A CHECK TO THE MIRTH. How a Young Auctioneer Came to See the Auction Side of a Case. There was a roasting with the auctioneer, and the reporter standing by his box looked at him. "Gone!" inquired the reporter, as the auctioneer sat down tired. "Well, I've been going all morning, and I ought to be," responded the auctioneer.

LISTENING TO THE PROCLAMATION. A Scene in a New England Meeting House Over Fifty Years Ago. The scene in Brattle Street meeting house, in Boston. The time is the middle of November, on Sunday morning. A boy of four years old, who has the fortunate privilege of sitting on the cross seat of the pew, is the person who describes, after sixty years, what he remembers.

This reporter turned a face full of interrogation points on the auctioneer, and he kept on. "I was called on once to sell by auction a lot of household furniture belonging to a man and his wife who had been married four or five years. All I knew about it was that a death somewhere necessitated their removal from my town, and as they had no money they were compelled to sell their effects to get enough to move on."

Given in the council chamber at Boston in the year of our Lord 1822 and of the Independence of the United States the fiftieth. LEVI LINCOLN, Governor. This fine relationship between "Thanksgiving Day" and "Independence Day," of which the glories, six months ago, are certain hazy dream, is not lost upon the child.

Perhaps the most remarkable death from fear was that of the Dutch painter Pentman, who lived in the Seventeenth century. One day he went into a room full of anatomical subjects to sketch some death's heads and skeletons for a picture he intended to paint.

Some Tall Men. Of Thackeray Dean Hale tells some capital stories. The first time he met him was at a dinner at Leech's house. "I was introduced by our host, and for his sake he gave me a cordial greeting."

A Dog That Kills Snakes and Skins Them. A prominent Germantown manufacturer owns a setter dog called Brave, which has a singular penchant for hunting snakes. After killing one he places one paw on the reptile's head, and seizing the neck with his teeth he proceeds to skin it, much after the manner of skinning an eel.

An Ornamental Matchbox. The ever useful matchbox appears in almost endless variety. One style especially suitable for a yachtman represents a sailcloth rolled into a ball, with a tiler, rope and block in relief.

Better than a Government Bond, higher rate of interest, indemnity in old age or at death. You cannot lose a dollar in a Massachusetts company. Cash and paid up values guaranteed each year. Mr. H. G. Colton, Gen'l Agent of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company, is in the city and if you are thinking of carrying insurance he will be glad to see you.

ASTROLOGY IN ENGLAND. One thing that has given astrology in England a great impetus is the series of remarkable predictions which have appeared of late years in our astrological calendars. Mr. Pease, a very fine mathematician and a careful and conscientious astrologer, is to all intents and purposes "Zadkiel," and he certainly predicted to the day and even the hour the conspiracy and assassination of Prince Alexander of Bulgaria.

Millionaire Shaw's Botanical Monument. Henry Shaw, who is regarded by St. Louis as its greatest benefactor, was an Englishman by birth, who made his fortune in the hardware business and retired at the age of forty. Passionately fond of flowers he established a botanical garden just outside the corporate limits of St. Louis, and there he lived in the summer time, returning to the city in winter.

How He Came to Study School Methods. Dr. J. M. Rice, whose articles on our public school system in The Forum are attracting attention, was brought to consider the subject years ago because in his medical practice in New York city he saw such grave results from inattention to the physical well being of children in the schools.

Protecting Electric Cars. The electric car lines are under the necessity of using protectors to guard their cars from unusual works, whether coming from their own works or elsewhere. They are what are called the "lead fuse," which burns out when the anticipated emergency arises.

Let Well Enough Alone. One of the local orators on Columbus Day delivered an inspiring address in a Hancock town to the scholars and parents assembled, but in giving a description of the voyage of Columbus varied history slightly and landed Columbus on Plymouth rock. When he closed, amid the plaudits of the audience, a gentleman privately called his attention to the mistake and suggested that he correct it.

An Error Corrected. At a meeting of the Natural Science association of Toronto university T. M. Crea, B. A., read an interesting paper on "Cell Division in Its Relation to Heredity." Mr. Crea said that previously the opinion had held sway that the chromatins in the nucleus was the principal active agent in the process, but the biologist at world seems now to be inclining to the belief that the chromatins is merely passive and is acted upon by the active archoplasm, which is the dynamic agent.

The Modern Souvenir Spoon. The modern souvenir spoon doubtless owes its origin to the still existing apostle's spoons, which in sets of twelve or less were a common Christmas gift in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries.—Kansas City Journal.

A "Judicial" Opinion. During the hearing of a county court case at Pontypridd a solicitor asked a witness, "Are you a friend of the defendant?" "No," was the reply. "But you go together to the same meetings?" "What meetings?" asked Judge Williams. "Political meetings, your honor." "Oh, I see," said the judge, "they both make good pie from the same gutter."—Toronto Empire.

THE MONEY MAKING NOSE. How the Nose is Working for the Money. I was very much interested at the funeral of Jay Gould in note the wonderful collection of noses which gathered about the head of the great financier. They were noses of men who have been the architects of their own fortunes and who have builded piles of large dimensions.

We are all familiar with the strong, fine member which Dr. Depeew wears between his eyes. Although he is not a great money maker, as compared with those I have mentioned, there is no doubt of his good sense in matters pertaining to finance, nor any doubt that he has been a bulwark for the younger Vanderbilts, who, by the way, have noses of the aquiline type themselves.

The Oldest Herbarium. The oldest herbarium in the world is in the Egyptologist museum at Cairo, and consists of an inconspicuous collection of dried portions of plants. These portions of plants and flowers were taken from wreaths and garlands in the coffins with mummies, where they were placed by the ancient Egyptians as death offerings, and from edible plants which were set in earthen vessels on the floor of the sepulcher as the furniture of the last resting place of their beloved ones.

High Speed Bobbins. A new invention in the line of high speed bobbins is reported. It consists of an ingenious method of seating frame bobbins upon a spindle, so that at high speed all slipping shall be avoided. This is accomplished by the use of two washers of cloth-roller cloth being found best adapted for the purpose—one of which is firmly attached to the disk on the spindle and the other to the other side of the bobbin.
