THE CEREMONIES.

Illinois, Mayor Harrison bringing op

The eavalade proceeded to the adminstration building, where the ceremonies of the day took place. Passing through the building the notables came out upon a platform at the east side, looking out upon the grand plaza and court of honor. The plaza was black with people, the whole scene forming one of the most remarkable and en-chanting in history. Shortly after 10 o'clock the opening ceremonies began, with Prof. John K. The president and officials were then entertained at junction and made the rounds of the buildings.

WOMAN'S BUILDING DEDICATED.

The most satisfactory feature of the day's proceedings, from a feminine stand point, was the formal dedication of the Woman's building this after noon. A great throng of women minent danger of their silks and fa-bries and their frail bonnets. Mrs. Potter Palmer, president of the woman's board of lady managers delivered the dedicatory address.

DRUMMERS' DAY.

The World's fair committee on cere-monies has assigned June 10 as the fete day of the Commercial Travelers' Protective association. The pro-gramme will be a very elaborate one and will include the attendance of at least 3,000 traveling men from almost every state in the Union. The annual convention will be held at Peoria, Ills., delegates and members will adjourn to Chicago, special trains being chartered for the purpose. The Peoria people are raising $5,000 for the entertainment of the traveling men.

There will be parades and other festivities at Peoris, and at Chicago there will be a mammoth parade. The "boys" will be in 20 state divisions, each division headed by a first class band, and other steps will be taken to make the parade one of the biggest events of the season and one of the biggest events of the season and of the fair. Special trains will be on hand to take the traveling men out to Jackson park, where there will be another parade and ceremonies of a very unique char-acter. Six crators of national reputation will deliver addresses, and the governors of 10 states will also occupy positions on the platform.

MILITARY PARADE ON THE QUAY.

President Cleveland's Address at the Columbian Exposition.

CHICAGO, May 1.-Jupiter Pluvius held an uplifted, threatening fist over Chicago this morning. The skies were sodden, and a bleak and chilled mist filled the atmosphere. But to Chicago, the weather condition counted for nothing, and early the people were astir, In the great circle of events which today makes Chicago the festal city, the first point of interest centered at the the present triumph of a vigorous self-Auditorium hotel, where large numbers gathered for a glimpse of Columbus' iescendant, Duke De Veragua, who with members of his family and committees of prominent officials, national, state and municipal, took carriages about 9 o'clock, and under military escort, drove to Lexington Hotel, at Michigan avenue and 20th street also made men who rule themselves. to the park was to start with the ducal party arrayed in all the glories of Spanish court costumes. In the meantime associates appeared at the entrance of Lexington Hotel, and were conducted to carriages. When all was in readitioness the procession moved in the following order: A platton of mounted police, two companies of United States cavalry, Chicago Hussars and a troop of Illinois National Guard. The world fair officials occupied the first six carriages. In the seventh was President Cleveland and the chairman of the collumbian commission and the president of the world's Columbian exposition.
