SWINGING AROUND THE CIRCLE
The Journal Man and the Other Republican Candidates on Their Travels.

ETIQUETTE OF POLITICS.
 The old saying of candidates kissing all the babies only reflects in humorous way the essential duty of making oneself agreeable to all and the underlying truth that politeness pays and goes farther for less expense than any other investment that an aspirant for public favor can make. This world would be a heaven of sociability and good fellowship if the etiquette of a well-conducted political campaign could be made to apply all the year around. Everybody would be greeting his neighbor cordially, with the utmost respect for his aims, his religious prejudices and various weaknesses. If all could be put on the good behavior and stability required of candidates it would do no harm. Some men to get the votes of their own family would have to do "a mighty sight" different, to say nothing of winning the support of their neighbors. They would have to kiss their wives and babies more and perhaps their neighbor's less—except the latter.

AUMSVILLE.
 At the Republican meeting Tuesday there was a large crowd of substantial farmers and townsmen gathered in and two hours were spent in discussion, state and national politics. Mr. Darby, the Salem merchant, escorted the procession thus far but here turned back; it was too much for his Democracy. Mr. Darby was not suited by all the Republican talk. It would be difficult to always suit some men. Mr. Darby is a good citizen and a heavy taxpayer and gave us a cordial invitation to visit his place, which we regret not being able to do. A bitter fight is made on Lorenz Eblen in some places. The fusion is complete on clerk and sheriff and the whole Populist campaign of education resolves itself into a struggle for the two fat offices. In Eblen's case the story is circulated with considerable persistence that he is a Catholic. Some people seem bound to force religious distinctions into politics, which is about the only use they ever make of their religion. I find an advertisement all over the county as a Catholic. If I had been one of the original Gay Fawkes crowd who were engaged in a conspiracy to blow up the British House of Parliament, four hundred years ago, I could not be the subject of more curiosity and idle regard. Persons calling themselves men, and living in a free country, a land of liberty, calling themselves Americans, busy themselves telling people what kind of a watch charm a man wears and what he eats on Friday. This is bringing politics to the low level of espionage and bigotry which should be unworthy of any true American. I men have got to go about telling how often they pray, where they go to prayer meetings, and what church and what lodge they belong to, before they can be elected to office, our boasted individual liberty of conscience is purely a myth.

BUTTER GOING DOWN.
 A candidate is expected to eat what is set before him and find no fault whatever unless he expects to lose votes. This is especially true of butter. Men are more sensitive about the honor and good name of their wives' dairy product than about their own political principles. Long training in Journalism familiarizes a man with this weakness of humanity but we had one better adventure worth recording. An old lady was justly celebrated for her fine butter and great penurioseness. She never set her golden product on the table except for a guest. Then she did not relish having him more than taste the article. "I always get 30 cents a pound for my butter" she remarked to the candidate. "It is worth it," said the candidate, as he helped himself liberally, and the old lady fidgeted nervously. "I believe butter is going up," said the old lady. "I thought it was going down," said the candidate not entirely unconscious of the humor of the situation.

AT STAYTON
 the candidates put up at the Farmer's hotel kept by G. W. Hendershott. At the opera house there was an immense crowd in the evening to greet the Republicans. The candidates all appeared before them. Ed. McKinney and other citizens from Salem were present. A splendid reception was given to the incidental mention of Mr. Hobson's name; A. W. Elder who made a fine run for sheriff two years ago on the Democratic ticket is not taking a very active part this year. Dr. Darbyshire is located here from San Diego, Cal. He has a brother in the drug business in Silvertown. I will send you a daily letter as we go along on the canvas.

 I forgot to state that at Aumsville I was asked to devote a little attention to my friend Pennoyer and did so. Even Populists seemed to enjoy getting a little true inwardness about the great reformer. More at Macleay. At Stayton we met Mrs. Hendershott, landlady at the Farmer's hotel, who was a schoolmate of John Brown's children at North Elba, Essex county, New York.
E. HOFER.

Some Marion county Republicans joined the Populist movement for the good of the cause and with the best motives of reform, but now they are asked to vote for straight Democrats for the important offices of the county.

THE SUN'S HEAT.

Helmholtz's Theory of How Its Loss by Radiation is Repaired.
 Those who have paid attention to this subject are aware that the remarkable doctrine first propounded by Helmholtz removed all real doubt from the matter. It is to this eminent philosopher we owe an explanation of what at first seemed to be a paradox. He explained how, notwithstanding that the sun radiates its heat so profusely, no indications of the inevitable decline of heat can be as yet discovered.
 If the sun had been made of solid coal from center to surface, and if that coal had been burned for the purpose of sustaining the radiation, it can be demonstrated that a few thousand years of solar expenditure at the present rate would suffice to exhaust all the heat which the combustion of that great sphere of fuel could generate. We know, however, that the sun has been radiating heat not alone for thousands of years, but for millions of years. The existence of fossil plants and animals would alone suffice to demonstrate this fact.

We have thus to account for the extremely remarkable circumstance that our great luminary has radiated forth already a thousand times as much heat as could be generated by the combustion of a sphere of coal as big as the sun is at present, and yet notwithstanding this expenditure for millions of years to come the sun may continue to dispense light and heat to its attendant worlds with the same abundant prodigality. To have shown how the apparent paradox could be removed is one of the most notable achievements of the great German philosopher.

What Helmholtz did was to refer to the obvious fact that the expenditure of heat by radiation must necessarily lead to shrinkage of the solar volume. This shrinkage has the effect of abstracting from a store of potential energy in the sun and transforming what it takes into the active form of heat. The transformation advances pari passu with the radiation, so that the loss of heat arising from the radiation is restored by the newly produced heat derived from the latent reservoir.

Such is an outline of the now famous doctrine universally accepted among physicists. It fills the conditions of the problem, and when treated by arithmetical calculation it is not found wanting.—Sir Robert Ball in Fortnightly Review.

peculiarities of the Siamese.
 The wealthy Siamese, including the king, practically turn night into day. All important political meetings are held in the night, and at a o'clock in the morning is the hour at which Bangkok fashionables retire until 4 o'clock the succeeding afternoon. There is a semi-European theater in Bangkok, which was erected by one of the present king's predecessors, and there are plenty of native theatrical performances by natives, the Siamese being a pleasure loving people and fond of all sorts of entertainments.
 The worst thing that can happen to a man in Siam is to get into debt, from which there is never any escape, owing to the exorbitant interest charged. Once in debt, there is no appeal, the debtor being stripped of his clothes and compelled to work in fetters, generally for the rest of his life, to pay the interest. Drunkards are not permitted to give evidence in the law courts of Siam.
 The Buddhist priests, clad in yellow robes, are to be seen everywhere in Bangkok, and it is quite common for young men to enter the priesthood, which affords them an easy and luxurious existence, owing to the liberality of the populace toward any one sanctified to the service of Buddha.—Demorest's.

A Practical Man.

Of all practical men of whom America is justly proud no one holds a higher place than the late Cyrus W. Field. His son shows that he has inherited the shrewd common sense of the man who laid the Atlantic cable. He writes: 5 EAST 56TH STREET, NEW YORK, May 8, 1883.
 Several times this winter I have suffered from severe colds on my lungs. Each time I have applied Alcock's Porous Plasters, and in every instance I have been quickly relieved by applying one across my chest and one on my back. My friends, through my advice, have tried the experiment and also found it most successful. I feel that I can recommend them most highly to any who may see fit to try them.
