ALL'S WELL.—G. H. Webber, the barber, and his family are again united and the chances are they will remain so. Mrs. Webber and her daughter were recently sent to the city jail for being inmates of a bawdy house. A day or two ago Mr. Webber took his wife back, and disposing of his business here, left for British Columbia to reside. The daughter was about the same time married to a young man of Salem, who is worth about $12,000. Everybody is satisfied and "all's well."—Portland Dispatch.

REMODELED.—The Mrs. Wheeler store, in the new bank block, which is occupied by Wm. Sargent, has been supplied with a broad gallery, and is put into modern shape to accommodate Mr. Sargent's growing furniture business. He also has a heavy stock of wall paper, and proposes to lead in his line. To accommodate his growing business he will close out his entire stock of notions, etc., at actual cost. Look him up, if

HOW TO CHAIN A DOG.—Dogs kept out of doors should be allowed, if possible, at least twenty feet of chain. Fancy the misery of a man full of life and energy, trying to take exercise by pulling and straining against a chain three or four feet long. Yet this is the length which some otherwise humane people seem to think a just allowance for a yard dog. The chain should be attached to a stake about eighteen feet from the kennel.—Our Animal Friends.

RIVER MATTERS.—The steamer Elwood went down this morning loaded to the guards with freight. On her last up trip she also brought the heaviest load of San Francisco freight of the season. The present stage of water is three feet, which is unusually low for this season. The Manzanillo is lying at the dock here waiting for higher water to enable her to bring logs out of the Luckiamute. The Hogue is making regular trips between here and Portland.

INSANITY.—John Phelan, of Ridge, Oregon, a miner who thinks people are going to hang him, and wants some one to shoot him to save his life; Caroline Hallock, aged 49, who talks incoherently, sings and prays constantly, were committed to the asylum today.

A NOVEL SUPPER.—The condumium supper to be given at the Presbyterian church this evening will be something novel and taking. A select programme has been prepared and its rendition will be commenced at 8 o'clock. The novel feature is the condumium supper, for which many delectable viands have been prepared. The admission fee is 25c.

A POINT.—A word of information given by a busy D. Moore at an Albany young man, singer, who has been in Salem applied for a room and for board at a well known boarding house. "For one or two" answered the lady. "For one," was the answer, "except when my wife is here."

Toastmaster General Odell introduced the subject of the evening, the relations of the university to the city of Salem. He spoke of the large possibilities of the century along the lines of moral and intellectual development. "Willamette university as it is" was responded to by President Whitaker. He was received with clapping of hands and proceeded to present a few facts about the history of the school. For forty-eight continuous years its work had gone on. In its prime it had five hundred students, with an annual growth of fifty. It had sixteen departments. Last year it enrolled 381 students. This year the curriculum had been enlarged and the aim was at the highest things. There was growing a large and considerable interest and enthusiasm for the university and he hoped for the day when every Salem man or woman would speak of it as his own. The property of the university amounted to $274,000. By next June it would have a debt of $25,000. It was hoped this might be removed, and that the finances might be arranged so that the working force need not be cut down, nor the salaries of professors reduced. It had now enrolled in all its departments 370 students, the largest of any school in Oregon. His remarks were warmly applauded.

Dr. Bushong spoke briefly on the blessings of higher education. We were met in the interest of brain culture and heart culture, in greater demand than ever before to humanity. This was a critical time when a moment taken for prompt action was more important than years in the future. The supreme hour had come to the city of Salem so far as this University was concerned. Leadership was all that was needed. Cultivated brain was leading the world today and Salem was needing some just such a man to take hold of this question.

