REVIEW OF NEW BOOKS.

"Pietro Ghisleri" is Marion Crawford's most mature novel. It borders strangely upon the most progressive psychology. The hero who is sound in his tendency toward the good, the right and the true, recovers from a wound ordinarily fatal.

"Old Kaskaskia" is a love story, as distinctively idyllic as Mrs. Burnett's best novelette. It possesses the rare flavor of an excursion in letters into a region quite undreamed of and forgotten.

"Donald Marcy" by Elisabeth Stuart Phelps is a good story of college life for young people—Mrs. Ward's 23rd volume, beginning with "Gates Ajar," which has reached its 77th thousand.

F. Tennyson Neely, publisher, Chicago, has presented in an attractive volume Col. Richard Henry Savage's "The Passing Show." The sketches are graphic novelties from many strange lands, and reveals the graceful story teller.

BOOKS OF CHILD LIFE.

Besides being a readable novel "Sweetheart Gwen" is an original study in the literature of child life. No happier panorama of Welsh country life could pass before the eyes than that unfolded in this life on the farm in the Vale of Clwyd, North Wales.

"An Adventure in Photography" by Octave Thanet, illustrated by photographs by the adventurers, deserves to be studied by all would-be artists with the camera rather than reviewed in a newspaper.

Our Dumb Animals for September shows in bright poems, pretty pictures and wide-awake sketches the grand work which Geo. F. Angell is doing for prevention of cruelty to animals.

The five booklets are sold for 60 cents, Kludergarten Literature Co.

Zola, the apostle of filth in French fiction, is coming to our country.

Rev. Dr. John DeWitt has a new volume on "What is Inspiration."

Will H. Low will write "An Artist's Impressions of the World's Fair" for October Scribner's.

Harpers 8th edition of Lorna Doone has a photogravure of the author Blackmore.

Robert Louis Stephenson is a grandson of Stephenson, the Scottish Light-house builder.

Oscar Wilde returns momentarily from oblivion with "A True Theory" of the mystery of Shakespeare's sonnets.

Lee & Shepard have printed a new edition of Charles Sumner's great oration, "The True Grandeur of Nations."

Ella Higginson has a delightful "Last Message of Summer," in the September Overland. It is rich with the aroma of nature.

Macmillan & Co., the great New York publishing house, is enjoying its golden jubilee, having been established in 1843, by John Macmillan, a protégé of many American authors of renown.

THE MIDWINTER FAIR.

Great Features Promised for the California Exposition.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—The fondest hopes of the projectors of the California mid-winter International Exposition are more than realized. The prospects of its success have increased daily until now the greatest fogs of the United States are willing to admit its success.

Applications for space have been literally pouring in upon the commissioners here who represent the various nations which will take part. So far from there not being exhibits enough to fill the buildings it is feared that many of those who make applications for space must be refused.

Many of the foreign countries will have buildings of their own for the housing of their exhibits. Among these are Brazil, Honduras, China, Japan and Costa Rica.

Still other nations are considering the feasibility of erecting their own buildings but as they have not taken any definite steps in the matter their names are not given. Enough support is certain from foreign countries to assure the international character of the exposition.

Besides the exhibit showing the products of mines, soil and manufactures of the various countries of the world there will be other features showing the life, manners and customs of different nations together with the inhabitants themselves. Visitors will be enabled to see the home life of Japanese, Tunisians, Persians, Turks, Chinese, Egyptians, Dahomeyans, Samoans, Viennese, Indians and other peoples whose customs are more or less unknown to the citizens of the United States.

The commissioners from Canada, Brazil, Costa Rica and Honduras have made partial reports to Assistant Director General Corneley during the past few days.

made of it and the masons will soon be at work upon it. The building will be 50 by 20 feet and surmounted by a roof garden. The Tyrolean Art Glass Co. of Innsbruck and Vienna has applied for space for an exhibit at the fair.

W. E. Von Johannson, commissioner for Roumania, Serbia and Montenegro writes Assistant Director General Corneley that the entire Serbian and Montenegrin colony of San Francisco is enthusiastic over the fair.

The Serbian newspaper, the Sloboda, of San Francisco is publishing a special edition for transmission to Serbia and Montenegro. One of the features of their participation at the mid-winter fair will be parades in the picturesque costume of Serbia and Montenegro, the part of parts giving exhibition of national games, national dances, etc.

Messrs. Hennigmann & Kimmel, of Antwerp, Belgium, have been appointed official traffic agents by the foreign department of the California mid-winter exposition. European exhibitors have been requested to send their goods to this firm who will send them in bond to San Francisco.

The Liek observatory exhibit will be transferred to the mid-winter fair after the close of the world's fair.

It has been announced that no applications for space will be received from exhibitors after the 28th. of October.

WORLD'S FAIR NOTES.

The Bon Marche of Paris makes a comprehensive exhibit of textiles. In one corner is a bride's trousseau, the costliest ever made. The entire outfit is worth $25,000.

