HEADACHE, SLEEPLESSNESS, NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Gentlemen: I take pleasure in informing you of the very beneficial results which have followed the use of DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE NERVINE in the case of myself and wife. For a year I was subject to a distressing pain at the base of the brain and upper portion of the spinal cord. I lost flesh and was greatly troubled with sleeplessness. Your Nervine was highly recommended to me. My case had been so obstinate that I had no confidence in the efficacy of any medicine. Yet as a last resort I consented to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, I experienced marked benefit; my sleeplessness disappeared; my headache was removed; my spirits and general health greatly improved. I SOON GAINED TWENTY POUNDS. ALL THIS OCCURRED AFTER LEARNED AND WELL KNOWN PHYSICIANS HAD FAILED. My wife is taking the Nervine with the best of results. LOUIS D. VANDERVERE.

SANDEN ELECTRIC CO.,

No. 179 First Street, PORTLAND, ORE.

What Is Electricity?

Professor Galileo Ferraris, the genial Italian scientist, whose name is well known to all electricians, was recently asked by a young lady what electricity was; but, unlike most others when asked that question, he ventured to answer it, and, according to Cosmos, wrote in French in her autograph book the following, of which The Electrical World ventures to give a translation, even though the English language hardly does justice to the original in French: "Maxwell has demonstrated that luminous vibrations can be nothing else than periodic variations of electro-magnetic forces. Hertz, in proving by experiments that electro-magnetic oscillations are propagated like light, has given an experimental basis to the theory of Maxwell.

"This gave birth to the idea that the luminiferous ether and the seat of electric and magnetic forces are one and the same thing. This being established, I can now, my dear young lady, reply to the question that you put to me, What is electricity? It is not only the formidable agent which now and then shatters with tears the atmosphere, terrifying you with the crash of its thunder, but it is also the life giving agent which sends from heaven to earth, with the light and the heat, the magic of colors and the breath of life. It is that which makes your heart beat to the palpitations of the outside world; it is that which has the power to transmit to your soul the enchantment of a look and the grace of a smile."

A Cruel Joke.

A cruel joke was perpetrated on the engineer of the Louisville and Nashville passenger train. Several miles from the city the engineer was horrified to see what appeared to be the form of a man asleep on the track a short distance ahead.

He frantically applied the air-brakes and blew the whistle in short, quick jerks, in the hopes of awakening the sleeping man. Immediately heads began to pop out of the car windows, and as the supposed man in front was seen upon the track they were quickly jerked back to escape seeing the sickening accident which it appeared could not be averted. As the engine passed over the object the engineer and fireman closed their eyes and fancied they could feel the wheels pass over the body.

When the train was finally stopped, passengers and trainmen hurried back to the spot, where the dark object could still be seen, but now cut into several pieces. A search was already started for a doctor, when it was discovered that the mutilated remains were those of a dummy with a pumpkin for a head. The figure had on a complete suit of clothes, and at a distance had a most natural appearance. The men then returned, much disgusted, but greatly relieved, to the train, which reached the city slightly behind time. — Louisville Courier-Journal.

Lassoing a Locomotive.

A good many years ago the chief of an Indian tribe in the west took umbrage at a locomotive that scared some of his horses and caused a stampede. Deliberately making all his plans, he waited the next appearance of the offending iron monster, saddled his best horse, coiled up his strongest lariat and stationed himself close by the track and in a suitable position for an attack. When the big iron bulk came up abreast of him, he threw his rope, settled the loop accurately over the smokestack of the engine and braced his horse and himself for a pull.

It was afterward remarked in that tribe that they didn't exactly know whether they got all the pieces of horse and man or not, but at all events they collected enough fragments over which to hold a grand powwow. None of the members of that tribe felt any ambition to renew the attack, and to this day the fame of that Indian rests solely on the fact that he was the chief who tried to lasso a locomotive.—New York Ledger.

Wished They Were All Blind.

Robert Burns' friend, Dr. Blacklock, the blind poet, was a licentiate of the Church of Scotland and used to preach occasionally.

One Sunday he was supplying a country pulpit. Certain deaf old women, as was the custom in those days, had squatted on the pulpit stairs to be as near the preacher as possible. Like the mass of the Scottish people, they abominated sermons that were read.

One of them, as soon as the discourse was begun, said to her neighbor in a tone that was audible through the whole church, "Is he readin'?"

"Tuts, woman! No, he canna read—he's blind."

"Blind, is he, eh? That's real for t'nate. I wish they were a' blind!"—Youth's Companion.

Saving the Eyes.

The Eclectic Medical Journal says that in the continued use of the eyes in such work as sewing, typesetting, bookkeeping, reading and studying, the saving point is looking up from the work at short intervals and looking around the room. This may be practiced every 10 or 15 minutes. This relieves the muscular tension, rests the eyes and makes the blood supply much better.

NORTH CAROLINA CHEROKEES.

A Mountain Band of Indians Who Still Use Bows and Arrows.

One of the most interesting places in North Carolina and yet one of the least known, even by the people of the old North State, is the reservation of what is termed the "eastern band" of the Cherokee Nation. The history of the reservation is a strange one. When the Indians in North Carolina were removed by the government to the Indian Territory, by far the greater part of the Cherokees left their old home forever. But a strong band retained land in three of the western counties in what was then almost a wilderness. A great tract of land was set apart as a reservation by the state, and voluminous laws governing these Cherokee lands were enacted.

Originally the tract of land held by the Cherokees was far larger than at present. It now comprises 73,000 acres, and some of it is the very best land in western North Carolina. It is mainly in Swain and Jackson counties, right among the mountains, and the entire country east of the Mississippi does not contain a more picturesquely beautiful region or one better suited to Indian taste and requirements, with its cold, clear streams full of fish, its mountains well wooded and abounding in game and its comparative remoteness from the beaten track of white people.