Rev. Dennison, of Portland, spoke on "The Loyalty of Northwestern Methodism to Willamette University." In 1839 the missionaries on board a sailing ship on the Atlantic bound for Oregon took up a collection of $900 to found this school. In the early fifties it had no rival. Different Methodist schools had been built at many places in the state. But they had all passed away and the heart of the church had remained loyal to Willamette university. Two years ago the chancellor and president of this school transferred all their influence and popularity to another supposed rival of this school. But it was not a rival, though founded by men trained in the old school, who represented to the people of the state that Salem here had not put forth sufficient energy to keep the school here. This was the representation of those opposed to the school here. If the people of Salem loved this school as they ought the heart of the church would respond and keep up the University here. At one time twenty years ago a conference here subscribed over $21,000. That was done by ministers.

The Methodism of the Northwest was loyal to Willamette. The conferences has never adopted a word unfriendly to this school. Salem should answer the charge of opponents that she was lukewarm in this matter.
"The University as a sectarian institution" was assigned to ex-Mayor D'Arcy. He testified that the school had not been sectarian in any sense of the term. Men of all creeds had been educated there and gone out to positions of great usefulness and honor in every walk of life. The Methodist church could never fail to recognize this University without becoming recreant to its entire history in the Northwest.

"My Alma Mater" was responded to by R. A. Miller of Jacksonville, a majority of those who held positions of prominence in this state were graduates of Willamette. The Methodist church should be a unit in support of this school if it was to receive the support of the people of Oregon. It was not a credit to the present generation to let this school suffer, if the impoverished pioneers of other generations could make it the grand institution out of the scanty means they had.

"The Willamette—a plant that was too costly in its growth, and is too valuable to be lost." Rev. Parsons spoke to this subject briefly. The church had paid out a great sum in money and much more consecration in striking contrast with the clashing interests of today. The presiding elder spoke eloquently of the affection of the people for this school and of the sacrifices that had been made. This country would experience a marvelous growth in population and there was ample opportunity and demand for this school. The wealth of the nation must be expended for Christian education, or it would become a mill stone about the people's necks.

"The importance of united co-operation on the part of the people of Salem," was handsomely enlarged upon by Rev. Gue, of Portland. The state had doubled in population in the last ten years, Salem had doubled in people. There was room for both colleges.

This speech closed the program of the evening and the gentlemen present all believed that great good had been done for the cause of Christian education.
THE GERVAIS BANK.—Attachments by Scott Jones for $373.57, and I. W. Hubbard for $383, were filed Tuesday night against the United States Banking Co. of Gervais. There are no other new developments on this subject. The bank still remains closed and will until the arrival of the president from Chicago. It is said the Junction City bank is also closed for similar reasons.

OUR CANNERY WANTED.—It is evident that the Salem cannery is a good piece of property for it is wanted by an English syndicate and also by New York parties. They are both figuring with the Wallace estate, and it is more than probable that this concern will fall into new hands by another season.

NOT IN IT.—It is the opinion of some leading Republicans at Salem that Senator D. Dipa is not geographically so located that President Harrison could appoint him to the vacancy caused by Lamar's death. It belongs to the Southern district.

GRADUATES.—A class of sixteen who have completed the East Salem public school course and will receive diplomas to that effect Friday, Jan. 27th. The exercises will be in the evening.

"Thick and Glossy."

THE PRODUCTION of an abundant growth of hair, of a silk-like texture and of the original color, often results from the use of those who have become bald or gray, of Ayer's Hair Vigor:

"I was rapidly becoming gray and bald; but after using two or three bottles of Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair grew thick and glossy and the original color was restored."—M. Aldrich, Canaan Centre, N. H.

"A trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me of its merits. Its use has not only restored the hair of my wife and daughter to be abundant and glossy, but it has given my rather stunted mustache a respectable length and appearance."—R. Britton, Oakland, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past four or five years and find it a most satisfactory dressing for the hair. It is all that I could desire, being harmless, causing the hair to retain its natural color, and requiring but a small quantity to render the hair easy to arrange."—Mrs. M. A. Bailey, 9 Charles st., Haverhill, Mass.

AUCTION SALE AND BIDS.

Proceedings Had Relative to Establishing a New City Hall.

A red flag hung out at the Capitol engine house indicated that the two engine house properties were to be sold, as advertised, at public auction to the highest bidder at 2 p. m.

