. The howl he let out could have been heard a quarter of a mile. The other cowboy was then on De Mores' flank. As soon as he saw him pull his gun he grabbed his rifle, but had not time to raise it before the marquis fired a second time, just as his broncho gave a lunge and a buck. The man tumbled off with a bullet in his shoulder. It might have been meant for the head for all I know."

"What did De Mores do then?" "He rolled another cigarette, lit it and continued the conversation."—Colorado Sun.

Alpine Exactions. There is a mysterious roar among the hills which you take for an avalanche. It is a Swiss who fires a gun and charges fifty centimes for the echo. If you round another corner you have a musical wall, caught up and repeated in a dozen delicate gradations by the stony walls which hem you in. It is the voice of no Loreley, but the tune played by a sturdy vagabond on the Alpine horn. You are hustled into an ice cavern, two francs. A yodel is set up at your elbow, two francs. You see a second ladder in a lonely, inaccessible spot, two francs. You ask for a glass of water at a pretty pastoral chalet on a slope of tender green, fifty centimes. You want to visit a glazier. Behold the Swiss flag flying over a turnstile, and a toll of fifty centimes. As you emerge a group of elderly women surround you, fifty centimes, and you have a yodel that would wake the seven sleepers.—Cor. London Times.

Instilling Color Blindness. One can sometimes imitate the effects of color blindness through over-fatigue of the eye. Thus Mr. Brett, the English painter, told the members of the Royal Astronomical society that in painting a scarlet geranium, after working at it for a quarter of an hour, the artist will not know that it is scarlet at all, but will go on painting it as if it were black or colorless. "Red," he explained, "is a very irritable color to the retina," and he added that "you can look at green until all is blue."—Youth's Companion.

Looking for Something to Eat. A certain mother in a Rhode Island city selected an inauspicious Sunday to take her small boy to church for the first time. It happened to be a communion service, and the latest comer was deeply interested in all that occurred. At length he exclaimed in an audible and delighted whisper, "Mamma, mamma, they're going to pass the cake, ain't they?"—New York Tribune.

True to His Name. The late Rev. Samuel A. Clark was in attendance upon a church congress in New York when a friend sitting behind him leaned forward and asked in a whisper: "What, Brother Clark, are you going to read an essay today?" "Certainly," was the instant reply. "I am known to the church as S. A. Clark."—Cor. Christian Union.
