NEWPORT SOCIETY.
A grand ball was given at the Hotel Monterey on the evening of April 5th for the officers of the Light House Tender "Manzanita." The spacious hotel naturally so gay and homelike was beautifully illuminated and handsomely decorated. Dancing was in the main dining room while an elaborate supper was served in the breakfast room.

The following ladies and gentlemen were present:
Capt. W. E. Gregory, Albert Rickards chief engineer, John Barras second officer, U. S. S. Manzanita, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Reddr, Mr. and Mrs.
John Buckley, Dr. and Mrs. A. G.
Smith, Capt. and Mrs. W. J. Rickards, Mr. and Mrs. Hampton, Capt. and Mrs. Chatterton, Miss Peters of Washington, Miss Mamie Case, Miss Nora Fitzpatrick, Miss Vilia Watson, Miss Mollie Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Mr. John Fitzpatrick, Mr. Sidney Watson, Mr. Frank Watson, Mr. John Porter.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.
Tuesday evening a small party of friends assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Munyan to celebrate the 53rd birthday of Mrs. Munyan. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Munyan; Mr. and Mrs. Burbee, Mr. and Mrs. Cone, Mrs. Williams, Minnie Cone, Elva Savage, Bertha Savage, Millie Cone, William Savage, Charles Savage, Carl Williams, and Cora Burbee.

A very pleasant evening was spent, and Mrs. Munyan received the best wishes of all guests.

THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES

Biographical Information About the Men

WHO WERE NAMED AT PORTLAND As the Party Standard Bearer in 1894.

Wm. P. Lord is a native of Delaware, born in 1839, attended college with high honors.

In the spring of 1862, Judge Lord enlisted in the Union army and was elected captain of a Delaware company, and sometimes later was promoted to the rank of major. After participating in a number of engagements, he was made judge advocate, by reason of his ability as a lawyer, on the staff of General Lew Wallace, the author of "Ben Hur." When the war closed the judge resigned his position in the army and resumed the study of law. He graduated from the law school at Albany, N. Y., in 1866, and was admitted to the bar of New York.
About that time he was offered a lieuten-ancy in the 2d regiment, U. S. artillery, which he accepted and immediately repaired to San Francisco. He joined his company there and was sent to Fort Alcatraz, and after a short time he was ordered to Fort Steilacoom, Wash., and from there to Alaska, where he remained on duty four months and resigned.

He then came to Salem in 1868, and associated in the practice of law with Col. N. B. Knight. He was Salem's city attorney several years, and in 1878 he was elected state senator from this county and served until 1880, when he resigned to accept a place on the supreme bench. He drew the short term of two years, and in 1882 was re-elected for six years. In 1888 he again received the nomination and was elected by the largest vote given any man who ran that year.

Judge Lord has a family of wife and three children. He lives in a small house in South Salem, hardly more pretensions than a laborer's cottage and all his surroundings are simple and his habits are those of a student. He will make this state an ideal governor and his election is not now questioned by anyone. Mr. Lord is a man of fine presence, in the prime of life, of vigorous constitution and with a clean record as a citizen and official. He has always been a Republican, but his profession has prevented his participating in partisan conflicts. He will be more of a governor for the people than a manager for the party or any clique.

Chas. E. Wolverton, the candidate for judge, was a Polk county man and a student at the Christian college, practicing at Albany since studying law. He was a candidate for district attorney against Geo. E. Chamberlain.
He is not a brilliant lawyer but a man of more than average ability and an eminently clean and sound man in every respect. He came to Oregon when quite young and is like Judge Lord, whom he will succeed on the bench, distinctly an Oregonian.

For secretary of state the Republicans have chosen the man who is best qualified of any man who could be chosen fresh from the people. Before there were any candidates in the field, and before it was known that any Marion county man would be in the field for this position, THE JOURNAL in several editorials pointed out the peculiar fitness and strong points of Mr. Kineald for this position. He is a pioneer journalist, a clean man, eminently sound in his public positions, conservative, and an earnest advocate of economic reforms. He is as familiar with Oregon political history and public men and public institutions as any man in the state. He is a self made, independent man, and an eminently safe man for the people and the party.

Hon. Phil Metchan, the present state treasurer, is a good man for the place and cannot be beaten at the polls.
He was born in Germany and imbibed the spirit of patriotism and Republican institutions as a boy during the revolution of 1848 and '49 which swept out of Germany a class of immigration that has never been equalled as material for producing loyal Americans. His management of the state treasury has been conservative and sound to the core.
He hails from Grant county and like all bunch-grass Republicans, will run well.

Phil Metchan is more than a politician, Mr. and Mrs. Metchan have reared a fine family of boys and girls, who adorn society and have been given a liberal education. He maintains a hospitable home in this city where all his friends are as welcome as when he was a young man in Canyon, and the latch string of his abode hangs outward to rich and poor.

C. M. Idelman, of Oregon City, is the nominee for attorney general. He stands well in his profession, represents the younger and newer blood of the state.

W. H. Leeds, of Jackson county, editor of the Ashland Tidings, is a nominee for state printer. He is a clean, able journalist and neither the journalistic profession nor the printer's craft will ever regret his success at the convention or at the polls.

The Oregonian of the 12th has the following about the Republican omnibus for superintendent of public instruction:

G. M. Irwin is an Eastern Oregon man, his home being in La Grande.
He is not a new man in Oregon politics. He has on several occasions canvassed the state in the interests of the Republican party and he is one of the best known educators of the Northwest.

