SUDDEN DEATH.—Yesterday Mr. George Harteman, drummer for J. W. Duffy, dealer in wall paper, and J. P. Jourden, dealer in varnishes, of San Francisco, arrived in Albany and took room 51 at the Bevere House. In the evening he was feeling unwell, having cramps in his stomach, and secured something at a drug store for his illness, and went to bed at an early hour. About 3 o'clock this morning he was heard to complain. Not coming down to breakfast his room was entered when he was found cold in death in his bed. The exact cause of his death could not be stated. A jury was called at 1 o'clock by Coroner Farrell, the verdict being in accordance with the facts stated. The deceased has a family in San Francisco, to which place his remains will be shipped tonight. He has traveled several years through Oregon, was about 28 years of age, and is well spoken of by those knowing him.—Albany Democrat, Nov. 8.

THE LADIES LIKE IT.—The JOURNAL's complete Saturday stories are pleasing every one. They are the choicest selections, and most of them from real life, written by the best authors. This has been made a regular feature, and is proving as popular as the Monday Talmadge sermon.

LECTURE POSTPONED.—The lecture advertised to have been given at the opera house tonight, by Donald Downie, has been postponed.

For Sweet Charity's Sake.
 The ladies of Unity society will give a supper at "Channing Hall" on Friday evening, all the proceeds of which (over actual expenses) to be for the benefit of the Salem Board of Charities, to be used in their laudable work the ensuing winter. Supper from 5 p. m. to 8 p. m. and only 25 cents. Come one, come all and help increase the funds which will be so much needed this winter. LADIES' COM.

Special sale at Ed Jackson's, 96 State street, of men's and children's clothing and shoes. These goods will be sold regardless of cost—this is a bona fide—we are compelled to sacrifice them as we must have the room for our increasing hat and furnishing goods trade. If you want to make the most of your dollars, don't fail to call at 96 State street.

MCKINLEY TIN HORNS—and some made brooms ornament the protected plate glass front of one of A. Bush's new stores. The decorations are suggestive of a clean sweep, and quite appropriate.

NO ADVANCE.—The election may affect the politician's hopes but it does not effect the low prices or good quality of groceries at Equire Farrar & Co's.

Special sale of shoes at Jackson's. Elegant neckties, Jackson's, 96 State street.

Brannon & Co. boast of better treatment of patrons by giving them the carides.

OUR NEW YEAR'S EDITION.

The Journal Souvenir Number, Jan. 1st, 1893.

A WHOLE BOOK ABOUT SALEM.

Historical Review of the City and its Industries for Forty Years.

Showing its Present Advantages and Leaders in Every Enterprise.

Work was begun today on THE NEW YEAR'S JOURNAL, which will be one of the largest and best written souvenir numbers ever issued. It will be nothing less in substance than a book of fifty to sixty chapters, composed by the ablest writers in the city, devoted to an historical review of Salem and all its commercial and social interests. The utmost care will be exercised to get reliable dates and facts of the history, growth and development of Salem and its representative men and industries for the past forty years. In point of historical value and literary finish, both as to matter and illustrations, THE NEW YEAR'S JOURNAL for 1893 will not be surpassed by any publication in the state. A large edition will be printed of this number.

Great Relief

It instantly afforded sufferers from Bronchitis, by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Either as an anodyne, to loosen inflammation, or an expectorant, to loosen and bring away the mucus, this preparation has no equal.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which, by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thomas B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville Dist. M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

"My mother was sick three years and very low with bronchitis. We feared nothing would cure her. One of my friends told me about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. She tried it, and has used eight bottles, and is now well."—T. H. D. Chamberlain, Baltimore, Md.

NEW BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

The November Oregon magazine contains a second article in the University of California papers, by Millicent W. Shim, on the Lick Astronomical Department, historical, descriptive, and critical. This article is timely, as it gives a careful opinion on the observatory and its management, now the subject of much newspaper criticism. The illustrations are profuse and beautiful. The views of Mars and the lunar craters are especially noteworthy.

