A Story of Professor Huxley. Professor Huxley, Dt. Wayland declares, was once sitting at dinner beside a lady who, in impassioned tones, asked him whether he did not think it a very terrible thing that the Rev. Mr. Jones the vicar, should have adopted the east-ward position in administering the sacrament. "My dear lady," he replied, "I am told by Sir John Herschel that to drop a pea at the end of every mile of a voyage on a limitless ocean to the dis tance of the nearest fixed star would re quire a fleet of 10,000 ships, each of 600 tons burden; all starting with a full cargo of peas. Now do you really suppose that the Maker of the fixed stars considers this new position of Mr. Jones a serious thing?'-- New York Tribune.

Sprung from Hunters. Traditions and folklore among the people of mountainous Kentucky are vanescent and vary widely in different localities. It appears that the people are sprung in part from the early hunt-ers who came into the mountains when game was abundant, sport unfailing and living cheap. Among them now are still hunters, who know the haunts of bear and deer, needing no dogs. Even yet they prefer wild meat—even "pos-sum" and "coon" and groundhog—to any other.—"Blue Grass Region of Ken-

"The five years now drawing to a close have been marked beyond any similar period in the history of the military establishment by legislation and modification of regulations calculated to ameliorate the condition and improve the situation and surroundings of the enlisted men." This is taken from the report of the adjutant general of the army. New quarters of the most improved designs have been erected, the vegetable component of the ration has been increased, post exchanges have been established, the clothing has been increased, new barrack furniture and equipments have been supplied, a method of procuring discharges by purchase has been provided and the enlisted men have the option at the end of three years' corvice of returning to civil life with an honorable discharge, and the existing met of lighting, heating and ventilatio the quarters leave nothing to be desired.

A good story is told on one of the political managers. He was approaches several days before election by a young man who stated that he had organize a club of eighteen men and would name it after any prominent man who would furnish the uniforms. He did not want much—just cape dusters and plug hats. The manager studied the matter over, and finally got the dusters and hats and threw in some nice canes for good measure.

This is the last that has been heard of that club. It has not been named after any prominent citizen so far as any one is aware. It has been learned, however, that the young men have organized a minstrel company, and are prepared to give a nicely dressed street parade when they start on the road.—Indianapolis
