THE CORWIN CASE AGAIN.

The Deposed Preacher Voted a Letter of Recommendation.

Resolved, That in accepting the resignation of our pastor, Rev. C. L. Corwin, we do it very reluctantly, realizing that we are losing a kind friend, a thorough Christian gentleman, and the most intelligent, able and earnest pastor it has been our privilege to have.

Resolved, That the chairman of the board of trustees present an attested copy of these resolutions to our departing pastor, that a copy be spread upon the church records, and that a copy be given to each of our city papers for publication.

Guard, Nov. 10th: While working on the roof of a new hop house being built for John Brown one mile north of Eugene, Richard Brown and George Fleeman fell to the ground, a distance of forty feet, yesterday afternoon. Fleeman remained unconscious until midnight and Brown is still unconscious, but it is ascertained that his collar bone and several ribs were broken and it is thought that he received serious internal injuries. Both men will recover.

Great Relief

It instantly afforded sufferers from Croup, Bronchitis, by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Either as an anodyne, to allay inflammation, or an expectorant, to loosen and bring away the mucus, this preparation has no equal.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which, by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thomas B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville Dist. M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

"My mother was sick three years and very low with bronchitis. We feared nothing would cure her. One of my friends told me about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. She tried it, it has used eight bottles, and is now well."—Z. H. D. Chamberlain, Baltimore, Md.

A Waspish Sting. What some wag terms "the business end of a wasp's sting" with scarcely more sentiment than the acid irritation of gas from the stomach gullet that characterizes heartburn. Never was there a case of indigestion without this symptom. Both cause and effect are removable by the fine carminative tonic, Hostetter's stomach Bitters, which cures regularly and vigor upon a disordered and empty stomach with certainty and despatch. Besides checking the pranks of a rebellious stomach, the Bitters weakly and nervous, and causes the bowels to act like clockwork. An immense reputation has also been won by this professionally approved medicine as a means of eradicating and preventing malaria, fever, and other malarial tendencies to rheumatism and kidney complaints. Nausea and nervousness are also remedied by it.

WE NEVER SAW

And what is more, the likes of you never did saw, and never will saw, and still more, very few ever saw any such fine BARGAINS in CLOTHING and Woolen Goods as we are now offering. We have just saved the old time prices in two, and are saving right into our mammoth stock every day.

AT COST AND BELOW.

M. W. SARGEANT

Has added to his stock a fine line of all kinds of household furniture, which he expects to sell very reasonably, and asks his old customers and friends to call and examine for themselves, before purchasing elsewhere. He also carries the largest and cheapest stock of WALL PAPER this side of Portland, besides lots of Notions, Toys, etc., for holidays. These he is trying to close out, and therefore will sell them as cheap as possible, many going below actual cost. Give him a call.

NIGHT IN NEW YORK.

Haunted by unknown feet— Ways of the midnight hour! Strange; you murmur below me, Strange is your half silent power, Places of life and of death, Numbered and named as streets, What, through your channels of stone, Is the tide that unweariedly beats? A whisper, a sigh laden breath, Is all that I hear of its flowing, Footsteps of stranger and foe— Footsteps of friends, could we meet— Alike to me in my sorrow: Alike to a life left alone. Yet swift as my heart they throng They fall thick as tears on the stone! My spirit perchance may borrow New strength from their eager tone.

Still ever that slip and slide Of the feet that shuffle or glide, And linger or haste through the populous waste Of the shadow, dim lit square! And I know not, from the sound, As I sit and ponder within, The goal to which those steps are bound— On heat of mercy, or heat of sin, Or joy's short measured round: Yet a meaning deep they bear In their vaguely muted din.

Roar of the multitude, Chafe of the million crowd, To this you are all subdued! In the murmurous, and night air! Yet whether you thunder aloud, Or hush your tone to a prayer, You chant again through the modern maze The only epic of our days.

Still as death are the places of life: The city seems crumpled and gone, Sunk 'mid invisible deeps— The city so lately rife With the stir of brain and brawn, Happy it once asleep; But what if indeed it were dead, And another earth should arise To greet the gray of the dawn? Fain then our epic would hail Those who should come in our stead. But what if that earth were ours? What if, with bolder eyes, We should meet the new hope and not fail?

Wear, the night grows pale, With a bluish as of opening flowers Dimly the east shines red, Can it be that the morn shall fulfill My dream, and refresh our clay As the poet may fashion his rhyme? Hark to that mingled scream Rising from workshop and mill— Hailing some marvelous sight: Mighty breath of the hours, Poured through the trumpets of steam; Awful tornado of time, Blowing us whether it will!

God has breathed in the nostrils of night, And beheld, it is day! —George P. Lathrop in "Dreams and Days."

A Wise Provision. Teacher—State some wise provision of Providence which you have noticed yourself. Little Girl (after reflection)—Those awful big iron dogs which folks have on their lawns can't bite.—Good News.

An Unselfish Invitation. Jack—Come with me to the theater this evening, Tom. Tom—But you're going to take Alice Murray. Jack—Yes, and her aunt.—Kate Field's Washington.