The city hall committee were also ready to open the bids for new site to locate the new structure upon. A number of bids were received. One was for the Davis property, corner Chemeketa and High streets.

BIDS OPENED.
N. Davis 82x125 feet, corner Chemeketa and High, $5 250; Chas. Ryley, opposite Davis's, same size, $5 500; Dr. Golden, 56x100 feet on alley, Chemeketa street, between Liberty and High, $2800; Geo. H. Burnett, lot 1, block 20, corner High and Center, $5000; Mrs. M. A. Thompson, south east corner Liberty and Chemeketa, 82x110, $6000.

THE AUCTION sale of the two engine house properties resulted as follows: Capital engine house and lot to Thos. Holman at $15,000. Tiger engine house and lot to Thos. Holman, at $2350. Both sales subject to ratification by council.

MENU.
What Some People Don't Know, Batchelor's Comfort, Old Maid's Solace, Saloon Keeper's Dread, Gressed Staff, Aristocratic Kindling, Woman's Weapon, An Ancient Sacrifice, Easter Greetings, With Spilliters from the North Pole, Elvated Feline, A preparation of Uncooked Herb, What the Democrats Did Last Fall, The Delight of Darwin's Grandfather, Food for the Spinning Wheel.

AN ENDOWMENT.—The banquet last night to promote the welfare of Willamette university was a great success, and reflects credit upon Messrs. Odell and Whitaker who managed the affair. This city has raised three thousand dollars a year to support the Y. M. C. A. and there ought to be raised immediately a $50,000 endowment fund to bridge over the deficit in current expenses. That amount drawing six per cent should be pledged for five years at least.

JUTE MILL.—It is the opinion of some leading Marion county granters that the resolution adopted last Saturday by Salem Grange, opposing establishment of a state jute mill to be run by convict labor, is not the true sentiment of the granters of this county. It is not in Lane county and such prominent men in the grange as J. B. Stump, and A. C. Jennings heartily favor a jute mill.

EVERYBODY GO.—And have a good laugh at the Second Regt. band's entertainment Thursday evening, where Messrs. Ryley, Martin and Harry of the Asylum Dramatic Co. will produce the laughable farce entitled "The Trials and Tribulations of a Barber-Shop." Tickets on sale at both book stores.

A NEW SECTION.—The Salem Water Co. have a contractor here making an estimate on a new section pipe to the crib in the river. It will be much larger than the present one and will be connected with increased pumping facilities to be added this spring.

"Kalamazoo Celery" wholesale and retail, Sroat & Gile.

Not Hardly.
"So," exclaimed the father to the young man who had run off with his daughter and married her and was returning to patch up a peace, "so you and that girl eloped together, did you?" "Well, yes," responded the young fellow in a businesslike tone; "you didn't think we had eloped apart, did you?"—Detroit Free Press.

Saving.
"Oh, John, I've saved $900 out of what you gave me last year! Aren't you glad?" said an up town housewife.

A Dangerous Insect to Touch.
A milliped which was brought from Mombosa, Africa, is said to be one of the most interesting inmates of the insect house at the London Zoological gardens. It has a black body, coarse red legs, is a vegetarian and perfectly harmless, except that it possesses an evil smelling fluid, the use of which insures it against a repetition of inquisitive touching. Its diet is mainly decayed leaves.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Lorne's Advice to a "Poet."
One McGonagall, a resident of Dundee, on the occasion of the visit of the Marquis of Lorne and his wife, the Princess Louise, to that city, eulogized their coming in glowing verse, which he forwarded to his lordship. Here is the reply that the enthusiastic poet received: "Sir, I thank you for your inclosure, and as a friend would advise you to resolve to keep strictly to prose for the future."—Buffalo News.

Keeping Time with Insect Sticks.
In China time is often kept with tolerable accuracy in the shops and temples by burning insect sticks of sawdust carefully mixed with a small proportion of glue and evenly rolled into cylinders two feet long.
