The grangers adopted a resolution that the county treasurers should be the collectors of taxes instead of sheriffs and also adopted the following: Whereas, Better roads are desirable and a necessity in many places, and whereas it is necessary to the permanent improvement of our roads, that the causes of their miserable condition for a greater portion of the year be removed as far as possible, therefore we favor the taxing of all narrow-tired lumber or freight wagons or giving a premium for the use of all wagons having tires three or more inches wide.

SWINGING AROUND THE CIRCLE

The Journal Man and the Other Republican Candidates on Their Travels.

MILL CITY, May 24, 1894.

The Democrats were here the day before us. Editor Flagg endorsed Penoyer, embraced Populism, flattered the People's party and kissed a Populist out in the mill yard. They were all one set of brothers, on the Astoria platform, with a common destiny, etc., etc. The Republican meeting was a regular love-feast of enthusiasm for protection, sound money, a prosperous country and development of grand old Marion county. All the candidates were introduced and spoke their piece. The editor of THE JOURNAL put himself on record in favor of the laborer and material men, in their struggle with the Oregon Pacific.

A hack took us to Mehama where the band played and an immense crowd turned out. A Populist was seen alive, hair, hide, feathers and all by Barkley, about the seventh or eighth that has met that fate.

THE TARIFF AND LABOR.

At Mehama the night before we were there Mr. Flagg, Democratic candidate for senator, declared that manufactured goods should be brought from England and exchange for the farmers' products. In my reply I showed that his policy would not leave any room for a laboring man to live in the country. That sort of Democratic Flagg will never float over our state house. (Applause.)

The saw mills at Mill City and Mint are both running and illustrate in a small way the benefit of a protective tariff to the laboring man. At Mint owing to material advantages logs can be got into the mill some cheaper than at Mill City and lumber can be got out correspondingly cheaper. But this is no reason why the mills at Mill City should shut down or why a man living there who wants to build a house should go to Mint for his lumber. He can't get employment at Mill City because he can buy lumber at any price. If he has work he can better afford to say a little more at home and have some money to buy other things with. There is not an article manufactured in our own country that could not under free trade before we began to manufacture it in the United States have been imported cheaper from some other country. But unless we had begun manufacturing in our country under a protection tariff there would never have been any factories started in our country and no work for the wage laborer. The difference between free trade and protection is not so much a question between high wages and low wages in our country, as it is of any wages at all. Mr. Jory said at Turner that he was a protectionist, but resorted to the demagoguery of saying that a protective tariff now did not protect labor and guarantee high wages. Any system that shuts out of our country anything that can be produced here is an advantage to the American laborer that must produce it. No system can fix wages between employer and employee. But a system that compels the employment of skilled or unskilled American labor, to produce that here at home which would otherwise be produced by foreign labor abroad and then imported to our country free of duty, such a tariff system cannot but improve the condition of the laborers of our country. That is the idea of a protective tariff, and Mr. Jory simply stands with the Populists in congress who are supporting the Wilson bill. We believe Mr. Jory is a protectionist and we believe he wants to be on the right side. And so do other Populists. But their party ignores the vital question of an American protective tariff and leaves the rank and file without a guiding star, while the managers believe in free trade to the detriment of free labor.

COFFEY FOR ASSESSOR.

The people throughout the county are finding very little fault with D. D. Coffey's work as assessor, and he will be re-elected by a good vote. No one questions his intelligence or ability. He has been one of the best school teachers of our county and is now in good demand. He is a self-made man, coming from a humble home as a poor farm boy without any advantages but those wrought for himself by hard knocks and earnest application. Mr. Coffey as assessor will seek honestly to enforce the law on all property.

MARKED HIS CANVASS.