Mr. Irwin was born in Zanesville, Ohio, and was educated in the Ohio Western university. He spent much of his early life in Illinois. He responded to the first call made by President Lincoln for volunteers in the war of the rebellion, and he served with distinction in several of the most important engagements of the great struggle.

Mr. Irwin came to Oregon in 1857.
For more than 30 years past he has been prominently connected with educational work and has always taken a deep interest in the subject of education.
He for years held the responsible position of president of the Blue Mountain university, one of the leading educational institutions of Eastern Oregon.
In 1888 Mr. Irwin stumped the state in the interests of the Republican party and he also did effective work in the presidential campaign of the same year.
He was an elector on the R-publican ticket in 1892, during which year he made an extensive canvass of the state.

Mr. Irwin is a strong man in Eastern Oregon, where he is best known, but at the coming election in June, Western Oregon will vie with the eastern part of the state in attempting to roll up an overwhelming majority for superintendent of public instruction as well as for the other candidates on the R-publican ticket.

[Mr. Irwin has been one of the trustees of Willamette university and was at one time superintendent of Chemawa Indian school near Salem.]

A Very Happy Event.

The Willamette University band Thursday evening serenaded the Republican nominees on the state ticket.
Their musical compliments were extended to Hon. W. P. Lord, Hon. Phil Metchan and Hon. Geo. M. Irwin.
The music was highly appreciated and as pleasing to the ears of their neighbors as to themselves.

Remember Ruth.

Prof. Parvin and the Willamette conservatory of music will render the famous classical cantata "Ruth, the Gleaner" next Tuesday evening. The stage settings, costumes, etc., and chorus have been rehearsed and developed to a high state of perfection. See announcements.

"Gentle as the Summer Breeze."

"I would rather take a thrashing than a dose of pills," groaned a patient to whom the doctor prescribed physiology. "I'd as lief be sick with what ails me now as to be sick with the pills." "I don't think you've taken any of the pills I prescribe, or you wouldn't dread the prescription so," laughed the doctor. "I never use the old inside twisters you have in mind. I use Dr.
Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They always make me think of a part of an old hymn—

—mild and lovely,
Gentle as the summer breeze;
The best thing of the kind ever invented—No danger of their making you sick. You'll hardly know you've taken them. I wouldn't use any other in my practice."

OBITUARY.

Effie Agnes Young, beloved wife of Thomas E. Caufield, died at the family residence in this city, at 9:30 p. m. Friday, April 6, 1894, surrounded by the nearest relatives and dearest friends; aided by the consolation of the Catholic religion.

Effie was born March 30, 1873, of honest, industrious and well-to-do parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Young, living on a farm a couple of miles from the city of Eugene, Oregon. Fondly cherished by her good parents, she was ever to them a source of comfort and consolation. Obedience and industry were the characteristic virtues of this favored child; and those virtues she practiced both at home and at the Academy of the Sacred Heart in Salem, where she was sent in 1888, for the purpose of acquiring the higher knowledge to which her talents fitted her.

Under the faithful guidance and watchful care of the devoted sisters of that institution, she grew up in learning and wisdom, and deserved in 1892 to graduate with the highest honors of the school. While thus engaged in school duties, she formed the acquaintance of Mr. Thos. Caufield, which ripened into love, and after a happy courtship, they were united in matrimony in St. Joseph's church Nov. 3, 1892, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. S. White, who had the same day baptized Effie and received her profession of faith. How happy the newly married pair were then! Both young, full of life, surrounded by the comforts of wealth; how bright the prospects. In her new state of life, the young and happy bride continued to shed about her the luster of her virtues. Affectionate in the family circle, diligent in her duties, amiable to all, never was a cross word passed between her and her husband, and all who knew her were bound to love and esteem her. Displaying a judgment far ahead of her years, she had the unusual tact of treating with the utmost deference and respect those made venerable to her by their age. Charitable to the needy, she gave her time and means to the noble work pursued by the Catholic Ladies' Aid society.
Gifted with a sweet voice, she generously lent it to the worship of her Creator in His holy temple.

Withal she was unostentatious and never sought the worldly society to which her accomplishments would have easily committed her. In a word, she was a true woman, a Christian woman, a woman in all the purity of soul and dignity of mind that applies to the respected title. In saying this we pay her memory our highest tribute. This world indeed would be a paradise if all lived as she.

It is no wonder that when her unexpected demise was made known a gloom fell over the places that knew her well and a cloud of woe was spread over the group that stood closer to her.
It is no wonder either that, at her funeral, held in the church where her pleasing voice had so often been heard in sacred song, a multitude that overflowed the vast building testified of its respect for the dear departed, and accompanied her body to its last resting place in the vault of the Caufield family in the Catholic cemetery.

Beautiful were the floral offerings laid on her tomb, touching were the remarks of her pastor and God-father, Rev. J. S. White, and were the hymns of her co-members in the choir, but above all, earnest and sincere were the good wishes and prayers of all for her eternal repose and welfare.

When she graduated in 1892 the title of her essay was "All that is bright must fade." Was it a prophecy * * * concerning her own life?

MOHAIR.—J. A. Van Eaton, of Salem, solicits consignments of mohair, for which he expects to realize the highest New England prices. His returns last year averaged fully 25 per cent above local prices.

Peculiar to itself.
So eminently successful has Hood's Sarsaparilla been that many leading citizens from all over the United States furnish testimonials or cures which seem almost miraculous. Hood's Sarsaparilla is not an accident, but the ripe fruit of industry and study. It possesses merit "peculiar to itself."

Hood's Pills cure nausea, sick headache, indigestion, biliousness. Sold by
