EDUCATIONAL CONGRESS.—State Superintendent McElroy has received and accepted an invitation to deliver an address before the World's Educational congress, to be held at Chicago during the Columbian exposition this year. This congress will convene during the month of July and the address will be given July 17th. Superintendent McElroy has selected the following subject: "The Rise and Growth of the Public Schools on the Pacific Slope."

ROSE, ALIAS CARTER.—Complete requisition papers having been obtained, the sheriff of Lawrence county, Missouri secured the person of R. C. Carter, a fugitive from justice for the crime of murder, and started back for Missouri, via Sacramento Monday night. Carter was heavily ironed and will hardly escape. Sheriff Wilson and guard Warren are not the men to let him escape.

HUMBUG—Which will be presented by Cordray's dramatic company at the opera house tonight is a most farcical comedy. Mr. Lytell as Jack Luster, a humbug, is a character which is well adapted to him, and he keeps the house in a roar of laughter. Miss Lieb as Mrs. Ponsby, with lofty aspirations, has an excellent comedy part, which she sustains throughout admirably. The incidents of the play get them into ridiculous situations continually, owing to the fact that they are going under false colors, and they keep the house in constant laughter. The remainder of the cast is well sustained, and "Humbug" ought to be seen by all who desire a good laugh and drive away the blues.

SLEIGHING.—For the first time in many years this part of Oregon has enough snow to afford sleighing. There are many rigs out, including one fine eastern cutter with bells. It reminds many people of old times.

The World's Fair Bill.

Some gentlemen are expressing surprise that THE JOURNAL criticises the world's fair bill as it now stands. THE JOURNAL is in favor of Oregon having an exhibit at Chicago, but it dislike the idea of composing the commission of members of the various commissions and boards already in existence. It dislikes the idea of making a few people bear all honors of a great state, when there are other worthy, enterprising, and competent persons far more deserving. The present bill would put the responsibility of naming the commission onto the legislature.

EVER BRANCHING OUT.

Salem's Leading Restaurant Secures a Large Dairy.

Yesterday's real estate transfers show the sale of 60 acres on the reform school road by Ex-Governor Z. F. Moody to Messrs. Westacott & Irwin, proprietors of Strong's restaurant. This tract is three miles from the city and is considered one of the best near the city. It will be converted into a milk ranch and dairy farm, the products of which will be exclusively used in the firm's popular restaurant. Mr. Irwin is a practical dairyman and will in the early spring move his family onto the dairy farm, and they will personally take charge of this property and put it into the best shape to serve the interests of their business. Mr. Westacott, whose standing as a caterer and practical baker will continue in charge of the restaurant, the business of which has grown to such an extent as to require for its cream supply the entire output of a large private dairy.

This firm has had charge of the restrurant about two years, in which time the business has been nearly quadrupled, thus making it necessary to control a large amount of first-class milk, cream and butter; and this addition to their business will further enable them to still better serve the public. They have already sent for a centrifugal separator, and the quality of cream used in their famous New York ice cream will give it a still greater reputation than it has enjoyed in the past.

HOUSE—10 A. M. JAN. 31.

Reading of journal dispended with.

Trullinger moved to reconsider vote by which house bill No. 58 to increase the powers of the state board of horticulture and create the office of state fruit pest inspector. Carried.

Coon moved to recommit to com. on agriculture. Carried.

ON THIRD READING.

No. 57, by Coon, to prevent sale, gift distribution, planting and transportation of infested fruit, trees or plants. Recommitted for amendment.

Baughman moved to reconsider vote passing senate bill No. 31, to incorporate Springfield. Carried. Amended and passed.

No. 100, by Cooper, new road supervisor law, providing that same be elected by the people, regulating hours of labor, collection of taxes, etc. Jeffreys moved it be special order Monday at 2:30 p. m. Cooper amended to Thursday next same hour. Lost. Cooper addressed the house. The appointing of road masters got many unfit men in office. The bill does away with the labor tax which yielded no good results in roads, but proposes a tax of four mills instead. Grading machines are provided to do the work before the ground gets hard and such a machine will do as much road work as thirty or forty teams with plows and scrapers. The roads are to be uniform in plan, built of gravel with culverts of stone where practicable. Trullinger wanted a good strong road law. Baughman said the people were now taxed 20 to 30 mills county and state taxes. This law would create four mills additional taxes. Therefore he opposed it. The whole trouble with the present law was in the selection of proper men to oversee the work. Geer argued for concessions in order to get a better law.

