PUBLISHED DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY, BY THE Capital Journal Publishing Company, Postoffice Block, Commercial Street.

HOFER BROTHERS, - - - Editors. Daily, by carrier, per month, $0.50; Daily, by mail, per year, 3.00; Weekly, 8 pages, per year, 1.50.

VALE, VALKYRIE.

Farewell, representative of British aquatic sport and sailorcraft. He thee to thy narrow channel and sail with cat boats, fishing smacks and picnic sloops.

Eight times beaten in fair cup races in English, Canadian and American waters would weary anyone but an Englishman. He will now attempt building yachts on the American center-board plan, and try to outswim us American next year in his own water with an American built yacht.

Well, with all that added to his stock of skill as a sailor, the Englishman will get left at his favorite sport. Better man your American built sloop with Swedish or better yet American sailor and try again.

BOODLE JOURNALISM.

The winking out of a Portland daily a few weeks after it was deprived of the city printing is another illustration of the faculty of boodle journalism. It springs up as the grass when some stock company or the public treasury puts up the money for the boodler to absorb or dissipate. It is cut down and withereth as the flower as soon as the money plays out.

Of course, those who promote such schemes are very properly punished. The great injury comes from the destruction of public confidence in the public press. The people learn to distrust all newspapers because a few are mercenary and mushroom growths, that spring up for plunder only, whose projectors never intended to earn an honest living, but expect to beat their way through life by some sharp scheme or other.

A FINE DISTINCTION.

A Salem lawyer has just acquitted a horse thief who was found with the stolen animal in his possession, on the plea that the man stole the ride but had not stolen the horse.

This is refining the art of the criminal lawyer to a remarkable degree. The shrewd attorney represented that his client was tired, found a stray horse, borrowed it, and at most had paroled his transportation but not the animal in question.

Whether it was his humorous presentation of the matter or drawing a fine legal distinction, the jury sided with him. He deserves credit for acquitting his client and saving him from going to the state prison. As he argued a tramp might as well be convicted of stealing a train for stealing a ride on the brakebeam.

THE BULLETIN BOARD.

The bulletin board is a fraud of the first water, and the dissemination of news in that way is a piece of ill-advised gratuity on the part of a newspaper. It would seem to be hard enough to find the money from delinquent advertisers and subscribers to pay telegraph tolls without giving the information away. But if the newspaper wants to make a fool of itself there is no law against it.—Oregonian.

THE JOURNAL has bulletined the news for several months and its business as a newspaper has not been interfered with. It has not found it any harder to get money on that account.

During the panic all the news was given the people on the subject of failures and it did much to allay suspicions and prevent runs on banks, while in Portland where the financial news was monopolized and kept secret the banks met with ruin.

THE JOURNAL'S flag was found flying Friday in honor of the American Yacht's victory. And every true hearted American and lover of sport rejoiced to see it wave. In all modern newspaper cities of the world the news is bulletined. The people do not buy less newspapers, but the demand for the news of the day is stimulated thereby rather than otherwise. It is on the principle of the newboy on the train going through and dropping a few free peanuts in each passenger's lap. It creates a taste for more. So with news bulletins.

The little magazine called Child-Garden, of Story, Song, and Play, is just the thing. Child-Garden! that's a funny name, isn't it? Well, it is a kindergarten magazine for children, and the only magazine of the kind in the world. It has thirty-two fine pages each month, printed on large paper, full of pictures, and tell all the wonderful things the children do in the kindergarten. And the stories! there were never better ones told,—so full of fun and earnest. Have papa or mamma send $1 for this magazine, to the Kindergarten Literature Company, Woman's Temple, Chicago, Ill.

The Confederate War Journal, an illustrated magazine, for November number will contain a description of Capture of Fort Donelson, by Generals Floyd, Buckner, Pillow and Forest, and other interesting matter, besides portraits, battle scenes, maps, etc. The subscription price of the Confederate War Journal is only $1.00 a year; single copies 10 cents. Address, The Confederate War Journal, Lexington, Ky., and 110 Fifth Avenue, New York.

"Why is He So Irritable?" This question is often heard and nearly as often unanswered.

It is not often remembered, as it should be, that the occasion of ill temper and irritability is often to be found in the physical condition of the persons affected. What is the use of trying to "harmonize" a man whose liver has gone back on him? If a man is tortured with rheumatism, how can he be expected to be affable and agreeable? Can a confirmed dyspeptic be expected to be cheerful and always ready to tell a funny story? The only way to remove the difficulty is to get at the cause. Dyspepsia, rheumatism, impure blood and liver troubles yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla; this is why it is an effective tranquilizer, a peaceful messenger, and a preventive of domestic quarrels.

An Oswego man has just been released from a California insane asylum. He sold his farm last year and went to the city to see the sights. On the night of his arrival in Portland he stopped in several saloons and partook of a considerable quantity of that which exhilarates. He finally wandered into a saloon on the east side where he met two confidence men who discovering that Smith was in possession of considerable money, made his acquaintance and invited him to take a walk when taking him into a saloon they quickly had him drugged and he knew nothing of his course until he came to the insane asylum at Agnew, Santa Clara county, Cal., and heard everybody addressing him as Henry Webberly against which he protested declaring his name to be George Smith.