There is still time to send for a copy of this magazine and see that "Thanksgiving Turkey," proudly pictured and poetically portrayed. It forms the frontpiece of Good Housekeeping for November, which is especially a Thanksgiving number. Yet this magazine, while giving due attention to the special festival which falls during the month, never forgets that the life of the home is broader than any holiday, and among its many helpful and hopeful articles will be found those which are appropriate to all days and every occasion. A notable feature of the current issue is the beginning of a charming serial story by H. Aunette Poole, entitled "A Noble Girlhood," which will interest every reader. Clark W. Bryan Company, publishers, Springfield, Mass.

CHRIST LIFE FOR CHILDREN.

Child's Christ Tales, by Andrea Hofer, is a new holiday gift book for the children, telling the Christ Life in short, simple tales, appealing in their freshness and exquisite pathos to even the mature reader and lover of the wondrous character of Jesus. Miss Hofer is the editor of the Kindergarten Magazine and interprets these marvelous stories of love and salvation in the light of a student of the child heart and mind, and the book certainly gives the most intelligent rendering of the theme we have ever been able to offer the lambs of the great christian flock.

The volume is exquisitely printed, illustrated and bound and prepared in such a way that it may be put directly into the hands of the children themselves to read from. Address, Kindergarten Magazine, Woman's Temple, Chicago. Price, $1.00.

A Wasplish Sting.

What some "was" terms "the business end of a wasp" along with several more acuteness than the acid eruptions of gas from the stomach, quiet that we characterized as heartburn. Never was there a case of indigestion without this symptom. Both cause and effect are responsible by the fine, curative, food, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which enter regularly and vigor upon a disordered and excited stomach, with certainty and despatch. Besides checking the growth of a rebellious stomach, the Bitters wakes up a dormant liver, and causes the bowels to act like clockwork. An immense reputation has been won by this professionally approved medicine as a means of eradicating and preventing malaria, cholera, and counteracting a tendency to rheumatism and kidney complaint. Nausea and nervousness are also remedied by it.

These he is trying to close out, and therefore will sell them as cheap as possible, many going below actual cost. Give him a call.

Confusion of Notes.
 A correspondent says that he knew schoolboys in Boston schools, too—who seemed bound to grow up with the impression that General Warren stopped all proceedings just before the battle of Bunker Hill to stir up the patriotic ardor of the soldiers by declaiming to them three stanzas of grandiloquent poetry.

All this, the correspondent says, was chargeable to the fact that the teacher was too indifferent or too thoughtless to tell his pupils that the stanzas in question, in Pierpont's "National Reader," were written for General Warren fifty years after he was killed and by John Pierpont himself.

The correspondent is moved to this reminiscence by something seen lately in an "ambitious periodical gotten up by the students of a high school not 100 miles away from Boston, and in fact not much nearer than that."

In that periodical the familiar quotation about a "government of the people, by the people, for the people," is said to have been "uttered by President Lincoln in his exhortation to the Union army as it was about to enter upon the battle of Gettysburg!"—Boston Transcript.

Telephone Needs Simplifying.
 The inventor of the telephone, Professor Bell, said a few days ago: "To simplify the telephone opens a wide field for inventors, for it is in that direction we must turn. Pay a visit to the central office in Boston, New York or any other large city, and you will be astonished at the complex system which has grown up almost unnoticed within a few years. There is a labyrinth of wires, such as no outsider ever dreamed of. The telephone is so simple in itself, and the people have become so familiar with its use, that they would be astonished if shown a modern switchboard. It cost $150,000 to construct the switchboard for the central office in New York city, and if you were to see it you would be surprised that it could be constructed for even that large sum."

ENGINE AND BOILER

THE DEAD HAND

EVENING JOURNAL.

It is an intensely interesting novelette by one of the best writers of English fiction. The plot is laid at a seaside resort, and ends with the always interesting subject of "fixing up" a rich relative's will. Look for this complete story in Saturday evening's JOURNAL.
