

MRS. ELMIRA HATCH.

HEART DISEASE 20 YEARS.

Dr. H. H. H. Hatch, 20 years ago I was troubled with heart disease. Would frequently have falling spells and smothering at night. Had to sit up and get out of bed to breathe. Had pain in my left side and back most of the time. At last I became drooping. I was very nervous and nearly worn out. The last excitement would cause me to faint and consider myself cured.

THOUSANDS.

With suffering. For the last fifteen years I could not sleep on my left side or back until I began taking your New Heart Cure. I had not taken it very long until I felt much better, and I can now sleep on either side or back without the least discomfort. I have no palpitations, dropsy, no wind on stomach or other disagreeable symptoms. I am able to do all my own housework without any trouble and consider myself cured.

CURED.

It is now four years since I have taken any medicine. Am in better health than I have been in 40 years. I honestly believe that Dr. H. H. Hatch's New Heart Cure saved my life and made me a well woman. I am now 60 years of age, and am able to do a good day's work. My 29th, 1892.

SO CALLED UNLUCKY DAYS.

Many Days in the Year Are Said to Blight the Lives of Heartless Lovers. There are certain dates upon the calendar which cannot be fixed upon for "the happy day," because hoary tradition has decided otherwise. If the subtle fever of matrimony is working in your brain, consult the following list of unlucky days and be governed accordingly: Jan. 1, 2, 4, 5, 7, 10, 13; Feb. 6, 7, 18; March 1, 6, 8, 9, 11; May 5, 6, 7; June 7, 15; July 5, 19; Aug. 15, 19; Sept. 6, 7; Oct. 6; Nov. 15, 16, and Dec. 15, 16, 17. These particular days are wanted to blight the lives of the truest lovers ever seen.

But they are not the only snares which threaten the matrimonially inclined. Read this little verse:

Monday for wealth, Tuesday for health, Wednesday the best day of all; Thursday for crosses, Friday for losses, Saturday no luck at all.

Hyman has a deep seated grudge against the latter part of the week. No good and sufficient reasons can be advanced for this partiality, but as marriage is not often an affair of the reason it would be well perhaps to respect the caprices of its particular deity.

Having learned the particular days to be avoided, the feverish lover may think that he can breathe freely. Not yet! The plot still thickens. He has yet to learn that the old Romans started the idea that June was at the top notch as a propitious month for matrimony, and that May was correspondingly below par. This complicates matters even more, but the tangle is still further aggravated by the moon, that potent factor in all human affairs.

If the individual who is credited with inhabiting the land of green cheese were a woman, it would help out the theory that a wedding should be celebrated only when the moon is full. That would gratify a woman's proverbial desire to have a good view of such affairs. At any rate such is the superstition that nothing short of the full light of the sanguine moon can dispel the clouds which seem to hang over the voyage of wedded life.

A BIT OF SUNSHINE.

Sing, sing, you sweet bird, my yellow canary. My friend of my silent hours! However the moods of the household may vary There's a bright note from you, my yellow canary: Your song soon follows in showers.

Supporting the telephone call is most trying. Or the organ grinder is heard. Or unwelcome care is knocking and prying Till we all aver we would rather be dying. Still you trill and trip it, my bird!

In the hush of summer when robins are dozing Your warble rolls clear in a tune. When callers are fanning and laughing and prying, And I am a tropical yawn half disclosing, Your cheery rousie is a boon!

You like my caressing, my glance and my praising; You hop and you perk, don't you, Dick? Your intelligent ways are simply amazing. The whole day long you are never caught napping. For you peck and you sing "double quick!"

But at dusk you mount the perch of your choosing To dream through a "sleep of the just." You tuck your head in to avoid risk of losing. And each fairy feather stands guard while you're snoozing. Dink, you look like a star of gold dust! - Rose H. Lathrop in Ladies' Home Journal.

Catching a Wildcat in One's Hands.

The wild jungle cats of southern India are tall, long legged, bold and dangerous animals. One of them was prevented from doing serious injury to General Hamilton by the skill he had acquired in catching cricket balls.

The cat came to the cantonment proving after fowls. The dogs were set on its track, and for some time there was an exciting chase among the hedges which divided the officers' quarters.

Then there came a long check, the dogs having lost the scent. Hamilton at last espied the cat squatting in a hedge and called the dogs. When they came, he knelt down and began clapping his hands and cheering them on. Suddenly the cat sprang at his face, but he caught it as one would a cricket ball, gave its ribs a strong squeeze and threw it to the dogs.

The cat had made its teeth meet in his arm, and for weeks he carried it in a sling. - Youth's Companion.

The Pygmies of Spain.

As might have been expected the dwarf race of Morocco and the Atlas has been traced to Europe, and fairly pure types are found in Spain, especially in the province of Gerona. These people are only 3 feet 7 inches to 3 feet 9 inches high and are otherwise characterized by a yellow skin, broad, square faces, Mongolian eyes and red hair of a woolly texture. Specimens of them are occasionally to be seen in the markets of Salamanca, and there is said to be a number in the Col de Tosas and the valley of Ribas, several hours by rail from Toulouse. It is not improbable that the Mongolian eye, which is observed in a small percentage of Welsh and English people, is derived by inheritance from the Iberian pygmies or a common ancestry. - Cassell's Magazine.

