AN UNSEEMLY WRANGLE.

Astoria Budget: The wrangle over the appointment of Mr. E. C. Russell as appraiser for the Port of Portland is much to be regretted. Mr. Noltner is certainly doing himself no service and his party a positive injury by his persistent ventilation of the affair in his paper, the Portland Dispatch. It is, to say the least, very bad form for him, as a disappointed candidate for the position, to prostitute a Democratic paper, though himself the owner and editor, to such ignoble as well as incendiary service. The deed, good or bad in a political sense, has been done, and there's an end. Nothing but disaster can be reaped by an industrious fomentation of discord in the party over the matter now. We believe that the old war horses should be favored in the distribution of the offices, because the Democratic situation is different from that of the Republicans. Our party has for years fought a losing fight and those who have borne the heat and burden of the glorious contest through dark and weary years of defeat have never been rewarded for their dauntless heroism and unfailing faith. This is why we believe that they should be remembered now. A good general has the Napoleonic merit of recognizing young talent and the necessity of fresh blood, but he does not forget the veterans and fail to reward them for their noble services. They should not, at least, be pushed aside too harshly and abruptly by new-comers. On the other hand the old guard must sometime give way. The younger generation is now in the field and will insist upon recognition. The worthy immigrant also must be generously received. He must not, it is true, be pushed to the head of the table, but both policy and politeness require that he shall be welcomed to the banquet and freely served in his turn, without toiling unnoticed through long and lonely years of probation. The false doctrine of vested rights in political preferment has been the ruin of the Republican party. The old stagers for years and years, have run the machine and divided the honors and profits among themselves. They seemed to think themselves possessed of a good lump of the watered stock of that battered old lie, the divine right of kings, and they have worked the scheme for all it was worth. But they have worked the ledge out; their old bluff has been called and they will have to show down—and step down, too, and out. They have grown gray, insolent indolent and imbecile in public office and the young Republicans are at last shifting them off the scene.

AN UNEASY SITUATION.

The financial situation in our country continues decidedly uneasy. Ever since the people placed the Democratic party in power the balance of the trade has been going against the United States. Ever since last November the outflow of gold has been increasing. No one can tell what the outcome will be.

No one doubts that the president and his cabinet are doing all they can to maintain credit and stem the tide. There is a great financial stringency in England, and all British colonies, where failures have been heavier than in the states.

Whether the Cleveland administration can improve the financial situation, can turn the tide and establish prosperity any more than we have had, is to be seen. There is a lack of confidence abroad, and at home in the general financial record of the Democratic party. Its past history it cannot revert to with profit. Its present is full of perplexities. Its future is its own. The people put it in control of our country's affairs and they will be able to endure their self-imposed inflictions.

Inferior Goods.

The only safe way for purchasers is to insist on having the genuine article, and not allow themselves to be swindled by having plasters said to be "just as good," or "containing superior ingredients," imposed upon them. These are only tricks to sell inferior goods that no more compare with Allcock's Porous Plasters than copper does with gold. One trial of Allcock's Porous Plasters will convince the most skeptical of their merits.

The eminent Henry A. Mott, Jr., Ph. D., F. C. S., late Government Chemist, certifies:

"My investigation of Allcock's Porous Plaster shows it to contain valuable and essential ingredients not found in any other plaster, and I find it superior to and more efficient than any other plaster."

Ask for Allcock's, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

All dispeptics should use TUTT'S PILLS.

A TRIFLE DENSE.

A Drummer's Adventure in the Eastern Kentucky Hills.

"You may talk about your Georgia crackers if you want to!" growled the man who represents the "gents'" furnishing goods firm as he crossed his legs and began picking yellow clay from the cracks of his shoes, "but I'm here to tell you that the eastern Kentucky hilligan is a dodo compared to them!"

"What's soured on your appetite now?" grinned the shoehouse drummer, as he affectionately patted his pile of sale bills and looked at the scenery through the gloom of Friday evening.