Cooper's road bill was re-committed for purpose of amendment.

Senate resolution for a joint committee to investigate affairs of State Agricultural society was concurred in; also senate resolution authorizing joint committee to investigate asylum at Salem to call witnesses.

Bill to create the county of Mineral, Baughman moved to make special order Feb. 15th. Sheridan moved to table. Carried.

Bill to create Southern Oregon Board of Agriculture. Passed.

Bill reducing rate of interest to six per cent. Mr. Cooper said his bill was really to give the people of Oregon a market, as now money brought ten per cent. and would not be invested in lands or commercial pursuits.

Nickell moved indefinite postponement. Upton moved recommitment to amend in relation to rate of interest in school fund. Lost. On passage, ayes 31; noes 27.

Bill to govern priority of right to waste, spring and seeping waters, amends irrigation law. It proposes to protect owners of springs and pumped waters as against big companies, ayes 57; noes 0.

To regulate running at large of stock, by popular vote of counties, by Geer of Clackamas. This is the local option law of other states. Brown opposed as it would subject stock owners near county lines to reason. Ford moved to recommit to committee on agriculture to amend so as to apply only to Western Oregon, where this law was wanted. Carried.

Adjourned.

SENATE—JAN. 31—10 A. M.

Resolution by Looney that a committee of two senators be appointed to act with the clerks to correct records and that they have twenty days after the session to complete the work. Cross moved to amend by making it ten days. Tabled.

Com. on roads recommended that senate bill 106 pass.

Vote referring house bill 56 to counties was reconsidered and same was amended and re-referred.

Nervous Prostration,

So prevalent, especially among women, results from overtaxing the system. The assimilative organs becoming deranged, the blood grows weak and impoverished, and hence "that tired feeling" of which many complain. For all such cases, there is no remedy equal to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Take no other.

"Some time ago I found my system entirely run down. I had a feeling of constant fatigue and languor and very little ambition for any kind of effort. A friend advised me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which I did with the best results. It has done me more good than all other medicines I have ever used." — Frank Mellows, Chelsea, Mass.

"For months I was afflicted with nervous prostration, weakness, languor, general debility, and mental depression. By purifying the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I was completely cured." —Mrs. Mary Stevens, Lowell, Mass.

BUYING A HAT.

Tribulations of a Young Married Woman Who Wished to Be Economical.

She was a young married woman, accredited with more than ordinary common sense. As an illustration of this, she had waited until after the openings were over before buying a winter hat. No time had been lost, however, for she had studied the hat question in all its phases and knew exactly what she wanted. It was to be a round hat, and must not cost a penny over eight dollars.

For an hour or so she went from one shop to another, "just looking on." After pointing out three or four hats which particularly pleased her she seated herself before the long mirror with a glass in one hand and one of the hats in the other. This hat, in her hand, was a beauty, but on her head it was the most unbecoming thing she had ever seen.

The next hat was too large and was trimmed too conspicuously; the third too small and prim; the fourth cost too much. The saleswoman's smiles were less frequent and the saleswoman herself less talkative.

The buyer found herself growing irritable, but she congratulated herself that she was not making such a fuss as that woman in front of the next mirror. Then she wondered why that fat lady with a moon face insisted upon choosing the most ridiculously small bonnets, while the woman with a long and sharp face spent her time gazing at herself from underneath a broad brim with a towering mass of feathers above.

Suddenly she saw a jaunty turban. The coloring was stylish, and when she tried it on it was just what she needed. She was sure it was becoming, because the saleswoman agreed with her that it was. Then it gave her a very comfortable feeling to know that it only cost $7.50. And so, even if she had spent six hours in getting it, together with incidental expenses amounting to ninety-five cents, she was satisfied, it seemed such a sensible investment.

After dinner that evening the hat came. One glance in her own mirror, and, oh, what a difference! It was the worst little hat; she couldn't see why she had bought it. She looked disfigured in it, and if she had to wear that hat all winter she would not go out at all.

She put the hat in its bandbox, the box high up on the closet shelf, and then cried.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
