

THE CAPITAL JOURNAL. PUBLISHED DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY, BY THE Capital Journal Publishing Company.

HOVER BROTHERS, Editors. In this Oregon climate every day will be Sunday now for a while.

People who cannot keep straight in broad daylight better not be abroad at night. Mr. Cleveland seems to be conducting a non-resident administration so far as Oregon is concerned.

This city has about as much use now for an elaborate twenty-ceiled steel jail as a Florida alligator with a fur overcoat. The people of Oregon would be very glad to hear more of their world's fair exhibit and less of the strifes of the exhibitors.

The Oregonian thinks if the capital were located at Portland it would be more convenient for the whole state. It would also be more convenient for Washington and Alaska.

The people would not hesitate to leave the state institutions at Salem, against the Oregonian's modest stand-off about not wishing to bribe the people to move it to Portland.

The number of people who are willing to take any amount of free advertising and very little at their own expense is depressingly large; which only proves that advertising is a good thing and appreciated.

The state prison at least should be located at Portland. It would be cheaper for all the rest of the prison population of the state to travel there and Portland could not dump her criminals on the country.

Some of the people connected with the Oregon world's fair exhibit, whether salaried or unsalaried, are showing what first-class asses they can make of themselves. But they have a great deal of natural material to work on.

The Portland Oregonian does not like the seat of government to be where it is. It would be far better, you know, to have it under that tall tower and in the office chair of the big editor; there is where the seat of government should be.

If the state institutions are scattered more the Multnomah delegation in future legislatures will have lost its occupation. The log-rolling lobby for state appropriations for the various local interests will form a corrupting influence that will control both houses.

A great many papers have copied THE JOURNAL'S account of how the insane people would get out of the asylum in case of fire. What a good many long to know is how to get out of there in case there is no fire.

The legislature at least should sit at Portland. Then half that city would not have to move up here every other winter, and the boodle lobby would not have to go to the expense of hiring special trains to come up to Salem on important occasions.

After charging the county $400 for election tickets that could have been had for $100, and $45 for an advertisement that has always had four times as much circulation for $12, the Democrat man should change his paper into a daily. So much ability as a reformer should not slumber in a mere weekly.

The little papers of the state seem to think any place—Eastern Oregon, on the Snake river, in Lake county—anywhere, would be a better place for the state institutions than Salem. Some of these people would cost the state a great deal more to get them there, and that is all there would be to it. Some people are satisfied with their seat of government.

It has been suggested in several quarters that Portland, in order to get the capital, would be glad to donate ample and suitable grounds, and even to guarantee a building fund. But this would be nothing more nor less than a bribe to the legislature and the voters, and contrary therefore to public policy.—The Oregonian. Portland should not be so sensitive on the bribery question. It is really alarming.

WILLAMETTE NOTES. Miss Mabel Jones, a student of last year, who has been teaching in Woodburn, was at chapel Monday.

Rev. Bryan, whose son is a student, was a visitor Wednesday. The recital given by the pupils of Prof. Scriber on Wednesday evening was one of more than usual excellence.

Dr. Geo. Whittaker went to the district conference at Lebanon Thursday and returned Friday. The preliminary oratorical contest, that is, the contest to see who will represent Willamette university at the oratorical contest, will occur next Wednesday evening, May 17th.

Miss Carrie S. Rodolph, reader and impersonator, will give an entertainment, assisted by home talent, for the benefit of the advertising fund, on Friday, May 19th, at 8 p. m. Admission 50 and 25 cents.

Prof. Scriber's entertainment drew an immense audience and seats for all were provided with difficulty. The size of the audience was a compliment to the success of the teacher. Miss Hunaker of Woodburn visited chapel, Friday.

The Philodanians gave their last open meeting for the year, Friday evening. The best of all ways to lengthen our days is to use Pierce's Purgative Pills, Str.

For nine-tenths of the diseases of the body begin with constipation or the clogging up of the sluice-ways, through which the impurities of the blood escape so that they are reabsorbed into the system. The Purgative Pills act gently but thoroughly upon the stomach and liver, and are the best laxative known.

Without racking and straining the organs, they open the bowels and restore a natural, healthy digestion. Unusually in dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, piles, or any of the resulting diseases.

FROM WILLARD. Mrs. R. C. Geer is suffering from an attack of the grippe. The boys of Willard being law abiding citizens in every sense of the word, do not hunt now, and consequently the game birds are getting very tame.

Chinese pheasants are seen around the yards and orchards quite often. Mr. O. S. Hibbard and family are visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Hibbard, of Willard.