For this he was ridiculed by the physicians and attendants as some mad ravings of a diseased brain, no attention being paid to his repeated demands for liberty and the privilege of writing to friends which he either denied him or the letters which he did write were thrown into the waste basket by the attendants.

This continued from the 19th day of July, the day he was committed by the Alameda court until finally gaining the confidence of the employes he managed to send a letter to Oswego and friends came to his release and the other day he walked into town to tell his strange experience.

Douglas county has a debt of $160,347.39.

There has been some disgraced "monkeying with the justice mill" in Umatilla county. The report is that the court reporter offered to insure one Tucker that he would be "let down easy," probably by pleading to petty larceny, if he would put up $150. Some of the prisoner's friends agreed to assist him by signing their names as sureties on a note, and the little deal was nearing a satisfactory adjustment when Judge Fee happened to hear of it. He asked the grand jury to investigate.

HEADACHE, SLEEPLESSNESS, NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind. Gentlemen: I take pleasure in informing you of the very beneficial results which have followed the use of Dr. Miles' RESTORATIVE NERVINE in my case. For a year I was subject to a distressing pain at the base of the brain and upper portion of the spinal cord. I was troubled with sleeplessness, and was greatly recommended to me. My case had been so obstinate that I had no confidence in the efficacy of any medicine. Yet as a last resort I consented to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, I experienced marked benefit; my sleeplessness disappeared; my headache was removed; my spirits and general health greatly improved.

I have now gained twenty pounds. All this occurred after suffering with the above mentioned ailments for several months. I feel well and am able to do my usual work. I feel it my duty to state that I had no confidence in the efficacy of any medicine. Yet as a last resort I consented to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, I experienced marked benefit; my sleeplessness disappeared; my headache was removed; my spirits and general health greatly improved.

Cross Purposes.

An Irishman one morning went out very early in search of some game on an estate where the game laws were strictly enforced. Turning a sharp corner, whom did he meet but the gentleman who owned the estate.

Paddy, seeing the game was up, coolly advanced toward the gentleman and said: "The top of the morning to your honor! And what brought your honor out so early this morning?"

The gentleman replied by saying, "Indeed, Paddy, I just strolled out to see if I could find an appetite for my breakfast," and eying Paddy rather suspiciously added, "And now, Paddy, what brought you out so early this morning?"

"Indeed, your honor, I just strolled out to see if I could find a breakfast for my appetite!" said Paddy.—Spare Moments.

An Expressed Preference.

Miss Yorke—Mr. Obese is very light on his feet.

Miss Berlin—Id much rather have him light on his feet than light on mine.—Club.

Mrs. Malaprop's Successor. Mrs. Hudson, wife of the English railway king assailed by Carlyle, was a worthy successor of Mrs. Malaprop. Here are two stories of her related by Mr. Vernon Heath in his "Recollections." Mr. Hudson had issued cards for an evening party "to meet the Duke of Wellington." The night arrived, the guests assembled and the rooms were crowded, but no duke, though at a late hour his grace arrived, when at Hudson, who was ready to receive him, said, "Oh, duke, you are so late, and I have been so anxious, for tonight, you know, you are my prima donna!"

Desiring to visit the celebrated Bridgewater gallery, at the residence of Lord Ellesmere, Mrs. Hudson was duly shown the treasures of art there collected. In passing through the corridor, where much beautiful sculpture is exhibited, the visitor was struck by a bust of Marcus Aurelius. Addressing the housekeeper, she inquired, "And who may this be?" "That is Marcus Aurelius, ma'am." "Oh, indeed!" said Mrs. Hudson; "father of the present marquis, I presume!"—Argonaut.

FASHION'S FANCIES. With round waisted toilets, which are still very popular, the dirretoire ribbon scarf is an accessory seldom omitted. It is tied at the left side in long, generous loops, with ends that fall to the skirt hem.

The new fur peleries made in the form of a full short cape, with monotone collar and long, rather wide stole ends which extend almost to the feet, would sufficiently trim jacket or pelisse.

The pelisses of our grandmothers and the spencers likewise are to reappear this winter. It is also announced by returned European traders that quite as many stylish walking coats will be worn this season as the still very fashionable capes.

The new autumn blazers are very stylish with their effective trimmings of black passementerie flecked with gold on the jacket fabric of silver blue, a deep neapolitan blue—wholly unlike the hackneyed navy blue—and dark Russian green cloth.

In spite of many of the resurrected modes of the present, fashion is no tyrant. She gives full liberty to each individual taste and forbids absolutely nothing, although she is unbending in her judgment of false taste or rather lack of taste.

Navy blue is decidedly in the background for the moment in the world of fashion, although the summer gowns of this stylish but overdone color still flourish by the million, and they will not give up the field until frost appears demanding fresh and novel gowns and fabrics.
