The commissioners are at loggerheads with the governor over his successor. The governor is waiting for the commissioners, and Warden Lovering has been away a number of days at the inaugural.

He will return tomorrow. Meanwhile the demoralization continues. The prisoners were quiet last night, but are likely to break at any time. What is needed is a warden, a man of iron, who will break open the locked chest which, under the "bumane" system in vogue, every prisoner is allowed to keep in his cell, and take from them those weapons which the under officers know are in concealment. Ghost Story Party. My dear, have you heard of the very intest fad? Probably not, because it is so new it has not reached Detroit yes. Well, it's a ghost party and its just lovely. In order to give one successfully you must have one of those big halls—a hall, you know, that goes up two or three stories and has a great old fash-ioned fireplace in it? First you invite about eight or nine people and assemble them in the hall. All the portieres are down your back, but it is really awfully nice, because, you know, it is really necessary to hold hands so you will not be too frightened, and sometimes they

Of course I don't know, because I have never attended one, but in the east they are called engagement parties, because so many engagements have resulted from them. The ghost story party is sure to be a success with the Detroit girls.—Detroit Tribune.

A LITERAL MINDED MAN.

An Interested Spectator Who Took a Po litical Story in Good Faith.

The most curious person in the audistories of the demoralized condition of ence of a story teller is the literal minded man. When General Dix ran for govrising last Saturday. It is declared on that he was too old to fulfill the functions no less authority than Night Officer of the office. Singularly enough, the have revolvers secreted in their cells; ton years. I was making a speech at watertown to a very big audience. I was running at that time as a liberal that at least three dynamite bombs are Republican for lieutenant governor upon in the possession of the men. It is the same ticket with Francis Kernan. It said by the officers that they do not was an immense outdoor audience. In things away from the men; they are hid- me during the three hours of that speech

I finally took up the question of General Dix's age, gave the dates of the various biographical dictionaries and encyclopedias, and based a theory on how old he must have been in the war of 1812, had been revealed by some recent researches in the colonial records of Massachusetts. It had been discovered that when the pilgrim fathers landed on Plymouth rock they found General Dix standing on that historic spot and shouting that unless they made him a justice of the peace he would go over and join the Indians, the point of which was that the general had changed his politics several times, and every time he got an office.

My critical friend saw his opportunity and grasped it at once. He sprang up with a shout that could be heard to the Canadian border, "Mr. Depew, that is a lie!" I looked at him for a moment to see whether he had swallowed the bait, and found that he had taken it in hook and line, bob and sinker, whole and all. Then I stepped to the front of the platform and said with great emphasis and indignation, "Sir, I have told that hisdisclosures have created a feeling in toric anecdote from Montauk point to Niagara falls to hundreds of thousands of the intelligent and educated people of this great commonwealth, and you are the only man who ever had the audacity

"It ain't true, Mr. Depew," he repeated, "because that happened more than revolvers. The plan was to kill any one 250 years ago." I was told when in Watertown last fall that although this happened in 1872 that man had never been able to come into town since .-Chauncey M. Depew in New York World.

The Waverly Oaks.

The great oaks at Waverly, Mass., are survivals of an oak forest that must have existed in that region, according to the geologists and students of trees, as far back as the Tenth century. They bear every evidence of great age, and an elm tree in the neigborhood, now almost dismantled, with its great limbs lying on the ground and nearly all of its branches decayed, is the most venerable object in the line of trees that can probably be displayed in New England. It is well worth a visit to Waverly just to see this venerable elm. It is immense in the size of its trunk, and its dignity in decay is very impressive. The dozen oak trees in the neighborhood are of the that maintain their virility unimpaired.

We know of only one other oak tree in New England that can be compared with them. That is located in Ipswich, and is larger and more venerable apparently than any of the Waverly oaks, and that and the Waverly oaks, we are glad to know, have been inspected by the state park commissioners and are likely to be preserved. It is worth one's while to see and study these majestic oaks. They are seen to great advantage in the winter, when their rugged limbs are bare and their immense strength is revealed, and in summer, when they are covered with foliage, they are objects of wonderful beauty.-Boston Herald.

The Economical Mula.

The mule is ready to begin work two or three years earlier than the horse. He can be put to pretty heavy pulling when he is 3 years old, and from that time until he is 40, if he has fair treatment and does not meet with an accident, he is not likely to lose any time. He is not subject to the many ailments to which the horse is a victim, at least not to any great degree. He lives about twice as ong and his actual period of usefulness is nearly three times as long, for the horse is really not fit for heavy service until he is 5 years old, or after he is 20, while a mule will often do good service for forty years, and they have been known to work fifty, according to one writer, without being turned out at any time during all that long period.

Like the ass, the mule will live upon next to nothing, and during all his forty years of hard service a mule will not require-and generally does not get-half the feed necessary to sustain a horse during his much shorter period of usefulness. Jack will thrive on what is out here contemptuously called "cow hay" -wild dried grasses-with a handful or two of corn, and on such food will outwork a horse of his own weight fed upon good wheat hay and crushed grain .-San Francisco Call.

What Suffrage Is.

We are often asked what suffrage is, and what it will do for us. It is the standard that leads the way, and the want of it is the bar that stands in the way of everything else. It is the demand for suffrage that has helped to bring all the gains we have already won, and these in their turn will help to bring suffrage - Mrs. Ednah D. Cheney.

English Youth and the Army. Walter Besant, in his very entertaining and valuable book on "London," notes an important change in the early part of this century in the feelings of the English gentry about trade. Mercantile life ceased to attract the younger sons of the gentry, who found employ ment in the army or navy, and the city was thus severed from the counties.