At Mill City a telegram came from Salem telling of Gilbert & Patterson's store burning. Mr. Patterson had gone by train to Lyons and did not learn of the fire until Thursday afternoon when we arrived by hack. He had been fishing and enjoying himself and the news of a fine business, that he had been building up for sixteen years, going up in smoke, was a damper on the enthusiasm of the day which had reached a high pitch at Mill City. Mr. Patterson at once started for home with his horse and carriage and many people were disappointed at not seeing him.

Detroit.

The people of this 'Burg were badly scared on the night of the 21st, when the train came in. There was a crowd of men who got off of the cars and the men run up here—all ran for the brush. They thought it was Coxy's army; but when they found out that it was only the Democratic candidates, they all came back to take a look at them, for it is something new to see one of that part in this town, as they have all gone up Salt river in the Populist caucuses. They held a meeting at the Cascade house, with Editor Flagg as their leader. They wanted a Democrat as a chairman, but they could not get one as there was only one in town, and he was sick. So they had to do the next best thing—they called on John Butterworth to take the chair, which he did. John is one-half Populist and one-fourth Prohibition and one-fourth Henry George (single-tax principle); but John filled the office well, for there was not much to do. The party did not come up here to make a Democratic speech or to talk of the Democratic principles, but they came up here to make a bid for the Populist vote, and they made a big bid. They were told by Editor Flagg that the Populist did not stand any show to elect anybody on their ticket in this county, and the best thing that they could do, was to vote for the Democratic candidates. Will they do it? I think not. The Pops take that as taffy, and very thin taffy, at that. If they do not do any better at other points than they did here, their labor will be in vain, for they made no converts here. They hounded Gov. Penoyer very easily. They did not want to hurt the feelings of the Pops, the party were not straight old line Democrats; they were one-half Populists. Editor Flagg ought to change the name of his paper and call it the Salem Populist, if he runs on the same line at Salem as he did up here.

On the evening of the 23d we were called on by the Republican candidates and they were a wild looking crowd. We were glad that Mrs. E. Hofer and Rev. Barkley were in the party to keep them in good order. The party all went to the Cascade House and when Landlord V. G. Danforth saw them all steering for him it scared him so that he had to have a second supper that night. After Mr. Danforth got over his scare he plotted the party into the dining room where they partook of a bountiful supper which they devoured with keen relish. A goodly crowd were waiting for them outside and after supper Chairman E. M. Poe of the Republican club got the crowd to take seats in the office of the Cascade House and called the meeting to order. Then C. B. Moore took the floor and delivered a very eloquent address to the people which called out many roars of applause. Then Rev. H. L. Barkley took a hand at it and he pounded out the Populists as flat as shingles. After he got through with them you could have covered any one of them with a small sized thimble. E. Hofer was called on next; he gave a half hour speech of good sound sense, and if Mr. Hofer is as fearless in the state senate as he is in the editor's chair, he is the man that we want there, and if all precincts do as well for him as we will do up here, he will go in with flying colors. The hour getting late Captain Gesner wound up the meeting by delivering a short but appropriate speech. Everybody up in this country knows Lou Gesner. So he will go in with no trouble. All the candidates made a good impression on the people, but I've Patterson made the biggest one. He left one in Mr. Danforth's flower bed that was 13 inches long and six inches wide. He called it a foot mark, but it was a very long foot. Sheriff John Knight was called on to have the damage repaired, but he claimed to have no jurisdiction over the case. C. B. Moore and Rev. Barkley will tell you how it happened.

Our townsmen Jim Stearns and Nat Bowman will take a two weeks' bear hunt as soon as Nat returns from Eastern Oregon with horses.

Fifteen men from Michigan were here lately and stopped a few days. They are on their way to Eastern Oregon to settle on claims and there are more coming.

The new postoffice is almost completed.

V. G. Danforth is building a 24-foot addition to his hotel, which, when completed, will give him the largest and best hotel east of Albany.

The Populist candidates will be with us on the 26th. Let them come, we can stand them one night.

G. G. Bingham, of Salem, will hold a joint discussion with the Pops at this place on the 1st of June.
