A. Magee, a New York sporting man, was one of the passengers. When he got up he forgot nine $100 bills in a small, pockettook that he had placed under his pillow the night before, and when the tug came alongside, while the steamer was at anchor in the stream, he made haste to land. No sooner had he reached the Baldwin hotel than he discovered his loss, and hiring a coupe

he reached just as the steamer was made fast. An inquiry for the lost bills proved that they were safe in Captain Johnston's hands. Ah Ping, a Chinese in the steward's department, while making up Magee's berth, had found the bills and taken them to the captain. Magee was handed his money, and called for Ab Piug, to whom he gave twenty-five dollars. The Chinese had hardly time to appre ciate his good luck when Chief Steward Cottrell was angry because the stray bills had not been given to him to return to the owner, instead of the cap-tain, and ordered that Ah Ping should be discharged. Unless the wrathy stew ard is called down by some of the head officers of the company Ah Ping will have to leave the steamer for being honest. Had he chosen he could easily have secreted the valuable paper bills so that no one could have found them and

The editor of the Pendleton East Ore-

"There is a scandal at Salem. It is interesting. The principals are a newspaper man, Ernst Hofer, of the CAPITAL JOURNAL, W. A. Shaw, a business man, of Salem, and Miss Fer-ris etc."

Starting out on this ungenerous and entirely untruthful statement this far-off Eastern Oregon Jackass writes the

"The people of Salem are greatly worked up over a scandal, an account of which appears in this paper, and well might they be, since it has assumed such a desperate and tragic form. All the parties stand well and it is surpris-ing that a newspaper man, such as young Hofer has appeared to be, should be mixed up it any such nefarious plot to extort money.

The Democrat sold Mr. Shaw 800 copies of the paper, the sale and distri-bution costing that gentlemen just $24. If he or anyone else wants ten thou sand copies at the same rate we will be pleased to furnish them.—Democrat May 4.

The above confession is worth noticing. What was the purpose of the sale and distribution of those papers, Mr. Democrat? Was it to serve the people and protect public morals? That was a small sum for which to print two columns and scatter your paper broadcast in people's dooryards last Monday morning. Who knows how much more you got? You have con-femed to $24 which you have received. Perhaps you will own up to some more next week? You want to be register of the Public Land office of this state. Is a man who will sell out for $24 fit to handle the putlie monies or dispose of the public lands?

The Democrat says it will furnish ten thousand papers for the same purpose. What purpose? Was it to bring an acknowledged offender to justice, or to fasten a false charge of blackmail upon the JOURNAL, to sustain which there is not a particle of evidence beyond the statements of a man under fire and condemned by his own words and conduct, both in court and in private? Is that the noble purpose of jour-

The terrible indignation of the leer ing, fat boy of the Democrat, lest the JOURNAL be found guilty of blackmail, is highly comical. He has such appar licitude for public morals and the preservation of female virtue that he nnot hear to let the people live in ignorance of the JOURNAL's real charactor,--- if he has to circulate teu thousand spice at Mr. Shaw' spense.

WHAT NEXT?

THE JOURNAL is interested in the haw case only from the standpoint of a public newspaper. It is interested in giving the people the news and protect-ing public morals.

It has given the news in this case without fear or favor. The people ap-presists this. If the press can be bought up by the sale of a few papers for 624, as the Democrat confesses be