One of the curious articles forming part of the colonial exhibit at the fair is a carved powder horn etched with the map of New York and the English coat of arms.

The Cunard Steamship company show the development of modern shipbuilding in a fleet of full rigged models, from the Britannic, the pioneer ship, to the Capania, the largest in the world.

Mme. Weisenger, the most famous woman painter that Austria has yet produced, is represented at the World's fair by several notable fine pictures, among them one entitled "Morning at the Seashore."

The foundation of the Washington state building is made of huge logs, 10 in number, each of which is 125 feet long and 3 feet 6 inches by 3 feet in breadth. They were cut from trees 340 feet in length.

From the Chicago ocean to the World's fair by water is only about seven miles, a few minutes' trip by steamer. Short as it is, the roughness of the lake occasionally makes the trip undesirable and sometimes dangerous.

What are supposed to be the first playing cards printed in America are exhibited in the Anthropological building. The sheet is about 11 by 17 inches and bears in the back a pen and ink inscription giving its date, 1833.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, drowsiness and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged.

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Constipation, etc., I have ever appointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

SELECTIONS

JOKES IN THE BRITISH ARMY.

They Are Frequently Carried to a Most Unpleasant Extreme.

One or two incidents that have lately occurred strongly suggest that the time has arrived for a little plain speaking on practical joking in the army.

During the late militia training the Hon. O. C. Molyneux, a subaltern of the Third Lancashire Fusiliers, was the guest of Colonel Marton, commanding the Third and Fourth battalions, Royal Lancaster regiment.

Immediately afterward Mr. Molyneux's quarters were invaded by five officers of the Lancaster regiment, who seized the subaltern and dragged him off to their camp.

His report detailed the facts precisely as I have now described them, adding that during the assault the Lancashire officers used the filthiest and most abusive language, and that the occurrence took place close to the men's lines.

For the credit of the regular army I cheerfully give all possible prominence to the circumstance that the persons referred to belong to the militia, but I am bound to add that to my knowledge the regular army is not blameless in this respect.

Let domestic education commence from the cradle, and then you won't hear so much about the uselessness of the girl of this period. Let the little girl not as tall as the table wipe the knives, forks and spoons and dust a few chairs.

As girls grow older let them be given more important work. Promote them from time to time to the charge of some department. Change works till they have gone the rounds.

All teachers acknowledge the ruinous effects of trying to "cram" knowledge into the heads of young children. Yet ambitious parents, who wish their daughters to "graduate" at 16 or thereabouts, will extol the teacher who will make her aim to see that so many books are consumed in so much time.

Learn things thoroughly as they come along and do not load down the mind all at once with a mass of unavailable knowledge.—New York Telegram.

Women Still Excluded.

No people are so well satisfied with popular government as the people of America. Indeed, if anything, our satisfaction is too great, for there is no hope of progress unless through that divine discontent, that struggle for an ideal better than the thing possessed, which has already brought the world from barbarism into civilization, and which must bring it hereafter into still higher forms of social and political life.

The sword which Ethan Allen drew in the cause of freedom in 1773 has been kept in the Allen family since the patriot's death and is now in possession of Hannibal A. Hopkins of Lansing, Mich.

Kansas a Great State.

In considering corn crop reports from Kansas the fact of the size and what may be called the "shape" of the state should never be lost sight of.

No one is authorized a homogeneous country, with uniform conditions affecting its entire area. Kansas is really "all sorts" of a country and never has known in all its parts at the same time the same meteorological conditions.

These truths should be taken to heart when the word comes that the "corn crop of Kansas is destroyed." Practically that is impossible.

His report detailed the facts precisely as I have now described them, adding that during the assault the Lancashire officers used the filthiest and most abusive language, and that the occurrence took place close to the men's lines.

A Hard Question to Put.

Photographer—Now, madam, if it is not asking—or too much of you, will you—er—kindly make an effort to—ah—to look pleasant? It will only be for a moment.—Harper's Bazar.

A Foolish Question.

Dora—Oh, I'm in such distress of mind, and I want your advice. I am loved by three men, and I don't know which to accept.

Clara—Which one has the most money? Dora—If I knew that, do you suppose I'd waste precious time running around for advice?—New York Weekly.

Miss Kittie Wilkins is claimed by the state of Idaho as a veritable "horse queen." She has a ranch with about 3,000 horses and 2,000 head of cattle thereon, and while she buys and sells, all the stock her brothers are only trusted with the care of the animals.

"My Sails Are Sick—I Die!"

Burah, one of the famous company of Amazons exhibiting at the Crystal palace, has died at the Norwood Cottage hospital.

After being in the hospital 24 hours, Burah appeared to revive wonderfully, and in asking nurse for the doctor she said, "Medicine man good," and to use the nurse's own words, Burah bore her acute suffering with the greatest patience and was an example to many English people.

"Yes, I'm weaker," and looking very earnestly in the face of the nurse Burah held up her finger nails, which were a pure white. Deceased said, "My sails are sick. I die; I die," and the big tears rolled down her cheeks.
