FROM AUMSVILLE. This city is unusually quiet, but the financial crisis has not struck it.

HOPS AND CROPS. LANE COUNTY. Eugene, July 25.—The hops are coming on nicely and the lice are not numerous enough to cause any alarm yet.

Accounts from N. Y. state are encouraging they will not have the quantity they did last year but under present conditions the quality will be fine.

Payallup Citizen: Offers are freely made to contract the coming crop at 18 cents.

No hops shipped this week. About 40 bales stored but uncertain when they will be shipped.

But two-thirds of a crop can be reasonably expected in this state from the present outlook.

Lice cut but little figure. Spraying is being generally done. It has been noticed that lice do not multiply on ornamental vines that have not been sprayed and that in many instances they have disappeared.

Some of the yards are so far backward that they cannot catch up, but in most of them the hot weather has developed long arms, and the vines are in blossom.

The Otsego Republican says. Last year's hops in hands of growers materially lessening every week.

Several dealers in the county have been trying to contract new crops at twenty cents, and in a few instances a little better, but so far have heard of only one sale, and that is the Oliver Wood lot in Middlefield.

Joseph R. Dickenson returned yesterday to Turner to look after his hop farm. He has just returned from a trip through Washington and reports the hop fields in excellent condition, there being but a few lice as yet.

Summer Weakness. And that tired feeling, loss of appetite and nervous prostration are driven away by Hood's Sarsaparilla, like mist before the morning sun.

Before Going to the World's Fair. Enquire About The Limited Express trains of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway between St. Paul and Chicago and Omaha and Chicago.

What Troubled Him. When a now famous politician who had just married a young wife was appointed to an important under secretaryship, his bride spent a week in house hunting, and finally found what seemed to be a suitable residence for an official of the state.

"Do you think it extravagant?" "It is not that," returned her husband slowly. "I was wondering what I should do with the other $500 of my salary."

She—Whatever possessed you to get one of those wide brim hats?

He—So that folks can't see what goes on the other side of it.—Truth.

Trying It on Jennie. A son of the soil who was as crafty as he was free with his relatives approached the ticket office of the elevator leading to the roof of the Manufacturers building the other day and said to the lady ticket seller:

"Do you sure these elevators air safe?" "Oh, perfectly," the lady ticket seller said without missing a chew of her tutti frutti.

"Well, I dunno 'bout it," he said, stepping back and looking up the web of light ironwork through which the elevators were noiselessly gliding.

"How many's been killed on these machines so far?" "Oh, they are perfectly safe, not a single accident yet."

"Well, I dunno," he doubtfully mused, with another look upward. "Do you want to try it, Jennie?" She said she did.

"What's it cost, miss?" "Round trip 25 cents." "Looks to me like a perpendicular trip," he chuckled.

"Other people waiting behind you, sir," she said, as the man hesitated. "Is it 25 cents for one?" "Yes."

"Well, Jennie, perhaps you'd better go, and if you like it you come back and tell me, and I'll go." Jennie went, while her weak, undecided husband stood with open mouth and staring eyes and watched the elevator wait her to the dizzy heights above.—Chicago Tribune.

He Weakened. Topnoddy made up his mind that he was not going to be trampled on any longer by his wife, so when he went home at noon he called out imperiously: "Mrs. Topnoddy! Mrs. Topnoddy!"

Mrs. Topnoddy came out of the kitchen with a drop of perspiration on her nose, her sleeves turned up, a dishrag in one hand and a rolling pin in the other. "Well, sir," she said, "what'll ye 'ave?"

Topnoddy staggered, but braced up. "Mrs. Topnoddy, I want you to understand that, madam, and he tapped his breast dramatically, "I am the engineer of this establishment!"

"Oh, you are, are yer? Well, Mr. Topnoddy, I want you to understand that, I am the blier that'll blow up and fling the engineer over into the best garden. Do yer 'ear the steam escaping, Topnoddy?" "Yes," said Topnoddy meekly. And then he inquired if there was any assistance he could render in the housework.
