

NOT LIKE NATURAL DEATH.

A Simulated Article on the Stage Too Dramatic and Thrilling.

On the stage, where action is the primary demand in the climax of the play, death must be made dramatic.

But such a death as this would not satisfy the demands of the stage or what are believed by many persons to be those demands, and we therefore see Camille in strong convulsions.

About such deaths, however, there is nothing dramatic, and actors and actresses therefore generally choose to personate that form of heart disease known to physicians as angina pectoris.

When, then, you see the heroine in the dungeon swallow the contents of the bottle of laudanum and at once sink into a profound slumber, you are watching something that never yet took place. The secondary effect of opium on probably 80 per cent of human beings is to put them to sleep, and as this effect is much more lasting than the first excitement it has possession of the popular mind.

Mlle. Croisette, in Paris, when playing in "La Sphinx" created a great sensation and made a name for herself. She went to Dr. Charcot, the eminent physician, of Paris, and learning from him the effects of poisons whose strychnine and had the name inserted in the play.

Two Cities in Madagascar. The island of Madagascar has two distinct climates, two classes of natives and two classes of fauna and flora.

Not a French Kid. "Have yez any shoes that will fit the little girral?" inquired a son of the green isle of a dapper young clerk in a Washington street shoe store the other day.

The Sahara Railroad.

If the United States could cross our continent with railroads, or if Russia can span Asia with a line of rails, why cannot France cross the Sahara desert with a railroad?

Railroads have been constructed through countries to which all the materials required have had to be carried. But here is a country which does not even supply water for the men who must do the work.

Canon MacColl quotes a remarkable case related to him by a physician who had been a pupil of Sir Charles Bell, the eminent author of "The Bridgewater Treatise on the Hand."

When returning to Paris from Brussels after the production of the "Medecin Malgre Lui," his companion in the railway carriage asked him if he had been at the Monnaie theater, and on his replying in the negative congratulated him on escaping so terrible an infliction as the performance of the new opera.

Opium, from which morphia is obtained, is extracted from the milky juice of the opium poppy. The juice is obtained by making slight incisions in the capsule while in a green but fullgrown state.

A good story is told of an old "captain" of a mine in Cornwall. He had received as a present a splendid pineapple. A few days afterward the donor met him, and the following colloquy ensued:

The latest story about the Prince of Wales comes from Vienna. In the Hofburg theater in that city aristocratic subscribers have the privilege of visiting the greenroom, in accordance with a custom dating back to 1720.

Physicians generally fail to recognize the importance of this fact, but treat the organs instead of the cause of the trouble. The noted specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D., L. L. B., has given the greater part of his life to the study of this subject, and the fruit of his discovery is now being put into practice.

New London, in the little state of Connecticut, has the largest swinging span drawbridge in the world. It is on the Shore Line railway and was built during the summer of 1889.

WHY MIKE BURNED THE BOOK.

A Night Watchman Who Had the Interests of His Firm at Heart.

The secretary of the Eastern Rubber company at Trenton lost a letter book containing copies of a month's important correspondence some time ago. The whole office force was turned out to hunt for it, but it had disappeared as effectually as though swallowed up in the earth.

"No, sir," said Mike. "Well, have you seen a book like this?"—talking another letter book from the safe.

"Where is it now?" "Sure, I burned it." "If ever a watchman received a lecture for stupidity, Mike got it then. The secretary became hotter and hotter every minute as he talked.

Paying Back a Practical Joker.

A man in a Glasgow hotel in a lout's voice called his friend back just as he was leaving the dining room and then whispered to him, "How far would you have got if I hadn't called you back?"

The other, straightening himself up, replied in a tone loud enough for all to hear: "No, sir, I wouldn't lend you £5. I haven't got it on me, and if I had I wouldn't let you have it until you paid me what you borrowed two months ago."

His friend will never call him back again in a public dining room.—Dundee News.