Perpetual Motion Reward.

I am often asked the question, How much money do the different governments of the world offer for the discovery of perpetual motion? To all such I invariably give this answer: There is no patent law relative to perpetual motion machines. Neither is there a fixed sum of money offered by any government for the invention of such an unheard of contrivance. As early as 1775-178 years ago - the French Academy of Sciences refused to even consider the claims of the so called perpetual motion inventors. A valuable reference work before me in making mention of those who are experimenting in that direction says: "They have an idea that some immense government reward has for years been laid aside for the successful inventor. Unhappy the idea is as fallacious as the grand delusion itself." - St. Louis Republic.

Booth's Loss When Barrett Died.

Mr. Barrett's death, for which Mr. Booth was entirely unprepared, was a terrible shock to the survivor and a blow from which he never fully recovered. The gentle spirit of "The Man of Aisle" seemed to haunt in the most pleasant way his old apartments adjoining those of Mr. Booth at the Players, and more than once after Mr. Barrett had passed away, when some heavy truck in the street had jarred the building and caused the strings of the automatic harp upon his closed door "to play sweet music." Mr. Booth has turned his sad face toward it and has said with a smile, "There comes poor Lawrence now." - Harper's Weekly.

Work For a Palms-taking Jeweler.

Not very long ago a London newspaper announced that a jeweler of Turin had made a tuxedo formed of a single pearl. The sail of beaten gold studded with diamonds, and the binnacle light at the prow is a perfect ruby. An emerald serves as its rudder, and the stand on which it is mounted is a slab of whitest ivory. The entire weight of this marvelous specimen of the jeweler's craft is less than half an ounce, but the maker values it at $1,000.

Forget Himself.

She - My husband is a brute! Friend - All men are brutes, my dear.

She - Mine is simply abominable! I asked him if he did not think you were as pretty as I, and he said, "Yes." - New York Weekly.

Aggravating For Justice.

A few mornings ago, shortly after the adjournment of the Jefferson market court, a man came in and wanted a warrant.

"You can't get it now," explained one of the officers. "The judge is gone for the day."

"Where can I find him?" "You'll have to wait until tomorrow morning to transact any business of that sort."

"Wait until tomorrow!" he exclaimed, wiping the perspiration from his forehead and gazing at the empty bench as if he'd like to jump aboard of it and issue the warrant himself.

"There ain't no use of getting excited," continued the officer. "You don't expect to be murdered, do you? And nobody ain't going to burn your house down, I guess."

"Well, you keep on guessing," replied the exasperated citizen, "but if you had a woman next door hangin over your back yard fence from mornin till night talkin to your wife while you was waitin, hungry for your meals, I'm bettin you'd squeal for justice a good deal louder'n I can." - New York Times.

They Outgrow It.

The office boy had been roasted by the boss until he was so tired that he adjourned to a remote corner and collapsed on a chair, where a visitor found him.

"You seem to be in trouble," said the kindly caller.

"I am," answered the boy. "The old man thinks what he says, and he says enough about me to hang me up if he was a jury."

"That'll be all right after awhile," said the visitor encouragingly.

"I know it," and the boy's face brightened. "Don't I know it? By gravy, if it wasn't that a boy can't be an office boy always, I'd go jangle myself," and he kicked the office cart over the railing and went and measured himself against the wall and looked longingly at the distance between the pencil mark he made and one a foot and a half above it, where the old man's head reached. - Detroit Free Press.

The Unheard Noise of Insects.

Entomologists have succeeded in recording the cries of many insects by the ordinary system of musical notation. But this method does not show the actual pitch, which is usually several octaves above the staff. It merely serves to express the musical intervals. It is known with reasonable certainty that many insects have voices so highly pitched that they cannot be heard by the human ear. One evidence of this fact is that some people can distinguish cries of insects which are not audible to others. - Washington Star.

Takes the Golden Ball.

A former sultan - so runs the story - offered a golden ball for lying. Many lied to him, but the sultan replied that he could himself lie better. Finally an aged man from Angora appeared before him with a large jar on his shoulders. "Your father," he said, "borrowed a jar like this full of gold from my father and said that you would repay the gold to his son."

"Impossible," said the sultan. "If the story be true," replied the pilgrim, "pay your father's debt. If impossible, I have won the golden ball." The sultan at once awarded him the prize. - London Truth.

A Parisian Idea.

An entirely Parisian idea is the project to erect in different parts of Paris statues of the women who have been reigning beauties in that city, either in past generations or in the present. The idea of the projector is that "beauty should not be the only consideration in the selection of models, but finish of costume should be carefully considered." It might do to have annual balls for the selection of a lady who shall be honored by the erection of a statue at the public expense. - Philadelphia Press.