The wolf is yet a rover in this section, and there is a county bounty for his scalp, not only in the counties above named, but in several others. The bear is more abundant than anywhere else save in the great swamps near the coast of the state. Deer are also abundant, and the pheasant, or partridge, is found, though long since gone from other parts of the state.

The eastern band of Cherokees are an interesting race of people. The Western North Carolina railway passes within 10 miles of their reservation, Bryson City being the nearest railway station. The chief Cherokee town is known in English as Yellow Hill. It is a rambling place through which rushes a bold mountain stream, the Ocona Lufty. The Indian houses are all alike in design. They are built of logs, well fitted, with a porch on one side. They are built to stand the cold, which is great there sometimes. So high is the altitude and so encircled by mountains is the reservation that there is no hot weather.

The Indians are mainly engaged in farming, but do not do an extensive business in this direction, though they raise plenty of food. The present number of the eastern band is about 1,600, and it is certain that they are increasing. The healthfulness of that region is remarkable, and many of the Cherokees reach a great age. The oldest inhabitant is "Big Witch," who asserts that his age is 115 years.

The Cherokees vote and are on the same footing as other citizens of the state. During the late war their chief was a strong believer in the Confederate states and a fine battalion or legion was raised. This was commanded by Colonel Thomas, who years later died in an insane asylum, and it did effective service, being known as the "Thomas legion."

Earnest efforts are being made to educate these Indians. Those educated are very intelligent, speak English well and are fond of white people and do them favors. Many of the Cherokees, however, do not speak English at all and are as wild in appearance as any Indians in the far west.

Hunting is, as of old, the favorite pursuit. The smaller kinds of game are not ignored. The rifle is the usual weapon, but the bow and arrow and the blowgun are used. Some are very expert with these primitive weapons. The blowguns are nine or ten feet long and are made of a kind of reed, with a bore or diameter of about half an inch.—Exchange.

A Flowery Green Eyed Monster.

Dawes was in the summer house with Hawes. Their beloved wives were behind a bush and were horrified to hear the following conversation:

Dawes—I think Mrs. Alpheus Hardy lovely. I'm quite gone on her.

Hawes—Are you? Well, Sarah Owen is more my style. I saw her at our flower show last year, and I fell in love with her at once. So well formed and showy and——

But the wives could contain themselves no longer. They sprang at their respective husbands; they abused them; they became hysterical, but it is difficult to say whether pleasure or mortification predominated when at last they allowed their husbands to explain that the harmless chrysanthemum was the innocent cause of each one's jealousy.—London Tit-Bits.

A Horse Lives In the White House.

A horse has his home in the White House. This is a literal fact which visitors never discover, and which few Washington people know. The horse which shares the executive mansion with the president isn't a thoroughbred. He has neither pedigree nor record. He is just a plain everyday horse, with a white star in his forehead—a faithful companion to Edgar R. Beckley.

And who is Edgar R. Beckley? The man who for 25 years has carried to and from the White House all of the interesting and valuable mail received and sent, and who has never been found remiss in his duty. There are men who seem bound to be monuments of fidelity to routine trusts. Beckley is one of them. Rain or shine, in all seasons, he makes the hourly trips between the White House and the city postoffice. He is the White House mail carrier. And the horse that has his home in the White House carries Beckley.

The part of the mansion set apart for the horse is one corner of the conservatory. A thin partition is all that separates the roomy stall from the orchids. There is just room enough for the stall and a temporary supply of feed, and there the horse eats and sleeps, under the same roof with the president of the United States.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Thoughtful Empress.

One evening Catherine II of Russia had dined in one town and was to return to her palace in another some miles distant. These journeys were made with much ceremony and magnificence. The great sleighs were ready to start for home. Catherine sat alone in the imperial sleigh. She inquired if the drivers and the footmen had had dinner. Receiving a negative reply she at once left her sleigh. "They have as much need of dinner as we," she said to her party, and she waited patiently until the servants had dined.—Youth's Companion.

A Natural Mistake.

A Chicago clergyman having performed the marriage ceremony for a couple undertook to write out the usual marriage certificate, but being in doubt as to the day of the month he asked:

"This is the ninth, is it not?"

"Why, parson," said the blushing bride, "you do all my marrying, and you ought to remember that this is only the fifth."—Texas Siftings.

A registered letter that was received at the Portland (Me.) postoffice the other day bore a stamp of the $4 denomination. It would have gone for the usual 10 cents fee and postage. The stamp collecting fad was suggested as an explanation, the stamp that had been used being regarded by enthusiasts as more valuable than an uncanceled one.

Sock and Buskin.

The expression "sock and buskin," which literally means comedy and tragedy, found its origin in the "soccus," the Latin name of the low shoe worn by the ancient comic actors, and the buskin, a contraction of the French word "brossequin," remotely derived from the Greek "bursa," a hide or high soled shoe worn by the ancient tragedians to increase their height. The soccus reached to the ankle only, whereas the buskin extended to the knee.—Stageland.

Breeding Blue Foxes.

On the island of St. George, one of the Pribylov group in the Behring sea, the breeding of blue foxes has already become very profitable. The industry has the advantage of involving no expense for care or feeding of the animals. They generate very rapidly, and when an island of good size once becomes well stocked it is impossible to deplete it, as the law provides that they must not be shot, but trapped, the restriction being imposed mainly to keep them tame. The business is mainly prosecuted in the Commander islands, belonging to Russia. As the pelts of blue foxes and "cross" foxes bring $5 and $10 each at wholesale and are in great demand, the industry bids fair to become one of considerable profit. —Troy Press.