"Well," said the g. f. g. man sourly, "I left Greenbrier Monday for some new territory, which I had been told was very promising. It was—it promised—and that's all it did. Nothing but hills and mud—high water had wiped out the roads so completely that we were lost half the time—and worse than useless to seek information from the natives—their 'general intelligence' is so densely ignorant that they don't know in which direction to look for the seats of their breeches. At first I thought it was simple, unadulterated cussedness, but at last I had to list it as sheer density."

"Why?" asked the shoehouse man as the speaker paused.

"Why! Why, by Joe! I was recommended to call on a merchant named Giles at a little place half way between Webbville and the other side of nowhere, and when I reached the place I stopped at the first house I came to and asked for lodging, as it was raining and dark as a stack of black cats. 'All right,' said the man, 'come in.' Supper was ham and eggs and biscuits yellower than the butter. And then I asked if he knew any one by the name of Giles thereabouts. 'No-o,' says he, with a puzzled drawl, as if he was trying to recollect something. 'I ain't heerd of nobody hereabaouts by th' name of Giles—leastways I don't think I has—but take a cheer and rest yer hat a bit, and I'll go and ask the postmaster or some of the folks,' and off he went through the rain, scratching his head as if bewildered about something.

"In—well, say about 15 or 20 minutes, he came back with a look on his face of the blankest amazement I ever saw on a mortal man. 'Why,' said he, with a foolish grin and a sheepish tone, 'postmaster says as how my own name is Giles, and, come to think about it, mister, danged if I don't believe it is. Well, this is a go, ain't it?'"

The drummer paused and kicked his sample case savagely, and then remarked, with an inflection that defies description:

"And I was recommended to sell that man a bill of goods!"—Cincinnati Commercial.

Strange Incident of a Funeral Procession.

A curious incident in connection with a French-Canadian funeral took place recently at Putnam, Conn. The funeral was that of a beautiful little child. The train, a very large one, with many carriages, had gone a little way down the main street of Putnam when it came to a halt in front of Benoit's photograph gallery. The mourners alighted from their vehicles and gathered about the hearse, and the pallbearers then removed therefrom the tiny white coffin and carried it up stairs into the gallery, the mourners following them. The coffin was set upright on a table in the middle of the room, and Mr. Benoit took a photograph of the dead child's face in its diamond shaped coffin frame. Then the coffin was returned to the hearse, and the train went on to the cemetery.—Cor. New York Sun.

Some "Imported" Cigars.

Si Drukker, Lou Moore and M. S. Drukker have a lot of cigars on hand. Not long ago a Spaniard came into their office and offered some cigars for sale. He said that they were very cheap, as he had smuggled them through. He acted in so mysterious a manner that the boys were induced to look at his cigars in the hope of getting a bargain. He asked $9 a hundred, and finally came down to $3.75. The boys bought 500. As soon as the Spaniard disappeared, they each smoked a cigar, congratulating one another on their bargain. But they all got deathly sick. Upon examination, it was found that the cigars were made of colored paper, with tobacco wrappers.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Last of Jules Ferry.

The room in which M. Jules Ferry died was transformed into a mortuary and hung with draperies worked in silver. The senate voted 20,000 francs to cover the expenses of the public funeral. A part of the great Frenchman's will read as follows: "I order the interment of my body in the St. Die cemetery, where repose my mother and sister, with my face turned toward the blue line of Vosges, whence I heard the cries of the vanquished."—Paris Letter.

A Promoter From China.

Toy Wing Sang, a hustling promoter from China, has succeeded in getting subscriptions of $14,000,000, it is stated, from American and Chinese capitalists for the building of electric roads and lighting plants in Chinese cities.

Don't You Know that you can secure almost immediate relief from Indigestion, and that uncomfortable fullness after meals, by simply taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator? Some people think that because it is called Liver Regulator it has nothing to do with Indigestion and the like. It is the inaction of the Liver that causes Indigestion, and that fullness; also Constipation, and those Bilious Headaches. Millions have been made to understand this and have been cured from these troubles by Simmons Liver Regulator—a medicine unfailing and purely vegetable.

From Rev. M. B. Wharton, Baltimore, Md

"It affords me pleasure to add my testimony to the great virtues of Simmons Liver Regulator. I have had experience with it, as occasion demanded, for many years, and regard it as the greatest medicine of the times. So good a medicine deserves universal commendation.
