Oregon Deaf Mutes. From the United States census returns it appears that the number of deafmutes in Oregon is steadily increasing, as shown by the statistics quoted below.

Year of Census. It is a very hard matter to obtain correct returns as to deaf and dumb children, and the above figures are probably considerably below the actual numbers. According to the census of 1890, the whole population of Oregon is 313,767. The proportion of the deaf to the general population is about 1 in 1500. This ratio would give Oregon about 210 deaf mutes, of whom at least 60 ought to be of proper school age. This estimate tallies ap proximately with the last census, in which 63 deaf mutes under twenty years of age were actually enumer-
